Do you want a Crowd at your Auction Sale?

Then Advertise the event through the columns of the Durham "Review".

Auction Sales are just as largely attended as you want them to be Upon the publicity he gave the sale depends its success. At one time in years past, the village store and Post Office with an odd bill on a fence corner, were all that is required to advertise the sale.

But now things are different. We live in a different day and generation and do things in a different way. Rural mail carriers carry the news of the auction sale or whatever have you, to your door.

The motor brings buyers a greater distance than formerly and the circle or radius interested is greatly enlarged.

The "Review" is well prepared to print the bills and advertise your sale, to reach the people vitally interested, at prices that fit your pocket book.

We can solve your advertising and printing needs on short notice If you are planning a sale, call and see what we can do for you.
