LILAC

Of all the lovely gifts the Spring bestows I think that lilac is the loveliest; In garden prim and ragged hedge it grows, Its fragrant clouds of pearl and amethyet Lifting an incense indescribable

To the clear agure of May's sunny skies, Which, as they wane to sunset colourful, Linger in lilac light till evening dies. White-blossomed lilac's youth's epitoms; With purple pinnacles a prince's plumes

Regal, yet sweet with all simplicity. The very acme of the springtide bloom. So much for sunlit beauty all in val I strive to tell of lilac in the rain!

The uppermost event in current news of the past week, has been the tragic fatalities at Sarnia on Saturday last, when the notorious Ryan shot and was shot at, as on of the victims, ending fatally. Fortunately for "Red", he made his own death bed easy.

Red Ryan has been known as "Dr. Jekyll and Hyde" figure in the criminal gallery of Canadian bandits Of a likable personality, he won his way into the good graces of many high-ups in prison reform and with the result of being released from the Kingston penal institution, a year ago, on the assurance he was going to henceforth walk the straight and narrow way. For a time, he was apparently not seeking publicity in any form and his past career was thought to be buried forever. But as an interesting piece of psychology Echo. the old flame was still within, though lying dormant. What fanned that flame will likely never be known.
