Agnes Macphail Says Other Dominions Do So In Old Country

Toronto,-Agnes Macphail, here after her return from a trip to Europe, urged Canada to put on a "dignified and reasonable" advertising campaign for Canadian products in the United Kingdom. Other colonies are advertising, she said. "Somebody is to blame, something is wrong," said Miss Macphail, "Whether the other colonies are spending money on advertising or not I do not know, but Canadians feel Canada is not as important to the people in London as are the other colonies."

She said she felt more at home in Denmark and Sweden than in any other countries in Europe. Russia has made unbelievable advances in many fields of endeavor, but she doubted if the people of Russia would be so content "if they knew what was going on in other lands."

"There must be terrific monotony." she said. "There must be this awful fear of getting into disfavor with the authori. es. There is no fear of economic insecurity there, of either old age or incapacitation but they do not know the same sense of safety as we

Tree Trade

Writes the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, we are living in a highly competitive age; no sooner does ness connection or line of trade than someone else steps in to do battle with him for it. A proverb of the Victorian age used to say that competition was the life of trade, but it is hard to see how the modern kind of competition is particularly life-giving. An example is drawn to our attention by Mr. G. A. Newman, Assistant Trade Commissioner in New York, who in a report to the Commercial Intelligence Journal, speaking of Christmas trade-for which it is not too soon to prepare-states that there is an increased sale of potted trees and rather cos ly artificial trees in the Eastern United States where once the natural Canadian tree held sway; domestic supplies being irregular and limited by embargos on pest-infected areas. In spite of this condition, Mr Newman adds, however, there is still a regular seasonal demand for trees cut in the Provinces of Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia; established dealers in the trade sending representatives to the various producing areas, as a rule, in the summer and autumn to contract for supplies, And just how extensive the trade has become may be seen from the fact that 3,573,642 Canadian Christmas trees, valued at $364,135, were imported into the United States last year, as against 3.681,439 trees, valued at $375,286 in 1934.

The trees thus imported are said to find a market in most of the large American cities of the East that may he reached without prohibitive freight charges. New York, as one The Institute of Practical and would expect, is the main consuming centre; taking annually f.om 400 to 425 cars of from 1.500 to 2,000; while Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other points account for somewhat smaller quantities.
