She argued that it would be beneficial to the silver mining industry in Canada, would be a suitable souvenir and would profit the government-"For every sixty cents worth of silver which is struck off in silver coins the government clears approximately

Mrs. Black was supported by Ma Reid, Liberal, New Westminster, B.C. who for some years has advocated the use of silver as money or as a monetary base.

Mr. Dunning, in replying, gave little encouragement Apparently the dies for coins are made in London. Before the abdication of Edward VIII steps had been taken to have the King's head appear on Canadian silver dollars but none had been sued. Now new dies must be made and Mr. Dunning did not think that they could arrive in time to have Canadian silver dollars in circustian before the coronation. He tollies out, too, that George V silver sins (dollars) are available at all the banks, but are in little demand except in areas interested in the production of silver.

Early in the week, Mr Denton Massey, the popular (as well as good looking) member for Greenwood, one of the Toronto seats, precipitated a very interesting debate on the problem of housing. He made a speech, which revealed a deep interest in the living conditions of the people. He expressed the view that good housing will do much to elimin ate juvenile delinquency, crime and ill health. Quoting from th Bruce Commission report, he showed that juvenile delinquency in good housing areas was 7.9 per 10,000 of the pop ulation, while in areas where housing is totally inadequate and slum con ditions exist the rate stands at 36.6.

On the basis of public health a lone, it is necessary to improve hous ing conditions. He showed that in Glasgow the death rate per 1,000 where families lived in one was 29.9 and where families lived in four rooms, 10.8, or just one-third. And, further, that in Canadian cities, of over 25,000 population there are 95,000 families on relief and of these 9% occupy one room and 11% two

Mr. Massey recommended that sum as large as the relief bill, ap proximately 100 million dollars, spent in housing. Such an nd ture would not require upkers other public works do, but would in time be repaid by the purchaser Housing was an ideal method of put ting money in circulation, since 80% of the cost is used in labor, direct and indirect. Housing and slum clearance would absorb skilled labor, un skilled labor, and would provide fo apprenticeship on a large scale, thus assisting youth.

Mr. Massey admitted that the Dominion government had difficulty in giving such a lead, due to the B.N. A. Act, which allotted property and which discourages building.

Mr. Dunning replied in a very interesting way. The Dominion Housing Act is but a beginning, he admitted, that many useful housing schemes may be fitted. On January first, 1,119 family units had been built under the Housing Act, at a cost of $5,376. 000, and a good deal is being done toencourage the building of lower pric-
