Treatment Eases Pains Of Cancer

Doctor Claims That Intraspinal Injections of Alcohol Aid Its Victims

A new treatment which has proved successful in easing pain in such diseases as cancer, angina pectoris and chronic arthritis, by intraspinal injections of alcohol, was described to the Washington Medical Association by its inventor, Dr. Elias L. Stern of Sydenham Hospital, New

Vitamin B-1 Added

Fundamentally, the effectiveness of the treatment, Dr. Stern explained, is due to the connection of the spinal fluid with the sympathetic nervous system. In experiments on cats, the disintegration of sensory nerves when so treated was clearly shown. It is this effect, he said, that makes the alcohol injections a deadener of

After 12 years of research, Dr. Stern announced that his technique of intraspinal injections of alcohol and Vitamin B-1, had been invariably successful in his last 60 cases. Earlier attempts, while partially successful, had been hindered by complications, in which the size of the dose has proved to be the determining factor.

Primarily a remedy for beri-beri, Vitamin B-1 has proved one of the most potent rejuvenators yet discovered, Dr. Stern said, and curative in many other deficiency diseases. Its use in one case of infantile paralysis proved 25 per cent. effective in restoring mobility, Stern said, and suggested that it was probably effective in halting the disease before the onset of pulmonary paralysis.

Shades of Britain's Sea Dogs-13 sailing ships and not a British vessel among them! All but two of them are Finnish and are owned by one man, Captain Erikson. The other two are Swedish and German. The last race was won by a Fin-
