The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER BY ALFRED BIGGS

Time dries all tears. Don't advertise your good deeds. We generally get what we deserve. Say neither too much nor too little. Advice is the cheapest kind of help. Only a small part of what we learn stays with us. Nature provides strength enough for most burdens. Deeds are greater than words, but thoughts can be greater than both.

Farthing, Montreal Corrupt Growth! "Let us throw out all our dirty linen and get in new and clean linen, and keep it pure and white." Right Rev. John C. Farthing, Lord Bishop of Montreal, a former Rector of Trinity Church, Durham, employed these words in an open letter to all city, provincial and federal political leaders.

EGREMONT ENTERPRISE CO-OPERATIVE MEDICINE, RURAL AND URBAN BY J. A. HANNAM, B. A., M. D.

While the same skill is required to treat patients in the city or on the farm, there are many factors which influence the consideration of co-operative medicine in the two locations, and which may require a different approach.

On the whole rural dwellers are more sociable than the city folk and hospital accommodation varies accordingly. A farmer is usually happier when confined to bed if he has a companion. The city man or woman prefers to be alone.

While distances are greater in the country between people, the cost of living is not so high for the physician. The country doctor can have house, office and other accommodation for a fraction of the cost of an office in the city.

The specialist is more easily available in the city than the country and consequently used more freely, although good roads and the automobile have eliminated this to some extent. Hospitals are less elaborate in design and less expensive to operate in the country.

There is, however, one factor which is not so apparent in the city as in the rural areas and provincial towns and smaller cities. The physician is more intimate with his patients and actual experience indicates that there is more liberal use of the physician's services in rural areas which in the aggregate runs the cost up in rural areas.

The experience of Associated Medical Services, after a short period of operation (10 months) tends to indicate the smaller the towns and more scattered the population, the higher the cost of service, despite the apparent advantages of less expensive services at first sight.

All these factors have to be considered in evaluating the cost of services in rural as compared in the city costs. Associated Medical Services is investigating all these factors in relation to costs and is keeping exact figures and data so when the time arrives to carry co-operative medicine beyond the trial areas already in operation we will be in a position to give the benefit of our experience.

It would be well to wait the result of experience before advancing too rapidly. We might better progress slowly along the lines of actual experience rather than institute a method which will prove disappointing and necessitate changes and adjustments under circumstances which contain all the elements of frustration. Any system must give careful consideration to the peculiar needs of the situation whether it be rural or city.

Graded worship materials will be provided, together with information concerning methods of teaching and organization.

DURHAM SCHOOLS SEND RELIEF BALES

The Durham High School and Public School have sent bales totalling over three hundred pounds consisting chiefly of clothing and books, to their adopted school in the stricken area at Arabela, Saskatchewan. This school finding sufficient clothing for children to attend school but they have far more children in the section of school age than they can accommodate; also their treasury is empty and the teacher's salary in arrears. The Durham Schools have also sent sufficient money to supply the scholars with milk until the middle of April.

As an acknowledgment of kindness shown them, the pupils of Arabela School sent three hand-carved wooden animals painted in natural colors, and this gift is much appreciated by Durham students.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Tiny buds are breaking To show that Spring has come: The birds are to them speaking To spread the news: 'Tis Spring.

Leaves are bursting on the trees, Sunshine now is warmer; Winds are calm and storms do cease For now 'tis Spring: Dear Spring!

The crocus, snowdrops, waking flowers, Blow gently in the breeze: While leaves are dancing in the bowers, To join the song in Spring.

—Teddy.

Hundreds Attend of Late John A.

The funeral service of the late J. A. Graham held in Baptis on Thursday afternoon had friends and acquaintances.

The service was in charge of J. T. Priest whose subject "Life Story" based on the Psalms, "We spend as a tale that is told," is a story of Mr. Graham, he had had all through his many teaching interwoven his character, his principles of temperance, truthfulness and many men in useful positions had been proud to ask the training they had received him, a notable example is the late Dr. John McNeil who was principal and professor in the logical College of McMar- verry, Mr. McNeil being a Mr. Graham at a school to be. The life story has a memory: it yields an influence those who read it in the years; the life story is a pathetic thing about it is, and in spite of the continued sion of funerals, so few people living with Eternity in view life story should have a good and it has a sequel, the bottom of the last page is meaning the end, but the volume one—the next volume never ending story of happiness with God and the an Heaven Mr. Priest concluded poem from an unknown: "What shall I find at the end road when I've said my last by." A favourite hymn had often asked for was all the world to me," a star by Miss Eva Redford. In the service were Rev. Hartley, Kincardine, Rev. T. Charles, Hanover and Rev. Smith, Durham. The Masses three conducted their services in the church and graveside. Mr. Priest conducted private service at the home moderate relatives, before the service.

The floral tributes came South Grey Public School & Association, Lady Grey & Toronto Western Hospital & Durham Baptist Church (Glen- tre Baptist Church, Grey Lodge O. F. 169, Public School staff School students, Public Board, Masonic Lodge A. W. M. No. 396; Memorial Hospital, Durham High School, Cross Society; Public Library and from many personal friends.

These were carried by Masonic brethren forming at the church and cemetery. Remains were laid to rest in cemetery by Dr. J. F. Irwin, John Morrison C. H. Masonic pastmasters.

Friends from a distance and Mrs. W. J. Burgeon, Mr. Perry Mr. Willard Burgeon, Sarnia; Mr. and Mrs. Chesley; Mr. and Mrs. R. Harro; Mr. D. Hopkins, Miss Miss D. Hopkins, Miss Clark and Mrs. M. Clark and Mrs. M. Clark. Many acquaintances were from Hanover, Markdale, Holston and other places.
