IN MEMORIAM

KENNY—in loving memory of a very dear husband and dad, Micheal Kenny, who passed away, November 3, 1938.

God knew that you were suffering He knew you were in pain, He knew you would never get better, In this world again.

He saw the road was getting rough, The hills were hard to climb, So He closed your weary eyelids, And whispered "peace be thine."

You left behind some aching hearts, Who loved you most sincere We never did, we never will, Forget you dad, dear.

When days are dark and friends are few Dear dad, how we think of you, Friends are friends if they are true, But we lost our best friend when we lost you.

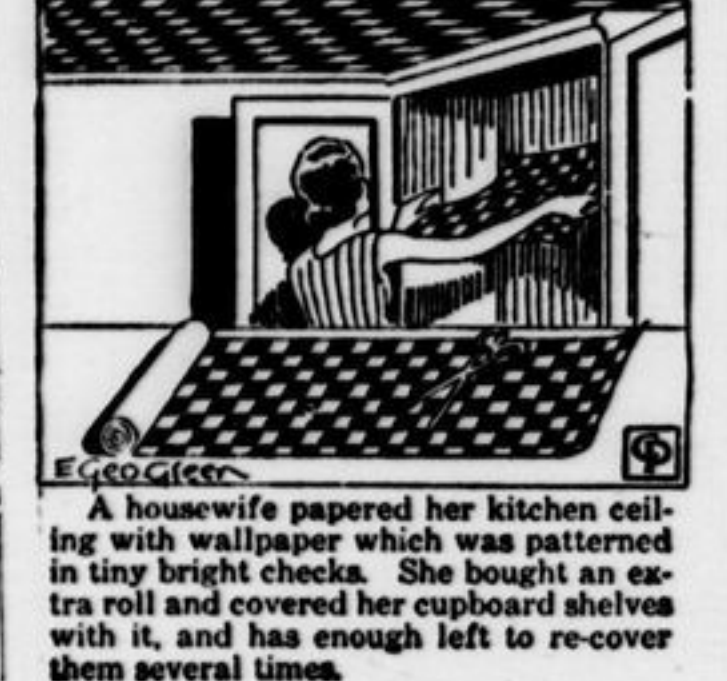

If all this world were ours to give We would give it, yes and more To clasp the hand of our dear dad, And see him smile once more.

To you who have a father, Treasure him with care; You'll never know his value, Till you see his vacant chair.

Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

When the grown-ups of to-day were boys and girls, a quarter to a third of a century ago, the only oranges the boys and girls of the small towns and farms saw were those deposited in the Christmas stocking. Advertising of citrus fruits created a demand that forced better methods of distribution and made possible lower prices. Today citrus fruits are found in practically every small town at practically all seasons of the year. Thanks to advertising, oranges are no longer only a Christmas delicacy.

Wife Preservers

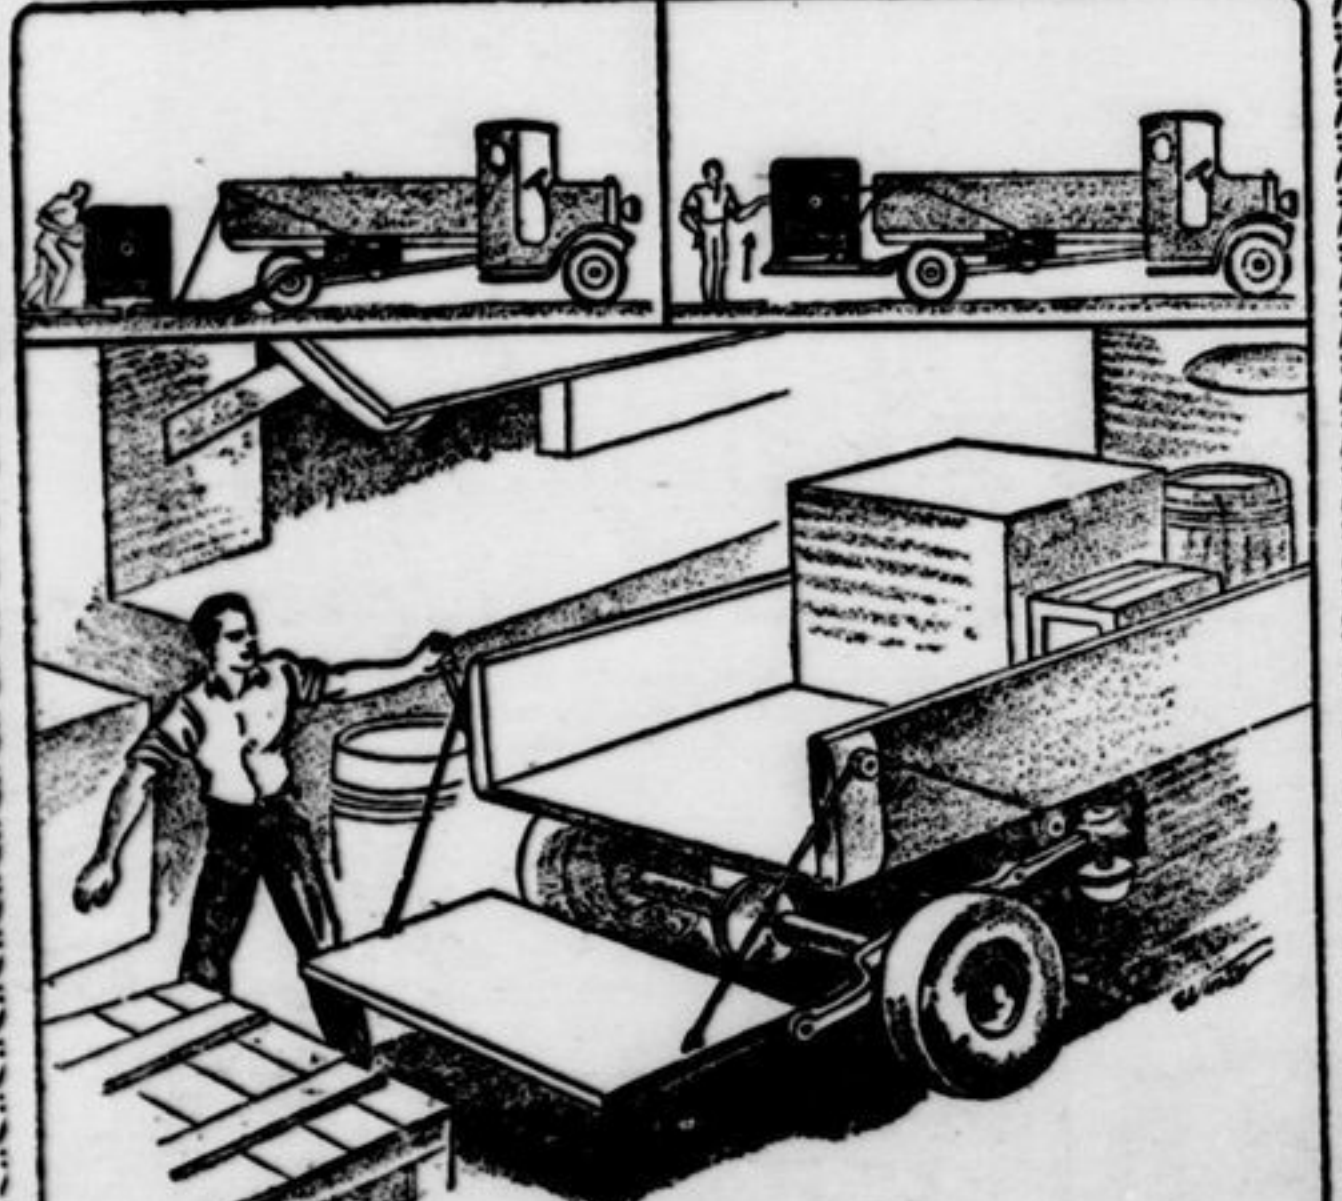

A housewife papered her kitchen ceiling with wallpaper which was patterned in tiny bright checks. She bought an extra roll and covered her cupboard shelves with it, and has enough left to re-cover them several times.

FLYING PRIEST OPENS ARCTIC COMMUNICATIONS

Father Schulte, German flying priest, whose parish is 1,500,000 square miles of Arctic and sub-Arctic wasteland, took off from Toronto recently in the ABOVE airplane on a mission which will link the frozen Arctic with civilization by means of radio-telephone. The flying priest declared that by the end of August, 10 wireless stations extending from Moosonee to Chesterfield Inlet will be in operation. The stations will be for use of missionaries of all denominations and have been paid for by lectures given in the United States by Father Schulte.

THE PIONEERS OF LATONA

Once before, we think, did the "Review" refer to a new book in Durham Library written by a native of Latona, Rev. James Fraser Smith. We have read the book, "Life's Waking Part" and it is a very fine edition and a credit to the author. Now when the eyes of the world are turned to China, this book by a Canadian medical missionary who pioneered in the province of Honan, China, fifty years ago, is of unusual interest. It is not merely a story of missionary enterprise, but a thrilling record of human experience and adventure. The first chapters of the book describe pioneer days in Grey County and more particularly around Latona, where the writer's father played so large a part in tilling the land. Quoting from this book:—

"Among the earliest settlers in this new settlement and near neighbors of the Smiths, were John McIntosh and his wife and family of six boys and three girls; John Jesman; George and John Skene and family; John Halliday and his wife and a brother, Thomas Halliday."

"Each succeeding year new families kept moving in, mostly from Scotland and Ireland. There were Byers, Buchanans, Bellas, Corletts, Colemans, Campbells, Gillans, Griffans, Ledinghams, Muldoons, Morrises, Murrays, McIntoshs, McDonalds, McClunges, O'Maras, Priels, Riddells, Robertsons, Vasays, and numbers of others. But whether Irish or Scots, Protestant or Roman Catholic, neither nationality or religion made any difference when help was needed, or when sickness or sorrow invaded a neighbor's home."

"It was a lot of hard work taking the thing apart and then hauling it up to the top piece by piece, and putting it together again, but it was worth it," he laughed. "Best of it was, the old man didn't know anything about it until morning. Then you should have heard him rave."

People in Durham District still talk of it, he mused. And tic-tacs were another joy to boys of those days, which seem now to be taboo, he said. "It was lots of fun to stick one of those things in some old girl's window and then get across the street in a bush and let it tap. Sometimes they'd scream," he smiled.

But Hallowe'en fun in those days was never malicious. "We didn't go around asking for things, we just had lots of fun without doing any one any harm, he said.

Mrs James Kerwin, of Chicago, Illinois, recently got a divorce from her husband, alleging that he threw firecrackers at her on the fourth of July, fired a turkey at her on Thanksgiving Day, and when Christmas arrived he flogged her with the Christmas tree.—Fact Digest.

It at least has to be admitted that he was enthusiastic in his celebration of anniversaries.

Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, premier of Ontario, and the Prov'l Secretary, Hon. Harry Nixon, were callers on Editor Wm. MacDonald of Chesley, en route to Warton, where they were guest speakers at a banquet of the Georgian Bay Tourist Association. While the present Premier was a mere boy during the active parliamentary years of Mr MacDonald in Toronto, still a Liberal of the Chesley vintage is persona grata with the leaders of the present day.

A FACT A WEEK ABOUT CANADA

CANADA'S NEWEST HIGHWAY

A new road is being driven through the Rockies and is being paid for by 85,000 private residents in the Peace River area of Alberta. It will link their land with the Pacific Coast and give them a new outlet for their products. Without any assistance from Governments or any outside source, they raised a public subscription, using such means as dances, shows and whist drives, and now they are carving their way through the great barrier from Rio Grande in Alberta to Prince George in British Columbia, where a direct highway already exists over the famous Cariboo Trail to Vancouver.

The story of this great enterprise has as its first chapter the disappointment of a farmer, Alexander Menckman, who, started ranching in the Peace River area, but gave it up because of the serious handicap of lack of transport. He returned to his original task of trapping, and in 1922, while operating in the mountains south-east of Rio Grande, he found himself, rather to his own surprise, on the other side of the Rocky Mountains, having discovered a hitherto unknown pass. The ascent had been gradual and easy, the trail standing only 8,550 feet above sea level at its highest point. Actually what he had discovered was the easiest and lowest pass through the Rocky Mountains north of Montana. Some, indeed, claim it is the easiest pass north of Panama.

Now Menckman is again at work with pick and shovel, and although sixty-seven years of age, is one of an army which is making his dream come true.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

Last week's issue of the Walker-Herald-Times had the best yet for long sentences and if you are a good grammatician, we stump you to analyze same. A. W. Wesley, editor, is as fluent with the pen as Lloyd George with his tongue and any person who can describe a car driver's shortcomings better in one breath, so to speak, had better try it for themselves. Here it is: "Robert Wilson, the well-known cattle dealer of Ripley, while returning home from the Lucknow Fair on the night of September 30th, via the county highway leading to Kinlo's village, sideswiped a car driven by Lloyd McDougall, which was coming towards him well over on his own side of the road, damaging it to the extent of $26, and continuing on his course without stopping, crashed almost head-on into a car driven by Wilbur Hodgkinson blacksmith of Kinlough, and owned by his father, inflicting damages to this machine of nearly $300, completely wrecking Wilson's own machine, which stopped over on the highway following the impact, with the driver submerged in the wreckage, from which he was removed in a badly injured condition to the Wingham hospital, was acquitted on a drunk charge laid by Constable McClellis of Walkerton who was called to the scene and investigated, when the matter came up for hearing in Magistrate Walker's court in Walkerton on Tuesday last."

HALLOWE'EN MEMORIES

(From Toronto Star) Hallowe'en is a hallowed night for many Torontonians. For then their thoughts go back to their childhood and their relive their pranks.

Take Col. Fraser Hunter M. P. P for instance. One of the proudest moments in his life was when he and his gang had finally assembled a farmer's wagon on top of a barn, some two-score years ago.

"It was a lot of hard work taking the thing apart and then hauling it up to the top piece by piece, and putting it together again, but it was worth it," he laughed. "Best of it was, the old man didn't know anything about it until morning. Then you should have heard him rave."

This community received a terrible shock on Sunday when word passed around that Mrs John Peglo (nee Martha Kaufman) had died early that morning in Owen Sound hospital where she was taken only the evening before for treatment, following an operation she underwent two weeks ago for gall trouble, and from which she apparently was making a good recovery. However on Friday she took a turn for the worse and in spite of every care doctors and nurses could give, she passed away shortly after six o'clock Sunday morning.

Martha was the youngest daughter of Mrs Kaufman and the late John Kaufman and had she lived until Monday, would have reached her twenty-eighth birthday. Seven years ago last February she was united in marriage to Mr John Peglo of Elderside township, who with a little son Clifford, five years old, and her mother, five sisters and seven brothers is left to mourn the loss of their dear one. The funeral was held Tuesday from her late home to Chesley cemetery and she was laid to rest beside a wee son who died in infancy. The heartfelt sympathy of this entire community, in which deceased spent all her childhood, goes out to all the bereaved ones.
