A FACT A WEEK ABOUT CANADA

CANADIAN SILK STOCKINGS FOR FOREIGN LEGS

It is a far cry from the cocoon which the tiny silkworm so carefully spins in the trays of the Japanese farmer to the stocking bag of the Canadian mill, but still further is the trip these delicate strands of silk must take when they go through mills in Canada, and are sent to South Africa, or New Zealand, for example.

Fifteen years ago there were few in Canada who could afford the luxury of silk stockings at $3.00 a pair. Canadian mills started to make them, and the growth of this new branch of the textile industry is a romance of appreciation of the in-born skill and dexterity of Canadian textile workers to the making of a better stocking within reach of all.

What was then a luxury, produced in small quantity at a high price, is now an adornment which Canadian women buy at 75 cents or less and insist is a necessity. When it is remembered that in 1926 Canada made only about 200,000 dozens of silk stockings, the present output is a amazing. The Canadian production in 1936 was 2,347,000 dozen pairs which is over 56 million stockings.

Exports in 1937 were 487,000 dozen pair over 11 million stockings which means that the stockings purchased in every corner of the globe helped to provide employment for the concentrated ability of Canadian textile craftsmen in turning out stockings to please not only the discerning "la Canadienne" but the dusky miss of India or Egypt.

These apparent gains were not the only benefits derived from the improved facilities for travel, however. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that $12,000,000 was spent by 1938's tourists in New Brunswick, and more important still, an item of $611,695 for direct relief in 1935 has disappeared entirely from the public accounts; due to the employment being given directly through road construction, and to the work that has been created indirectly, as a result, there is said to be no need today for any expenditure for this purpose.

New Brunswick has accordingly apparently solved the most difficult problem of the times, and in doing so is creating in a modern highway system a valuable asset that will more than pay for itself in a comparative short time. The same thing could be done in every province; construction either of highways or necessary buildings could be used to provide a job for every employable man, and in the final analysis, such procedure would not prove any more costly than the current disastrous policy of direct relief.—Ev.

While hunting in the woods east of the Rocky, a few weeks ago, Mulvey Cowan and Thos. Morton laid low a squirrel, which in all respects was much greater proportioned than the ordinary. Taking it to Mr. Chris Firth for examination and stuffing, he pronounced it to be a Tennessee squirrel, one he had never before seen or heard of in this part of the country.

The line-ups were:

V. Elvidge point P. Daniels
Geo. Catton cover point H. Vollett
Johnston Allen rover Cald. Marshall

HARVEST LEMON CROP Solomon's greenhouse has harvested its annual lemon "crop." The crop this year constitutes one mammoth lemon, measuring upwards to 12 inches in circumference. It's the size of a small grapefruit. There are some three or four more lemons of smaller size on this hothouse "tree", which grows in a pot, and is less than three feet in height. An orange tree in the same greenhouse is also producing small oranges this year, one of which has matured and ripened. Another curio is a fig tree, that bore fruit, but which dropped off before ripening.—Lucknow Sentinel.

Pope Pius XI and Canadian Rockies

In his earlier days the late Pope Pius XI achieved considerable fame as a mountaineer and scaled most of the well-known Alpine peaks. After his accession to the Papal Throne he one day told a party of Canadians visiting in Rome that he had always been interested in the Canadian Rockies and that at one time he had hoped to visit them. There were several mountains there, he said that he would very much have liked to climb.

The fates directed his path to other heights culminating in the Chair of St. Peter, but the story was brought back to Canada and at the direction of Sir Edward Beatty a collection of photographs of the Rockies was bound together in a handsome portfolio of white calf-skin and presented to His Holiness with the compliments of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Sir Edward received a most courteous and kindly acknowledgment which is now preserved in the Company's archives.
