Waste Is Cited Of Wood Pulp

Fifty Per Cent is Said to go to Waste - Textile Research Urged to Offset This Loss

The fact that fifty per cent, of the wood that is used for the production of sulphite pulp goes to waste indicates the direction which research work in the textile industry should take, Professor H. Hibbert, of McGill University, declared last week.

Professor Hibbert said that the production of synthetic fibres had jumped from 26,000,000 pounds in 1913 to 1,100,000,000 pounds in 1938, so that more than a million tons of wood was used for raw material. Canada was fortunate in having suitable timber resources for conversion into sulphite pulp to be shipped to yarn manufacturers all over the world, and progress was being made to make the production more efficient.

Ina Claire's choice of a hat to be worn with a tailored suit is a handwoven turban of tri-colored velvet and crepe. Of two-toned blue with beige intertwined, it is topped by a brilliantly plumaged bird in electric blue. Worn with the new short brushed-up bob, the tiny hat is a forecast of the season's millinery trend. Miss Claire is renewing her screen career in "I Take This Woman", co-starring Hedy Lamarr and Spencer Tracy.

Warn Against Nail-Chewers

Manicurists Contend They Are Nervous and Irritable People

Salt Lake City manicurists came forth this week with the results of their study of the fingernail-chewing male and concluded that marriage with him-well, just wasn't worth the risk.

The study, as published in a Salt Lake City newspayer, concluded: Don't trust a woman with a triangle-shaped fingernail, Don't expect a man with long. slim fingernails to be a "good pro-Don't marry a fingernail-chewer.

The fingernail-chewer, declared Clea Warr, is "high strung, nervous and irritable and generally speaking it's easier to get along with a buzz saw."

Fay Johnson said women with triangle-shaped nails can't keep secrets; men with long slender pails are gifted in artistic lines but "they just don't bring home the bacon."

Eleven Human "Guinea Pigs" Submit to Tests Aboard A Flying Laboratory—Oxygen Equipment Successful

A flying laboratory with eleven auman guinea pigs aboard descended from the substratosphere last week to report complete success in a test of newly developed oxyten equipment for airline passengers.

The Northwest Airlines transport, carrying one woman and five Mayo Clinic doctors among its passengers, landed at Boston Airport last week. It had completed in four hours and 50 minutes an 1,100-mile non-stop flight from Minneapolis at altitudes ranging from 15,500 to 23,000 feet. The twin-motored craft's average speed was 250 miles an hour. A full-course chicken dinner served nearly four miles in the air, was eaten by the fliers-still wearing their exygen masks-with almost as much comfort as though they were in their own homes. The new oxygen device is a small face mask which covers the nose but leaves the mouth free. Oxygen is breathed through the nose and exhaled carbon dioxide is forced into a rubber bulb below the mask.

Parliamentary Doings With Ontario's Legislators,

BY BEDY

The Ontario Legislature was a haunted House last week when the ghosts of that East Hastings byelection (December, 1936) walked again things thought long decently dead were aired by Premier Hepburn and Opposition Leader Drew during the most heated interchange of the session something about Colonel Drew's having referred to (so they said) the French-Canadians as "a defeated race".

What started these grave-digging operations was a speech by the Liberal Member for Cochrane North, J. A. Habel (French-speaking), who rose to the defence of his own people and accused certain "gang" members of trying to promote disunity in this country In the melee which ensued, insulting words were flung across the floor of the House, and the Speaker had all but to knock the heads of the two party leaders together to restore order.

Speaking of deaths and burials and such, brings us to a serious piece of legislation just introduced, a Bill to amend the Coroner's Act which would give the Attorney-General power to order an inquest in cases where a body has been removed from Ontario This provision is to be retroactive, with the result that Mr. Conant would have power to order an inquest in the sensational Sidley will Criticism of the Bill by the Opposition centred around the making of "a fishing expendition" out of each inquest, designed to injure the good name of deceased persons . . . the Attorney-General would reduce the number of apparently needless inquests, declaring that the average inquest costs about $60, and that an autopsy adds $15 to $20 to the costs . . . Mr. Croll of Windsor on the other hand considers inquests "a safety valve", helping to ally the fears of families of deceased people.

Hospitalization of mentally ill persons, the Premier claims, is one of the greatest problems in Ontario at the present time . . . only one out of five persons committed to an institution has a chance to recover, he says . . . After Ontario's three new hospitals are completed, we find, they will serve to relieve only the pressure existing in the other institutions, as the average increase in resident "mental" patients in Ontario every year is 500 . . . insane asylum population increased in the province 16.2 per cent. between 1932 and 1936, or 4 per cent. per year ... until now there are over 15.-000 in mental institutions building more hospitals for the mentally ill is like locking the stable door after the horse is gone Time to catch people is before they go insane Negatively, build more hospitals; positively. sterilize the unfit and make it possible for people to live well-rounded out, saner lives.

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario paid over to the province at the end of March $10,500,000 on account of profits and permits total legal sales in Ontario of beer, wine and spirits soared to $51,-005,688 during the year ending Mar. 31, an increase of 10.6% over the previous year the ten and one-half million dollars is being used to help balance Ontario's bud-

Which way the wind blows: public reaction to the suggested raising of the tax on gasoline is universally unfavorable, rural districts being particularly opposed ... individual farmers could not expect to gain to the same extent as urban residents through a sharing of the increase with municipalities.

An important amendment to Ontario's Mining Act provides for annual medical inspections to be given to miners engaged in dust occupations it also hits at highgrading (boot-legging of gold).

We'll talk about the new Budget next week.

U. S. Army Officials Foreses Early Achievement Following Tests

Speed of 500 miles an hour in the air, it developed this week, apparently will be achieved soon. At Wright Field, the United States Army's test laboratory for new types of warplanes, officers said that Lieutenant Ben Kelsey. the pilot who crashed on February 11 in a new twin-motor pursuit

U.S. Wheat Being Milled In Ontario

Ottawa Giving Consideration to Matter; Makes it Hard for Farmers of This Province

Trade Minister Euler told the House of Commons at Ottawa last week that the Government was giving consideration to the situation created by the inflow of American wheat into Eastern Canada, displacing Ontario-grown wheat.

There was no doubt some wheat was coming in from the United States and being milled in Ontario, and possibly some was being exported, he said. These importations were coming in under the law as it stands at present.

"I may admit, however, that the situation is giving some concern to the Government, but at the moment I can only say that it is receiving consideration," the Minis ter said.

Conservative Leader Manion drew the Government's attention to the question when he reported Ontario farmers finding it impossible to sell their wheat through usual channels because 600,000 bushels of "subsidized American wheat" had been brought into Ontario for use by certain Ontario flour mills.

Dog Days

Leaving his dog locked in the car one day last week, Bob Keith, of Disney, Okla., went about his business. The dog brushed against the emergency brake and released it; the car coasted down an incline, finally smashing into a store. Customers broke down the store door in their rush for freedom-and the dog bit the workman who released him.

Dwarf Fruit Trees Growing In Favor

Claiming Important Places Is Smaller Orchards of States

Dwarf varieties of fruit trees are claiming an important place in the smaller orchards of New York state, Prof. H. B. Tukey, Ph.D. head of the Geneva, N.Y., experimental station, told a gathering of fruit men in the armories, Strathroy, Ont., last week.

Prof. Tukey was the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the H. C. Downham Nurseries of Strathroy attended by 100 firm representatives and agricultural authorities of the district.

For Closer Planting The New York expert told that because of the closer planting in small orchards the dwarf varieties were now favored by the smaller grower. They are no longer a novelty but must be considered an advance in fruit growing.

Prof. Tukey told of the progress in fruit growing in his state where he said two Canadian originations, the McIntosh Red and the Mc-Cowen, the latter coming from the Ottawa experimental station, were the most favored varieties.
