Inspiring Services for Knox Anniversary

With Dr. Archer Wallace, editor of the United Church Publications, of Toronto as special speaker, and fine weather prevailing, large congregations attended both Anniversary services at Knox Church on Sunday.

In the morning every seat in the large auditorium was filled. Rev. W. H. Smith, the pastor, introduced Dr. Wallace, who delivered thoughtful, forceful messages, with many a story or experience to illustrate. He spoke on the value of public worship. The sanctuary gives us a new standard of value, and a new point of view. Life is to be measured by service rather than by acquisition. Jesus called 12 Galileans, fishermen and others, the salt of the earth. The great are the humble in the realm of spiritual character. Religion delivers us from the fear of life and of death; it enables us to live better; it is God's way of making people good.

In the evening, Dr. Wallace took for his text, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." God, he assured would not only judge us by what we had accomplished, but by our desires.

There was also a splendid service of praise, the soloist for the day being Mr. Harold Bruin of Owen Sound. His fine baritone was heard to advantage in "How lovely are Thy dwellings"; "Peace I leave with you"; "The Lord is my Shepherd"; and "Teach me to Pray." A full choir also rendered a beautiful anthem at each service. "Let Mount Zion rejoice" and "King of Glorious," solo parts being taken by Mrs. I. B. Sharpe, Mrs. C. McGirr and Miss N. Gagnon.

At Sunday School in the morning, Dr. Wallace held the rapt attention of the 150 scholars and teachers, as he graphically pictured the great Sunday School enrolment in the United Church of Canada, and impressed the importance of regular attendance. He offered four of his autographed books as prizes, to be awarded as the Supt sees fit.

Many beautiful flowers adorned the church. New cork linoleum has been laid in aisles, stairs and vestibule and new broadloom carpet on the platform. These are the gift of the Women's Association, and in use for the first time, they enhanced the quietness and dignity of the services.

Monday evening Dr. Wallace gave his famed illustrated travelogue, "A Tale of Two Cities." These cities were London, England and New York. The great sights and buildings from early days to the present were profusely shown and aptly described, with many a humorous comment. The speaker is well posted on both cities and speaks from an observant personal knowledge.

JOHN M. CAMPBELL

The death occurred suddenly Monday afternoon, June 12th at the family residence, 2247 Rae St., Regina, of John M. Campbell, pioneer resident of Lumsden district. He was born in Ayr, Scotland, in 1853. Mr. Campbell came to Canada in 1855 with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Quintin Campbell to Durham.

He was predeceased by three brothers and four sisters.

A sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret (Matthew) Campbell, resides at Durham, Ontario.

He came West in 1881 and settled permanently at Forest, Sask., in 1889. He was secretary of Forest district for over 20 years and also secretary of Forest rural telephones.

Feick Fined for Reckless Driving

Found guilty of driving recklessly and in a manner dangerous to the public, Henry Feick, Normanby Township farmer, was fined $25.00 or an alternative 30 days in jail, as a result of the accident on Highway 6 on November 20th, 1938, as a result of which William Evans of Mount Forest, lost his life. His Honor, Judge G. W. McRley, in passing sentence, stated that he did not hold Feick mainly to blame in the action and that under the former law, he would have dismissed the charge; however, under the new section, driving in a manner that was dangerous to the public constituted an offence and as Feick, admittedly had failed to stop at the intersection of Township Road 8, Normanby, and Highway 6, he was guilty of the offence.

The accident occurred about 11.30 a. m. on Sunday, November 20th, 1938, when the car driven by William Evans, with his wife and Elwin Blythe as passengers, travelling north on Highway 6, crashed into the machine driven by Henry Feick, in which were his wife and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Cochrane.

Evidence showed that Feick had failed to bring his car to a stop before coming out onto the highway from the west, although he had stopped before the accident. Evans, according to witnesses who had been in the car with him, had been driving between 45 and 50 miles per hour, and was over on the left hand side of the pavement, rounding a curve at this point. His machine struck the Feick car at the right front wheel, spinning it around and sending it into the ditch. The Evans car had veered off to the right clipped several posts, and overturned into a deep ditch, the driver hurled free.

Campbell Grant of Walkerton was acting for the accused, and the passengers of both cars, none of whom had been seriously injured in the crash, were called to stand in evidence. Evidence of Provincial police and other officers who had investigated was also heard.

In passing sentence, His Honor declared that he did not feel that the accused had been criminal, but that he had been brought up in the horse and buggy days when people did not have to stop at intersections. However, he declared, this was no longer the case, and accidents resulting from careless disregard for the law must stop. There had been too many instances of people being killed in highway accidents particularly in this province, and for that reason, the law had been tightened. Ignorance of the law was no excuse.

Evidence of the defence to the effect that cars parked at a service station south of the intersection, had blocked Feick's view of the highway, and made it necessary for him to proceed six feet onto the highway before stopping in order to see approaching traffic. However the judge ruled that there was no excuse for this not stopping where he was supposed to have stopped.

He felt, however, that the main cause of the accident had been excessive speed on the part of the deceased, and held that Evans had had the last possible chance to avoid a crash.

Improving Exhibition Grounds.

Some eighteen of the officers and members of Durham Agricultural Society held a bee on the fall fair grounds Tuesday, demolishing the old poultry building and cattle sheds, and putting in new tie posts for the stock below the hill. All stock will henceforth be shown on lower grounds and a new poultry house erected, all in keeping with suggestions from headquarters.

Westminster United Church, Regina, conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. D. MacKenzie. Interment was made in the family plot in Regina cemetery. The many beautiful floral tributes marked the high esteem in which the deceased was held.
