"Away to The Canadian Rockies"

A travel literature in the latest Brinley "Away" book—"Away to The Canadian Rockies and British Columbia"—by Gordon Brinley, with illustrations by her artistic husband, Putnam Brinley.

Drawn to Western Canada by a booklet on the pleasures enjoyed by the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, the "Travelling Brinleys" spent an entire summer in the pursuit of happiness—and of notes and illustrations for an addition to their popular series of travel books.

In her happy, lucid style, Gordon Brinley, the writer, tells of their visit to Calgary to see the another vivid countryside and excellent fishing in the Vancouver Island salmon runs.

The two adventure-loving Americans have a large following of readers who will see the Canadian West through their eyes, attracted by the charming drawings by Mr. Brinley, the blithe and readable text by Mrs. Brinley, and the definite practical information they incorporate in their book for those who would follow in their footsteps.

CONSERVATIVES HAVE YET NO CANDIDATE DEFINITELY OUT

Friday of this week will see the Conservative convention for Grey-Bruce held in Hanover, and while it is altogether probable that a candidate will be definitely placed in the field, no one as far as we can learn, is striving for the nomination, or has announced their candidature.

In addition to those named in the Review two weeks ago as prospective candidates, the name of John Grierson, shipper, is mentioned, while last week the Hanover Post suggested a new name in Robert Bigham, ex-reeve of that town, who is well known throughout the Western portion of the Riding, after years of antineering. It is said Walkerton and Chesley will each have a nominee but whether they will go to the ballot, is another question. Reeve Aust in Ball and Carl Knechtel of Hanover are two others mentioned.

Quite a number of electors have been urging Mayor Allan Bell of town to allow his name to stand on Friday. He is well-known and centrally located in the riding, having been a resident of Durham and vicinity all his life. He would make a strong candidate, but as far as we are aware, he has made no decision or effort to seek the nomination.

Ex-warden Howard McCauley of Flesherton, who has been considered a likely contestant, is we have recently been informed, unlikely to stand.

Whoever is named will have no smooth path to travel, as Miss Macphail appears yet to be strongly entrenched, and W. E. Harris, the Liberal candidate, is actively getting acquainted throughout this large riding, and is going to poll a big vote. If the election comes in mid-October, as hinted, Grey-Bruce will see a lively two months politically, preceding it.

WHAT TOWN EXPECTS

FROM COUNTRY

(High River Times)

A few weeks ago this paper had an editorial on what the farmer expects from his district town. This was widely reproduced in other papers, giving the farm viewpoint quite an amount of publicity. It has been suggested that in order to make the perfect whole, we should discuss what the town desires or expects from the surrounding countryside.

In order to provide the facilities and services which farm people appreciate, the town must have reasonable security of the country trade. It has a right to expect patronage, if for no other reason than that farm values are enhanced by proximity to a good town. It makes the rural area more desirable and becomes a financial asset.

An instance in this district illustrates the point. A farmer, desiring to sell his land, advertised it, placing great emphasis on the town near which the land was located, and playing up the facilities of the town. As a direct result of the services the town provided, he sold his land for $10.00 an acre more than he would otherwise have obtained. Yet ironically, this man never patronized the town which he used for reference and "boost" in his ad. He did all his buying in the city but brazenly took advantage in his ad. of the business centre which other more loyal farmers and townspeople had created. Considering that he had made no contribution to the upkeep of the town, he must surely have felt some guilt. If other rural residents had followed his practice there would have been no town.

One often hears the argument, "I owe nothing to local dealers. I buy where I like." That is a false and short-sighted view. We are all interdependent, as individuals and as groups of a community. The more patronage a town enjoys from the surrounding district, the better facilities it can provide. It will have better schools, better churches, better professional services of every type. The stores will be able to increase stock and carry better stock. More expert mechanics will be available. Sports and recreational outlets will flourish and the town in its material aspects, its streets and homes will be more attractive.

In these days of easy travel, when education, hospitalization and so on are becoming increasingly centralized, it is very important to the farm population that have had a good town near at hand. When children reach high school age and must leave home it is a great advantage to have them within easy reach where they can have a fair measure of home oversight.

If it is not out of place one might mention also a town facility, very very greatly appreciated by rural residents, the cemetery. This last resting place is kept beautiful, largely by town ratepayers. There are few people either in town or country who have not some link with the local cemetery and value the care which is being given.

When people who believe they owe the home town nothing, make out a substantial money order to some mail order house with which they deal, they should ask themselves "What do these dealers mean to this community? Do they help in paying the taxes which keeps schools and hospitals functioning, do they help support our church, build up our sports, assist in our charities, contribute to our community halls or other rural projects, are they the people with whom I am likely to have any social relationship, or on whom I could depend for one kindly gesture in time of misfortune?" More than that, they could ask themselves if they would ever expect to get the credit which they have asked for and received from the home dealer.

It is obvious that the farmer who does most of his dealing in town gets most out of the town. Not only through the consideration given to a steady customer but in more intangible ways. His loyalty is appreciated by townspeople, and he feels at home in the town. He feels that the streets and the parks, and all the facilities are partly his because he has helped to make them possible. It is in very fact "his town." This is as it should be. Country people have a many-sided investment in their home town. Its prosperity and progressiveness is merely a reflection of the goodwill, loyalty and progressiveness of the farm people around it.

When the Wise Man said long ago that "wine is a mocker" he did not realize that a modern auto driver would drink wine and imagine that he became a better driver—and the end might be a speedy death. Wine is still a deceiver and will always be such until the end of time.

SUNNYVIEW WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Sunnyview W. I. held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Norman McDonald, with 35 members and visitors present. Mrs. J. Petty was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Wm. Derby read the Scripture.

Roll call was responded to by "a place that I have visited," after which there was community singing. Miss Helen Milligan gave a very interesting paper on the "Life and poems of Pauline Johnston. Mrs. Dugan also gave a brief talk on her work as supervisor at Gilbert Hall, Flint Mich, a school for deaf children. Both were much enjoyed by all. A Question Drawer was taken, and the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. McDonald and assistants served lunch.

Roman Braun Lucky to Escape in Plane Crash

Roman Braun, manager of Peterborough Air Services, formerly chauffeur for Dr. D. Jamieson in Durham for several years, escaped with only a shaking-up and Wm. Hodges, a Toronto pilot, suffered facial cuts and head bruises, when the cabin section in which they were flying, crashed eight miles north of Peterborough on Monday.

Although the machine was practically demolished, it did not take fire. The two men were taking off in the machine from Chemung Lake and, according to Braun, it is believed a downward air current caught the plane and forced it to the centre of a field about two hundred yards from the water's edge.

Jack Record and a Mr. Turner of Peterborough came close to being struck by the machine as it started down.

"It wasn't up very high and I thought it was surely going to hit us. When it got past us, it just missed a binder and crashed in Edward O'Donoghue's field."

The two men were helped from the machine and were given first aid, after which Hodges was brought to Peterborough.

Stricter Enforcement of Highway Traffic Laws

Demanding even more rigid enforcement of Ontario's highway traffic laws than now obtains, Attorney-General Conant Saturday issued instructions whereby Provincial motorcycle police will be held to a minimum of court attendance in order that they may spend as much time as possible in actual patrol of the roads.

"There must be more vigorous enforcement of our traffic laws," Mr. Conant declared. "Serious and even fatal accidents are all too frequent. In most cases they are entirely avoidable. The work of every traffic officer will be closely watched in the future with more intensive inspection. Traffic law violations will not be tolerated. Guilty persons will be aggressively prosecuted. Traffic officers who fail in their duties will be severely dealt with."

The attorney-general coupled this warning to the police with a challenge to the municipalities which do their own policing. "I hope that there also will be a more rigid enforcement of traffic laws there also" he said.

"They say that last year's wheat crop has never been beaten." "No," replied the wit, "but it has been threshed."

Old Gentleman: "You're an honest boy, but it was a $10 bill I dropped, not ten ones."

Youngster: "I know, mister, but the last time I found a $10 bill the man didn't have any change."

A FACT A WEEK ABOUT CANADA

$$$ BILLS IN CIRCULATION

Last year about 54 million new bills were issued to the public by the Bank of Canada, and more than 210 million have issued since the smaller sized bank bills same into use in 1935.

That gives some idea of the number of bills required to satisfy the commercial needs of a country of over eleven million population.

These bills range in value as follows: $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $100, $500, and $1000. The authorities keep close track of the hands into which the $1000 bills fall. It is the highest denomination issued.

We have practically no gold currency in Canada today and the silver dollar is comparatively rarely used. As a matter of fact our monetary system has fewer units in it than formerly. We used to have a $4 bill which gave a lot of trouble, for counterfeiters were able to cheat the public sometimes by raising a $1 bill to $4. The $4 bill became a nuisance.

We used to have silver coinage at so. There was a 20 cent piece which created confusion occasionally. Silver dollars, or "cart wheels", as they were called were used regularly. However, both our coinage and billage are now more simplified.

A popular bill in past years was the 25 cent denomination. We call them "shin plasters" and know them by that name. They were very handy for mailing, and quite frequently even a "shin plaster" will come into the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a letter to pay for some publication.
