The shops are selling - a jeweled bib of colored stones with a fringe of make-believe pearls endmulti-colored tear drops. This little number ties on with the long, slender tasseled gilt cords. Very chi-chi but fine for a severely plain black crepe dress.

Velveteen refers with curved waistline in back and fullness also aft. Comes in three shades-black, brown and wine.

Jersey Again

Fur coats! With high, wide and handsome shoulders; slightly flared skirts, or skirts with back fullness and slim line in front. Sleeves have no cuffs and are usually wide for sports; tight fitting for dress type coats.

For town wear, dotted crepe shirtmaker frocks with turban and bag to match.

Haircuts. Even the glamor girls are taking their tresses to the salons and having them cut inch by indi. Every few weeks another inch comes off, so by fall the length of the bob should be pretty well stabilized.

From Your Head To Your Toes

There's Something New In the

Fashions For Fall

The shoulders on the new fall dresses are almost peaked in appearance. Necklines are uniformly high and when a V-shape does crop into a dress, it is decidedly only a suggested V. Skirts remain very short. While skirts still have some front fullness winter should find a slimmer front silhouette with all fullness aft.

Sleeve and Waistline Lengths

Long and bracelet length sleeves are especially important. Waistlines are creeping downward very slowly - a sad state of affairs for the small woman!

Colors for fall are not exciting as yet-perhaps a result of the terrific furore color created last fall. Remember the violets, reds, etc? This year black, tree-bark brown, wine red, grayed blues and a green with olive overtones. In fact, these colors almost shriek for velvets. And by the way what has happened to velvet as an afternoon dress fabric? Time was when a ga wouldn't start her fall season, until she had purchased her Sunday best velvet. Millinery is far from classic once again we shall have "odd" hats, but this time with a difference. Most hats will fit snugly at the back; many hide the centre hairline at the nape of the neck and when they don't a snood does the trick. The high postillon crown on a brim which is reminiscent of the homburgs shown in the spring is being shown and worn in New York. There are few low crowned hats; we doubt whether the twoinch crown will be shown when the season gets into full swing.

High Shoe Vamps Shoes are closed from stem to stern so good-bye to the ciip-clop of open toe and heel trappings. The movement here is high in the front - to give balance no doubt to an expanse of limb.

Newest in the gamut of greens are soft, dark reseda and mossy

CHAPTER III

She Didn't Fall How long she knelt there on the cold ground beside Amy's body, Cilly did not know. She did not hear the innumerable cries and questions of her neighbors; she did not see the crowd slowly gathering—the crowd of half-awakened men and women in all stages of midnight undress. It seemed as if the world had suddenly begun to spin in a crazy, fast-motion kaleidoscope, and she would soon awaken to sanity. Endless seconds passed into three short minutes, and a radio police car drove up to the door. Two officers stepped out. Half a dozen people in the crowd spoke at once, eager to tell his own version of the accident. 'She fell from the roof, officer. She felt herself going and screamed." . . . "She didn't fall. She jumped. She screamed first and then jumped. I saw it." . . . "No, she didn't. She fell out of a window. I saw her."

The officers bent over the body. They looked at each other and nodded in solemn significance. The older of the two lifted Cilly to her

"I'm Afraid That's She's Dead" "The girl was a relative of

Women Try Everything

Feminine Meat Cutter In Mari-

A news brief from Reserve reports that a woman acted as a substitute meat cutter in the co-operative store there recently. The regular meat cutter was absent because of illness and a woman who learned the trade in Scotland took charge in his place.

It is somewhat unusual to see a woman presiding at the chopping block of a meat department. That is one of the few jobs which seem to remain pretty well in the hands of men, but perhaps meat cutting, like so many other occupations, is a field which women are invading.

Must Be Careful Women are efficient in many jobs and it may be that trained women meat cutters are as good or better than the men.

But if women meat cutters are as careless of personal safety as some of the housewives who attempt to show their husbands how a roast should be carved, one shudders to think what will happen in the butcher shop.

To remove the smell of paint, stand a pail of water in the room for several hours. Add a couple of sliced onions to the water, and the smell of the paint will be absorbed more quickly.

CANNING THAT IS DIFFERENT

Each year every homemaker in making the inventory of the fruit, vegetable and pickle store room, usually has about the same supply appealing to her own household for its own individual needs. However, who is there amongst us who does not delight in having or trying something just a little different by way of a variety?

The first three recipes, which I am offering you this week originated in France where "Potted Jams" are a necessity rather than a variety. The yellow tomato one came from our "neighbors to the South of us" who do many interesting things with the yellow tomato, which is altogether too uncommon in our country. There is nothing which excels them in beauty, offering you as they do their lovely translucent clumps of amber.

BEETROOT JAM Boil the beets in their skins until they are quite tender, and of course, the younger the better. When cooked, rub off the skins;

Marine Band Come to Ex. From Britain

One of Britain's oldest military bands, that of the Plymouth Division of the Royal Marines, arrived at Quebec, in the Canadian Pacific liner the Empress of Australia, en route to Toronto where they are playing at the Canadian National Exhibition. Seen here as he directed his unit in "playing the ship in" at Quebec is Major F. J. Ricketts, Chief Bandmaster of the Royal Marines, more familiarly known as "England's Sousa." There are 51 members to the band, each handling several brass and orchestral instruments. Martial music and the classics are not their only accomplishments - in a formal concert given aboard the Empress of Australia during the voyage the Marine Bandsmen startled the listeners with some snappy "swing numbers."

to run in on you, young lady," he said apologetically, "and unpleasant business, too. However, I've taken care of everything."

Cilly dropped her eyes wearily. "Make an examination, Doc?" "Too dark for much of that, Fall was enough to kill anyone, of course. We've moved the body, and there'll be a thorough examination she know of Amy Kerr's life before tomorrow. What about this young a few months ago? Was there some lady tonight? You won't want to stay here?"

"Yes, I think so," Cilly said. "I'll be quite all right, and much more comfortable than anywhere else." "Dare say you're right," agreed the doctor. Dolan arose to go. "Guess there's nothing more can learn here tonight," he said to Cilly. "We come up against these suicides every day-and in most cases we never know why they have to be. Melancholia of a sort, I guess. Or insanity. Hard to tell. Well, goodnight, miss. Sure you'll be all right here alone?" "I'm sure, thank you, both."

A Noise In The Dumbwaiter Cilly was glad when they both had gone, although they left her feeling miserably alone and terrified. Just two hours ago, and Amy was here too. The apartment still echoed her laughter. Her slippers were there under the bed, where she'd left them early in the evening. Her bed was turned down, waiting for her. But she'd never be back. She'd never be back to tell what had happened up there in the darkness. A terrible trembling seized Cilly. She began to cry. She reached into her pajama pocket for her handkerchief. She touched the piece of newspaper that had fallen from Amy's hand. Curiously, she smoothed it out and examined it. A Utah newspaper clipping. Bluefields, Utah. What was Amy doing with that? It was part of the "town gossip" column. Mr. and Mrs. John Blair announce the birth of a son. . . Miss Margaret Seldon spending the week in Denver. . . . Joe Barlow, hermit of Blue Peak, failed to appear in Bluefields for his semiannual "storing up." A delegation from town discovered his shack in the mountains unoccupied, and it is feared that Joe wandered too far during one of last winter's blizzards and froze to death. . . .

Small town news events. What did it mean to Amy? How could the birth of the Blairs' son, or Margaret Seldon's vacation, or the disappearance of a hermit in Bluefields, Utah, concern Amy Kerr, of New York and New Hampshire?

Cilly crumpled the clipping and dropped it into a vase, turned toward the bedroom. Suddenly she stopped. . . . In the stillness of the apartment she heard the dumbwaiter going slowly down the shaft. It passed the level of her kitchen. She started, at first. Queer time of night for people to be running the dumbwaiter. Or was it time so soon for the milkman? But what did it matter? She was suddenly quite drowsy. She put out the light and went inside to bed, (To Be Continued)

Save Soap

Soap will last much longer if you buy it in large quantities and store in a dry place. If you stick a piece of tin-foil on one side, and always stand the soap this way up, it will last longer, because the soap will not dissolve by standing on the wet porcelain. Save all the odds and ends of soap, put them in a little muslin bag, and use in the washing up water, or for boiling handkerchiefs, etc. Or put the oddments in a bowl, cover with boiling water, and, after stirring, leave until set, so that vou make a useful soap jelly.

put the beetroot through the food chopper with the large knife. Weigh them; place in an earthenware container with an equal amount of sugar, leaving all night. Next day place in the preserving kettle, pouring on just enough water to cover the bottom. This will keep the jam from sticking. Bring quickly to the boil, stirring all the time. Skim. Boil steadily for 45 minutes. Add the rind and juice (strained) of a lemon for each two pounds of beets. Boil again for ten minutes. If you wish, you may remove the lemon rinds but many prefer to leave them in. find it quite satisfactory to put rinds through the food chopper.

MELON JAM

Pot the jam, which is a very beautiful color and spreads well on bread. You could not find anything more healthful for family use and school luncheons.

Choose melons which are almost ripe but not overly ripe. Peel, remove the seeds, cut up the pull into neat uniform cubes. Weigh the melon and for every 1 lb. of melon allow 1/2 lb. of sugar and four tablespoons of water. Put sugar and water together into preserving kettle, bring to the boil, add the melon and boil steadily until the syrup answers the usual test for jelly. A drop or two of vegetable coloring makes a prettier yellow in color. This is a delicious jelly for tarts and is very economical.

YELLOW TOMATO PRESERVES

Scald the tomatoes, remove the skins by placing in cold water in the usual way. Weigh; to every 5 pounds of tomatoes use 4 pounds of sugar. Wash two lemons and slice very thin. Place in an earthenware container putting alternate layers of tomatoes, sugar and lemons. Let stand all night, when the sugar should be dissolved. Cook over a low fire until fruit is quite clear. Place in jars and

ROSE-LEAF JELLY

Pick the roses in early morning They should be well opened but not in full bloom. Strip the petals. Weigh 1 lb. of petals and lb. of sugar. Boil the sugar with 1/2 pint of water for ten minutes. Test in cold water. If it spins a thread as for jelly it is ready. Throw in the rose leaves, cover the pan, remove from the fire. Let it get cool but not cold. Strain through muslin, Add tablespoon of liquor to each 1/2 of jelly. Stir well and pot in the usual way. If you wish, add a little pink coloring. This is a very fragrant and delicious jelly.
