AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

With one month over the twenty-five years since the start of the Great War hostilities, war, with all its cruel meaning, has broken out once more in Europe. The chief participants in the grim struggle of twenty-five years ago, are with us today and the cause of the struggle, much the same, —aggrandizement and world power on the one hand and honoring the neutrality of an innocent nation on the other. What the outcome will be is too much to ferret, but we feel like the poet, that there is a destiny that shapes our ends, and when the dross leaves the wreckage, some good will come out of it all.

That mad man of Germany, Adolph Hitler, has much to answer for in entering Poland by force and the Germany people as a whole, are we fear, sadly misled by his ideals. The British and French governments have made numerous peace overtures to Hitler. Italy and the United States have prevailed upon him to consider well his actions before declaring war, but all were tossed aside; any bargaining had to comply with Hitler's own demands.

Meantime cold-blooded murder in the torpedoing of the Cunard liner "Athena" with over 1400 passengers and crew, in the North Atlantic, is the first inhuman outrage and though the act is denied by Germany, the British Government, passengers and crew, have definite knowledge it was the work of a German submarine. Only about 40 lives were lost.

CANADA AGAIN PREPARES

With Britain at war with Germany Canada is also strongly thinking in terms of war. There is no family in this land but what is directly affected by war and for that matter we are yet paying the price of the last great holocaust. What will be the outcome of this nightmare, can not be imagined. One veteran Militia man predicts we have started a ten year war. We hope not. If this proves correct, there will be a different attitude in Canada.

Hon. MacKenzie has called Parliament this Thursday, and while there may be a few opposed, the great majority will back Britain to the limit.

In the last war Canadian youth was bought with a heavy price, yet Canada is again ready to lay down men and arms in a just cause.

Mr and Mrs Koenig, Detroit, were guests of their cousin, Mrs Hubert McDougall, South Egremont, also at R. R. Watson's, of Knox Corners.

Mr and Mrs Harold McPadden and Mr and Mrs Moore McPadden, Toronto, were weekend guests of their parents, W. J. and Mrs McPadden. Harold is now general manager of the Canadian Philco Radio company, with jurisdiction over three hundred men.

IT COSTS A LOT OF MONEY TO KEEP GOVERNMENT GOING

"Every man, woman and child in Ontario was assessed $22.65 to keep Ontario's governmental machinery running," says the Toronto Board of Trade Journal, which has been paying a good deal of attention to public finance.

That's quite a sum when other government costs are taken into consideration, for it is ordinarily estimated that the average family consists of five people, which would mean that the average family pays $113.25 for provincial expenditures.

Of course, they don't pay it directly. It is collected in gasoline tax, succession duties, stampage tolls on lumbering, and a score of other ways. But in the end, the individual family has to meet the bill.

Probably most of it is unavoidable. It pays for roads, for social services and so on. But where economy could be practised, it should be remembered that it will help a wide range of taxpayers, direct and indirect.

The trouble is, of course, that there are so many taxing authorities. That $113.25 per family is only a start. It is estimated that it costs a family of five $50.35 a year to meet the railway deficit. Now about the same amount must be added to meet the deficit on the wheat guarantees, and with other Dominion and municipal costs added the figure soon climbs to a height that absorbs a very large proportion of the average family income.

Monday, October 9th, has been officially proclaimed as Thanksgiving Day by the Dominion government.

"World of To-morrow" Wonders Described for Review Readers

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

Concluding a three-day press convention at the General Brock hotel, Niagara Falls, members of the press association with wives and friends paid a visit to New York and the World's Fair. There were nearly 200 in the party and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Volumes could be written about the "New York World's Fair". Portraying "The World of Tomorrow," it contains a promise for the future, built with the tools of Today, upon the experience of Yesterday.

No World's Fair has ever been attempted on so lavish a scale or with such universal participation. More than sixty nations (in fact every important nation except Germany) as well as the U. S. Government, 32 individual states and the city of New York, are exhibiting. In addition, industry, labor and civic groups, art and science—virtually every interest of mankind are represented.

WORLD'S FAIR FACTS

More than 200 strikingly designed buildings house these fascinating exhibits, each building conforming in beauty and dignity with the Theme Centre—the Trylon and Perisphere: two giant geometric figures which can be focussed from any point on the grounds.

The Trylon attains a height of 700 feet and the sphere has a 200 foot diameter. The interior of the latter is an immense panorama representing the world of tomorrow. The audience encircle the immense scene on a rotating disc, hearing the voice of H. V. Kaltenborn, C. B. C. radio commentator, describe the glories of man's future activities and his aspirations.

Built at a cost of $155,000,000, this greatest of all modern spectacles promises not only to be the most significant world event of 1939, but for many years to come. The Fair grounds cover 1,216 acres. The official theme of the exposition is the "World of To-morrow", and in that, particularly, it differs from the C. N. E. at Toronto. The latter is outstanding as the world of today. In New York, the Fair hints at the wonders of America of 1860-2000.

MAN'S GENIUS DISPLAYED

The Fair's genius is stream-lined, neon-lighted, air-conditioned, and futuristically designed throughout. The past is darkened and we can scan horizons. It is the last word in the application of the genius of man, progress in the development of science, of transportation, of the mode of living, of medicine. But in addition to beautiful exhibits there is a soul in this Fair. It is inspiring, because it raises the hopes of every one who sees it. There is not one inch that is depressing.

In the Court of Peace, you will find all nations (except Germany) side by side and the representatives of those nations sit around at the conference table in friendly fashion. If they did the same thing in Europe they would not be calling each other names and making faces. In the evening in the same Court of Peace, we find steam, water, gas and electricity—the elements used for war purposes abroad—combined in a great spectacle of beauty, the miracle of light playing upon fountains of water. The Federal building at the head of this court displays only two words 'peace' and 'unity'. You are not human if you are not gripped by that sight.

The U. S. is a mighty nation and if they can set the example of peace and unity to the world, the purpose of the World's Fair will be accomplished.

The writer has generalized long enough. He will briefly individualize. The outstanding national building to my mind is Russia. One may not agree with all he sees there, but he must admit it is clever. Freedom of the Soviet people from bondage of twenty and more years ago, to their achievements today and aspirations for the future, is the dominant theme. The huge $5,000,000 building, topped by its 79 foot statue, will be removed stone by stone at the close of the Fair and rebuilt in Moscow. Ill-fated Czecho-Slovakia has a fine building. They were unable to complete it owing to the recent crisis and friends in the U. S. financed the remainder.

Italy is very decorative with a 200 foot cascade of water running into a pool at the base of a monument to Marconi. Great Britain's exhibit dwells largely on the glories given to public and social services, fulfilling her trusteeship to the Dependencies and advancing the physical and cultural development of the peoples of her Colonial Empire.

We felt at home in the Canadian Pavilion which is constructed of almost entirely Canadian materials.

American "Danube"

While the majority of the press party returned to Canada on Wednesday, the writer and his lady remained several days longer in New York and vicinity, returning by river steamer on the Hudson from New York to Albany. This glorious nine-hour voyage on a mighty river past New York's storied sky-line, will never be forgotten. Mountains and cliffs flank both sides for 150 miles. En route you pass West Point, Vassar College at Poughkeepsie, Giant and Yankee Stadiums in upper Manhattan, Hyde Park, (Pres. Roosevelt's home) and across the river from him is the home of Father Divine, noted negro leader. Later we pass the Astor estate and the Catskill tourist resort.

Expense Reasonable

There is an old saying that travel broadens the mind and empties the purse. That is very true going to the World's Fair. Yet prices are reasonable for transportation and general expenses. Bus fares and excursion trains cost on an average of $15.00, return ticket from Hamilton. A comfortable bed can be had in the rooming district about Columbia University for $1.00 per night.

The admission fee to the Fair is 75c and reduced to 50c for Saturday and Sunday and it is worth it many times over. There is no charge to exhibit or buildings. Meals on the grounds are higher than in the city and average $1.00 to $1.50. You can pay more if you are affluent. To assure your own comfort, take a second pair of shoes with you to rest your feet. (It is a strenuous life). One more point, change your money into U. S. currency this side of the border. In New York, they discount Canadian bills six cents on every dollar.

Some individual items gleaned or seen by your correspondent...

Small motor car of the future (built by Crosley), having an 80-inch wheelbase, 40-inch tread and "goes" 55 miles to the gallon, priced in New York at $350.00. Saw a television telephone, talking flashlight... articles like tooth brushes, made from a combination of coal, water and air... a skein of wool, not from the back of a sheep but from skim milk! Saw 1600 monkeys in a monkeydrome... heard New York's police band... a sound device to prevent kidnapping of babies from carriages... engineer predicts that in twenty years, motor cars will be run from sun's radiant energy. This energy makes plant life today... why not harness it to industry? One million cows in seven states supply 4,580,000 quarts of milk (pasteurized) daily in New York city... saw Firestone make a tire from raw material to finished wrapped casing all in four minutes. In the jewelry building there is $4,500,000 worth of jewels (Yes, that chap behind you is a secret service man with a revolver).

Dry Cows With Towels

The well-known Borden dairy firm had on display 150 pedigreed cows in air-conditioned stables and electric fans buzzing... cows are washed, dried with individual sterilized towels and mechanically milked... milk is carried through stainless steel pipes to be pasteurized, irradiated, bottled and capped... the above is just a fringe of interesting things noted.

Make Mind Merry

The Fair's amusement area is the best in the world... good shows from Broadway and nothing cheap or shoddy... in the front rank is Billy Rose's renowned Aquacade where 100 expert swimmers present pleasing water formations in a stage over 300 feet wide. Among these water stars are such sport and film attractions as Gertrude Ederle, Johnny Weismueller and Alfie Phillips. The last named is the British Empire high-diving champion and, believe it or not, a native of Durham, Ontario.

The amphitheatre for this swim show seats 10,000 and is always filled at the three daily performances...

There is the parachute jump spectacle for the public from a 250 foot tower. The writer (Chas. Ramage), a brother of ye editor, balked, but another brother (Harold), took the drop and he was lucky as usual!

Royally Entertained

The Canadian Newspaper Association party went to the big metropolis, via New York Central and were "booked" at the "Barabazon-Plaza", a modern 40-storey hotel at Central Park. We were royally entertained during our sojourn in the city... several complimentary dinners and shows being provided. On our arrival the Lectrocut firm (makers of a new-style cut-making equipment for newspapers), gave us a two-hour ride through lower Manhattan and on the second day, the Canadian Trade Commissioner to the U. S. entertained at lunch and at evening dinner, the World's Fair Board were our hosts. The latter also gave us the benefit of a musical show of New York "In the Gay Nineties". My, how editorial eyes sparkled as memories of the past revived with dance and song.

The final day at the Fair saw the Borden Milk firm provide noon-day cats, from cocktails to ice cream. The Turkish exhibit provided afternoon refreshments while 'Merrie England' put on an evening banquet and show, the feature of which was Queen Elizabeth being modernized into the "World of Tomorrow" and a Scotch pipe band of young Irish girls had all feet jiggling to their merry tunes.
