FRANCE FALTERING
 The terrific German offensive encroaching on the heart of France, with Paris captured, has brought that nation to her knees, and she has applied for an honorable peace to Germany which the Nazis will surely refuse and demand unconditional surrender. France is, however, still fighting on but her eclipse is a matter of days. Britain and the Empire will carry on alone, with material U. S. aid, against the Axis powers, until their tyranny is overthrown.

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE AN ENGLAND
 There will always be an England. While the waves of ocean roll, For no weapon ever can be forged, To conquer England's soul.
 The glorious flame of Liberty, That deacons England's dales, By tyranny can ne'er be quenched, While God in Heaven prevails.
 When from the azure ocean, First arose proud Britain's stand, A charter was presented, By an angel guardian's hand. And down throughout the ages, She has kept that charter brave, Attuned to martial music, "Rule Britannia! rule the wave!"
 When Queen warrior, Boadicea, Bleeding from the Roman rods, Called her Druid priests around her, Seeking counsel of their gods, "Britain's enemies shall perish," Said a hoary Druid priest, With a voice vibrate with anger, And a heart o'ercharged with grief, There will always be an England, It is written in the stars, As a warning to those nations, Who invoke the god of Mars.
 There will always be an England, While the waves of oceans roll, For no weapon ever can be forged, To conquer England's soul.

HOMEWORK TO RADIO
 At a meeting of school teachers some time ago the principal of St. Catharines Collegiate Institute, W. J. Salter, made a statement that may surprise some but should not surprise anyone. Ninety per cent of the students in the first forms of his Collegiate Institute, he said, have radios in their homes and 55 per cent of them try to study while the radio is going full blast—and then parents wonder why their sons and daughters fail at the June examinations.
 No reason why anyone should wonder at that; the reason for failures is self-evident. It is purely a case of divided attention. No one can do two things at once and do both well.
 Try it yourself some time. Turn the radio on good and strong; then pick up a book—I don't care what it is—whether it's a mystery story or an erudite work on some metaphysical subject—and try to read it while you are listening to the music or the address coming in over the air. And see how much of either you have absorbed at the end of the hour or half-hour. Not much of either; practically nothing of what you have been trying to read.
 In my own case—if you will pardon the personal reference—when I have anything to do which requires concentration I don't want anything else to come in interrupting my train of thought. And I don't think I'm different from the average. I have known people who could work along through a veritable babel of outside noises—I've done it myself when I had to—but they were not listening to outside noises; they were concentrating on the work in hand and actually did not hear the other noises.
 But is not everyone who can do that and keep it up. Unless one has the power to close all his faculties to everything but the one thing, the disturbing element is going to creep in and make the main job less perfect than it should be. Yet I've seen boys and girls, supposed to be doing their homework, keeping one ear open for the wise-cracks of some radio comedian—and getting most of them. I'm not saying how the homework made out; but I've a pretty good guess.
 The radio is a wonderful invention and a source of much enjoyment and some education. Homework is a "necessary evil." Theoretically, there shouldn't be any; but teachers have a little way of expecting their pupils to keep up to date with the lessons, so that it is advisable for the pupils to do some reading at home. But homework and radio programmes will not mix; and when it comes to a contest between them, the radio programme usually wins.
 And yet parents wonder why their children can't study and listen to radio at the same time! Aren't people queer?—Bystander, in Sun-Times.

CANADA'S WAR EFFORT
 Summary
 During another historic week the tempo of war preparations and accomplishments was accelerated. The principal steps of which Canada has approved are shown briefly in the following summary.
 1. War declared against Italy on June 10th by proclamation after unanimous approval of both the House of Commons and the Senate.

ONTARIO WAR WORK SCHOOLS MAY TRAIN GIRLS LIKE BOYS
 Girls as well as boys are to be admitted to the new summer courses in aircraft and other emergency war work, according to the regulations issued today by the minister of Education, Hon. L. J. Simpson and his deputy, Dr. Duncan McArthur. Students must be at least 16 years of age, and it is provided they must be "in the opinion of the principal of the local vocational school and of the superintendent of the local office of the Employment Service of Canada, capable of benefiting by the instruction and who will undertake at the close of the period of instruction, or sooner if qualified, to accept employment in industry directly related to conduct of the war."
 A school week is to consist of 44 hours. It is stipulated that these courses should begin as soon as possible and should be concluded by Aug. 31st.
 There is provision that the principal shall have power to require any student to withdraw from the course if he deems the student not capable of benefitting by instruction given, or for other legitimate reasons.
 Any courses of instruction in practical shop work are to be included if they can be shown to be of direct assistance in meeting the immediate needs of industry in the prosecution of the war. They will include mathematics and science only when, in the opinion of the minister, these related subjects are essential to the successful operation of an approval course.
 Dr. C. C. Goldring, superintendent of city schools announced that Monday morning would see the opening at Central Technical School of Toronto's first class under the new plan. It will include about 96 boys and young men studying aircraft mechanics. They will be mainly selected from third year shop work classes. Between June 17 and Aug. 31, studying eight hours a day, five days a week, they will get the equivalent of the whole fourth year work in aircraft mechanics.
 "Then they will be considered fit to go out and get a job," said Dr. Goldring.

KEEP ON PRODUCING WHAT YOU HAVE PRODUCED GARDINER, TO FARMERS
 Minister of Agriculture says war effort does not require rapid switching from one product to another
 Canada's Agricultural Policy in relation to its war effort was disclosed by Hon. J. G. Gardiner at some length in discussions in the House of Commons during the week. When war came, he pointed out, there was in Canada considerable surpluses of most farm products. There was a very large surplus of wheat and even now it is the largest in history. There are also large surpluses of pork and dairy products at the present time.
 Mr Gardiner said those who have studied the situation estimate that larger quantities of products would be required next summer because of the enlistment of farm hands in the army and other causes.
 "What should the farmer produce?" The Minister of Agriculture answered this question by these words. "We have been constantly saying, and we think it is the proper thing to say, that the farmers of Canada can best serve the interests of Canada and the interests of the Allies, by continuing to produce those staple products which they were producing before the war started. That is in so far as they were producing wheat they should continue to produce wheat. In so far as they were producing different types of live stock they should continue to do so."
 There might some difficulty in marketing some of the less staple products, such as fruit even during the later years of the struggle in which we were engaged, the Minister thought. There certainly would be difficulty during the earlier years. But the Government felt that those who had been engaged in the production of staple products should continue because those were the products which were going to be most needed through the war period. "If possible they should try to do it to better effect," he said. "They should try to produce a better product and a little more of that product if they can, but they should not attempt to switch rapidly from the production of one thing to the production of another."

 Failure to remain at the scene of an accident proved rather expensive for William Grierson, of Bentinck, who was assessed $20 and costs of $8.65 when he pleaded guilty to the charge in Magistrate Spereman's police court in Hanover Thursday afternoon. In addition, his driver's permit was cancelled for a period of two months, and he also paid some $8 for damage done to the other car involved in the accident.
 The accident from which the charge arose occurred at the intersection of Proctor Street and the Durham Road on Saturday, May 25, about 10.15 p.m., and chief Constable Meyer told the court that Grierson, in attempting to turn onto Proctor Street, failed to make the turn and crashed into a car owned and driven by Herb Miller of R. R. 2 Ayrton. Without getting out and checking the damage, said the witness, Grierson put the car in reverse, backing up and drove west on Main Street, being apprehended half an hour later.
