JOINT DEFENCE BOARD FOR CANADA AND U. S.

A timely action was the decision to form a Board to jointly supervise the defences of United States and Canada, made at a meeting of Premier King and President Roosevelt in Ogdensburg last week. Both nations have the same defence problems, and the two countries uniting against any aggressor nation, will be a strength to themselves, a deterrent to possible attackers whether Nazi or Jap, and an encouragement to Britain in her valiant struggle to uphold democracy throughout the world.

THE NAZI BLUFF—A MYTH EXPLODED

One of the most startling documents that has ever come off the press in Canada—a document quite as important as any official white, blue, black or yellow paper—is that which is to be distributed in a short time throughout the Dominion. It is an eight page brochure, bearing the endorsement of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, and called "The Nazi Bluff—A Myth Exploded."

The brochure, which appears as the leading article in the last issue of the Legion's national Magazine, "The Legionary," is an authentic and skillfully prepared expose of Adolf Hitler's treacherous "Fifth Column" and a factual denouncement of the so-called "invincibility" of the German might.

The brochure tells in plain language how the Nazi propaganda machine worked successfully to undermine the morale and fighting spirit of neighboring countries to such an extent that when the mechanized hordes rolled in the already broken courage of the populace enabled but a pitiful show of resistance. It tells in equally plain language how the Nazis are trying to sow the seeds of dissension and defeatism in other countries in Europe as well as in South America, the United States and Canada.

The brochure challenges the truth of the military and naval power of Germany and claims that Adolf Hitler's "Fifth Column" is of vital importance to him because of the very vulnerability, the actual weakness of his fighting men.

It says, in short, that "the invincibility" of the German might is the most colossal fake, the most gigantic piece of Teutonic four-flushing that ever dazzled a world which has allowed itself to be frightened into the role of the hysterical spinster, paralyzed with horrible imaginings of a wicked man under her bed."

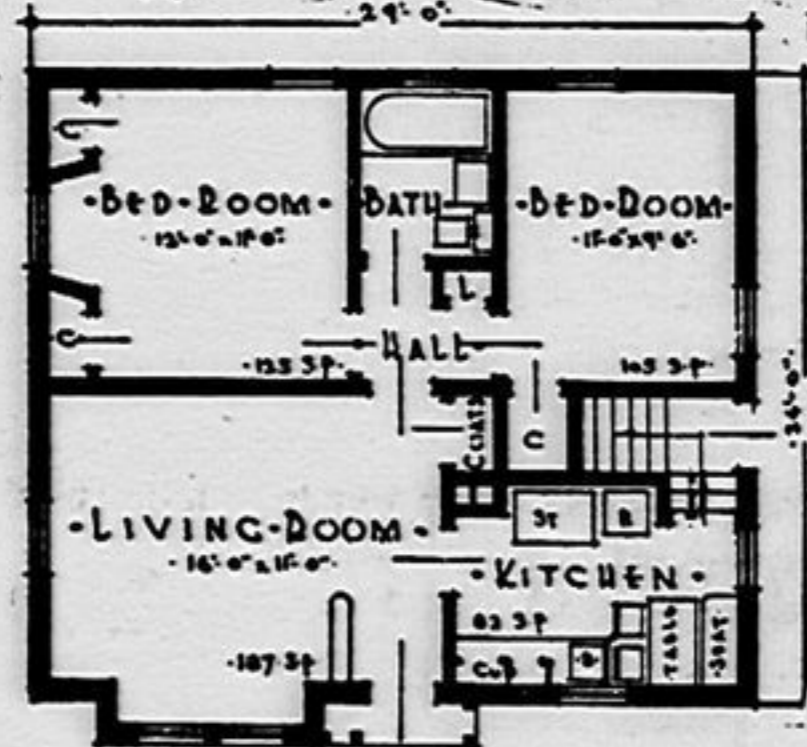

A study of this Legion-sponsored brochure is perhaps the most heartening experience one can have in these dark war-torn days. It is not based on wishful thinking, dubious information, over-optimism. Because of its complete authenticity, cool-headed logic, it inspires a brave heart, determined confidence, and a desire to get at these "weedy, pimply-faced, dull-eyed, clock-work automatons" . . . those "teutonic tin-men and screeching beerhall Napoleons."

"The Nazi Bluff" is not a hate-inspiring document, does not seek to endorse counter-brutality on our part against the Germans. It merely proves, and that quite decisively, that we—the members of the British Empire—are far superior, man against man, than any of Adolf Hitler's armed monsters. It shows that so long as we do not fall victims to the German Fifth Column—propaganda—we can, and will, win the war.

Camera Hunting in Jasper Park

THE 4,200 square miles of Jasper National Park in the heart of Canada's Rockies comprise the greatest wild life sanctuary in North America, containing thousands of big game animals, including Rocky Mountain sheep and goats, mule and white-tailed deer, caribou, moose and elk, and black, brown and grizzly bear.

Deer and elk are particularly tame and are daily visitors to Jasper Park Lodge, the luxurious Canadian National Railways' Rocky Mountain resort. Elk are also observed almost daily in the vicinity of the Jasper Park Lodge golf course while friendly black bears and their playful cubs are frequent visitors around the Lodge. Smaller animals including beaver, lynx and martens are also numerous, as well as the hoary marmot or "whistler".

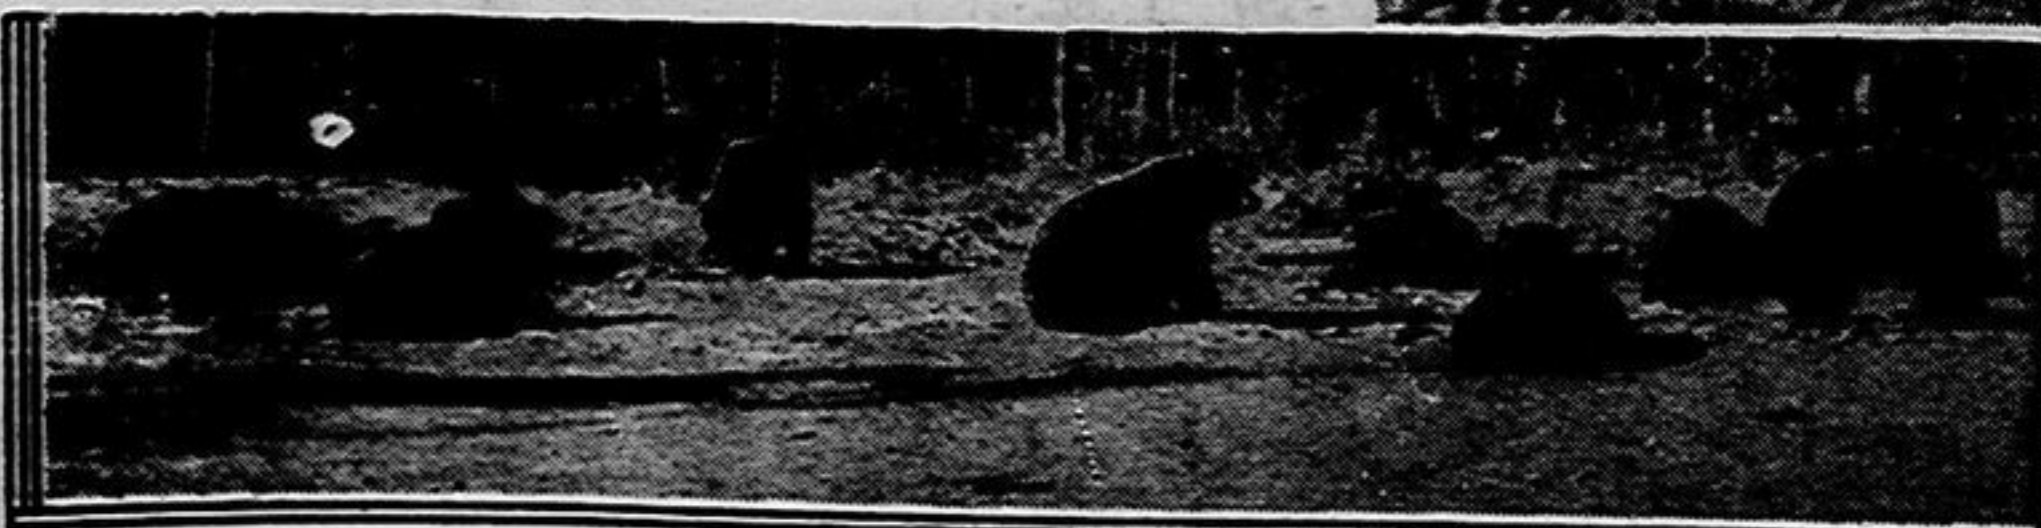

Jasper Park is a real paradise for camera hunters, its friendly boundaries providing a haven for the above mentioned four-footed visitors in addition to perky little rock rabbits—the only animal in the world to cure its own hay—sly coyotes, fisher and otter.

For those who are disposed, there are camera trophies without number to be had in Jasper National Park. In fact, even on the Jasper Park Lodge lawns.

Game animals may daily be seen from the trails and motor roads in this vast game sanctuary and animals pictured here, reading from left, are mountain goat, caribou, mule deer, beaver and mountain sheep. At the bottom are a few of the black bear residents of Jasper Park snapped while "at lunch".

The natural overflow of wild life into the unprotected areas beyond Jasper National Park, makes Jasper one of the most popular jumping off points for big game hunters going to nearby Mount Robson Park and other Alberta and British Columbia big game hunting districts.

VOLUNTEER CIVIL GUARD

Following are extracts from a statement issued on Monday by Attorney General Conant in regard to the development of 30,000 Volunteer Civil Guards as a police auxiliary in the Province of Ontario. It is accompanied by a syllabus of training.

Behind the syllabus, Mr Conant said, rested the determination of officials to provide a trained and disciplined body that would be immediately available for the maintenance of internal wartime security.

Other main points in the guards' objectives call for assistance to the civil power by co-operating with the Provincial and local police and all law enforcement officers, protection of life and property from sabotage or any form of attack and combating of subversive activities and assistance in air-raid precaution organizations and activities.

The instructions, designed to give guidance to commanding officers for training programs suitable to the varying circumstances over the Province, were sent out to municipalities, in which units have either been formed or are in the process of organization.

Mr Conant, at the same time, had forwarded memoranda covering the question of arming the guards. The department last week formally launched its appeal to citizens to loan 10,000 rifles and shotguns for the duration of the war. Provincial police all over the Province are authorized to accept the arms and to give receipts for them.

These weapons, the Attorney-General advised the municipalities are to be issued to units whose commanding officers have been approved by the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Provincial Police. It is proposed that in most cases the number to be armed should be in proportion to about one-half of one per cent of the population of the

Each man, before being armed, will be appointed a special constable under the Constables Act. Before a unit is armed the commanding officer will be authorized to exercise the powers of a Provincial constable.

It is stressed that all arms and ammunition must be kept in one central and protected place and that no guard unit may be armed or no guard may use arms unless there has been compliance with the regulations.

To bring about the co-ordination for effectiveness in the scheme the Province is prepared to assign a Provincial officer to any unit at the request of the municipality. Conditions rule that he is to assist in the training of the guard in police duties, to act as a liaison officer between the guard and Provincial Police headquarters, and that he will represent the Commissioner of the Provincial Police and will determine when and to what extent armed force may be used in an emergency.

In addition to the training responsibility, guard commanders are urged to draw up a secret assembly scheme immediately so that the guard may be able to assemble at selected strategic localities in the municipality and be in a position to render the best service."

DECKS CLEARED FOR TRAINING PLAN

Decks have been cleared for the mobilization of man-power for home defence and the stage set for the military training plan that will summon approximately 30,000 young Canadians to camp each month to be taught fundamentals of modern soldiering.

Until the men, certified fit for training, reach their designated camps and are turned over to military authorities of the Department of National Defence, responsibility for arrangements lies with the Department of National War Services.

The first task to be tackled by the Department is the classification and indexing of all registration cards, according to age groups for men and women, single and married. Registrars in each constituency and district registrars attached to the boards in each of eleven military districts and in Prince Edward Island, are conducting this tabulation.

Single men between the ages of 21 and 45 are liable to be called to train during the first year. The Department of National War Services will call up the men by groups, starting with those 21 years of age in October, as the Department of National Defence makes known its requirements. These men will be medically examined as near as possible to their place of registration. All men in category C1 or better will be considered fit for training. Transportation will be provided free for the men to attend medical examination and to proceed to one of the 30 or more training centres. It is expected there will be eight calls within a year.
