A Home Known By Its Coloring

Good Choice Endows House With Charm And Individuality-Here Are Some Color Recipes

Color, when properly used, can endow some of the plainest homes with striking and pleasing individuality. Rows of just-alike houses can be made to appear refreshingly different when wellselected paints are used.

Dull spiritless houses frequently seem younger, more alive, and more enjoyable to live in when painted with gay colors.

EXTERIOR HUES To show home owners what combinations of exterior hues go well together, the following "color recipes" have been taken from the "House of Outside Color" exhibition in New York. They have been prepared by color experts for typical houses, located in all parts of the country:

Color recipe No. 1 - Forest green roof, pale corai walls, deeper coral trim, red-orange door.

Color recipe No. 2 .- Russetcolored roof, white walls, white trim, rust-colored shutters and front door.

Color recipe No. 3 .- Brick-red roof, off-white walls and trim, Dutch blue door. Color recipe No. 4 .- Blue-gray roof, light yellow walls, daffodil yellow trim, deep gray front

Color recipe No. 5. - Roof blend of red and deep orange, yellow walls, orange shutters, and dark blue front door.

The Right Way To Do Washing

You Can Tub Many More Things If You Know How, Even Evening Shoes

Almost everything can be washed if you know the right way. Here are some pointers for you. Satin and crepe evening shoes can be washed by wiping with a damp cloth dipped into soap flakes; wipe the soap off with a clean damp cloth and let the shoes dry in & normal temperature. Soft toys can be actually washed in warm soap flakes, rinsed thoroughly and allowed to dry naturally; they will take several days if they are of the stuffed variety. That slip-on corset of yours can be washed at home, too. Rub dry soap flakes into any very soiled parts and then squeeze the corset through luke-warm soap suds, brushing with a soft nafl brush on the soiled parts, rinse in three lots of lukewarm water, roll in a towel to get rid of extra moisture, and hang, with weight evenly distributed, to dry. Easy, isn't it, when you know how? Your silk lampshades can be put bodily into soap suds and swished about; then rinse them, pat as dry as possible with a towel and allow to dry. Parchment and vellum shades can be spouged clean with a cloth wrung almost dry from soap suds and then ringed with a cloth wrung hard out of clear water; wipe them dry.

Andy HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE

Adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture

Beatrice Faber

CHAPTER ONE

There was a sickening sweet smile on Andy Hardy's face as he woke from deep sleep. He had been dreaming again of that ace debutante, Daphne Fowler, New York's top glamour girl.

Ah love, ah bliss! to spend but one hour with fair Daphne.

But the closest that Andy had come to it was her picture - or rather, dozens of her pictures, all nicely pasted together in a scrapbook. Calfeyed, he propped himself upon one elbow and gave his early morning adoration to contemplating her glorious photoed image. What eyes, what lips and what a figger - especially in that strapless evening dress-

W00-W00! But Mom was calling him for breakfast and he'd better get down or else they'd be coming up and busting in on his privacy. The summons was heard again five times before he reached the table. Then he looked at his mother and his Aunt Milly reproach-

"I been taught never to come to breakfast before doing my morning ablutions. Remember, Mrs. Hardy," he added soulfully, "cleaniness is next to Godliness."

In a vague way, this stumped Mrs. Hardy. Goodness, you never could tell what would come out of that boy's mouth next.

THE GLORIOUS PHOTO His sister Marian walked in at this moment with the new copy of "Topics Monthly". She held it up, silently showing everyone that the cover was gone already. Andy concentrated on his food If he didn't say anything, they couldn't accuse him of taking it. But aw gee, how else was he going to get pictures of Daphne.

His mother suddenly remembered something. "Andy, Polly Benedict's father called. He wants Dad to meet him at the Orphans' Home before noon." "Calm yourself, dear mother,"

Andy said largely. "I can search for the good Judge while doing my botanizing." He grinned at her amazement. "Besides, I know where he goes to fish."

Yep, searching for wild flower life was the best way he knew of to be alone so he could bring Daphne's scrapbook up to date. He had just finished with his last specimen — the "Topics" cover - and was strolling along through the woods when suddenly his father hailed him. "Why. Andy, what are you doing here?" In some confusion Andy replied, "I was looking for you." "Mr. Benedict wants you at the Orphanage by twelve o'clock." The Judge sighed for little pleasures already lost. "And I've hardly got my line wet." He frowned. "The Orphanage? Sounds like trouble."

Attorney-General Considers

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, chairman of the special Ontario Legislative Committee investigating the administration of justice, said at a recent session of the committee he had considered the possibility of admitting women to jury service in Ontario and had studied the costs of such a move.

There would be some expense for the counties, the Attorney-General said, for they would have to provide women attendants, but it was "not a serious expense nor an insurmountable difficulty . . . They have had women jurors in England since 1919, and so far as I know the experiment has been satisfac-
