A letter from Fort McLeod to the Benton Record, (20 March) says :- "Thanks to the vigilence of Major Irvine and the energy of fications exactly similar to those used for the Capt. Winder, of the N. W. Mounted Police, another attempt to smuggle whiskey into the Indian country has been frustrated by the arrest of three men who were tried, found guilty, and sentenced to pay a fine of $500 each or to be imprisoned for the minor period of six months. They preferred the former. Horses were sacrificed and human limbs exhausted in making the arrest, but the M.P.'s are worse than blood hounds when they scent the track of smuggler, and they fetch their man every
