POETRY. THE TROOPER OF THE DON. Adown the Balkan's bosky slope

The Cossack trooper rides: The crimson drops are oozing from His gallant charger's sides. So swift he speeds to fall upon His victim unawares: Unpitying in his fierce career,

Nor age nor sex he spares.

The ravaged vineyard on the hill His track shall mark the while; The blasted hearth, the wasted field. The hamlet's smoking pile; For in his dull, barbarie mind,

A Christain Czar can do. Too well mid countless horrors are His bloody laurels won; Too well the Moslem peasant knows The trooper of the Don.

What vengeance on a hated race

COMMITMENT AND ESCAPE .- A somewhat noted character, giving his name at present as John King, though known under various Carr since her rescue from Sturdy's clutch- house in a secluded part of the suburbs, in Esq., J. P., at Rechine's Temperance Hotel, Ayton, on Friday last, charged with using abusive language to Mr. Isaac Wengerl in Ayton, pocket picking, and passing a Dominion bill changed from one dollar to a four. A number of witnesses having been examined, the prisoner wa fully committed to stand his trial at the first court of competent jurisdiction at Owen Sound. He was accordingly placed Ayton, who started in a conveyance wit his prisoner on Saturday evening for Owen Sound accompanied by special constable McTavish. When they had arrived at a point some fourteen miles above Durham. King jumped from the wagon handcuffed though he was, snapped his fingers at the constables and disappeared in the adjoining wood. Youngs appears to have sat composedly in his vehicle, and made no effort to capture the prisoner. By all account the constables are guilty of shameless and even criminal negligence, and should be proceeded against. King has the reputation of being a thorough blackleg, gambler and cracksman, has operated to some extent in all these characters in Normanby lately and indeed is well known in police circles throughout the country.
