POETRY. BETTER LATE THAN NEVER. Life is a race where some succeed, While others are beginning; 'Tis luck at times, and dainty useless knick-knacks priced at five times their real value, besieged every visitor, and he was a hard-hearted creature who could resist the white hands, and pleading from soft eyes, and sweet entreaties of "Do buy this, you know you need it. Please do?"

The Maiden's Choice. "I suppose she will marry some time or other, and perhaps, after all, she will be as well off to marry now, as to wait half a dozen years."

Principal Dawson on Canada's Future. From the Montreal Witness. The following is an extract from the President's address at the last annual meeting of the Natural History Society:

Papa Dorion, eager to see the whole, caught up a bundle and ran up stairs behind the wondering woman and the grocer. It was a poor little room as neat as wax, half filled with freshly ironed clothes, and its proprietress, a pale, meek-faced woman, bearing the marks of poverty upon every lineament. Two children from their supper of bread and milk, looked at the stranger, and hailed the apples, as the grocer rolled them into a basket, with a shout of delight.

It was very late when Ruth arrived in the carriage of a friend, at her father's door; but late as was the hour, she found her respected parent in the library. "Why, papa! Are you awake?" "Yes, and I've something to tell you. Do you remember that you promised to abide by my design in choosing between your two admirers, Hartley and Hillsdale?"

What the intercolonial has begun to do for our relations with the Atlantic provinces, the Canada Pacific must do for our relations with the Pacific province; and if I could present before you in a prophetic picture all that would follow from the establishment of such a connection, and the trade of the great sea and land beyond, which might flow through our country, you as citizens of a commercial city, as well as the capacity of votaries of science and æsthetic art, would at once say that at almost any sacrifice this great work should be executed.

breadths of fertile soil besides many elements of mineral wealth, and varied kinds of manufactures are growing up both on the coast and inland. What is to hinder a direct exchange of commodities within ourselves instead of an indirect exchange under the most serious disadvantages with the United States? Further, such direct exchange would increase our trade with Great Britain and the West Indies, and bind together the somewhat divergent sections of our own population. The opening of railway communication across the great Western plain might do for us what a similar process has done for New York. But from a railway terminus on the Pacific shore we could stretch our commercial relations over that great Ocean, and bring all the treasures of the Orient to enrich our markets. Further in establishing communications with British Columbia, we are not merely establishing a landing place on the Pacific, though this would be an inestimable advantage. British Columbia is, in the mining point of view one of the richest portions of the earth's surface. It is of more value acre for acre than any portion of the Eastern States or of Canada proper.

Canada's Indian Policy. We are glad to be able to agree with the London Times in the view it takes as to the justice and expediency of settling as early as possible the difficulties existing in regard to the Indian population of British Columbia. Nor need there be any hesitating on our part in accepting the compensation paid to the policy pursued by Canada towards the aboriginal races within the jurisdiction of the Dominion. Whether, in the older Provinces where they have attained a more or less advanced stage of civilization, or in the new territories where they still retain many of the habits and characteristics of savage life, the Indians have learned that their rights are guaranteed, their feelings respected, their wishes consulted, and that above them is extended the strong right arm of a power that comes not as a scourge or a tyrant, but as a protector.

What the intercolonial has begun to do for our relations with the Atlantic provinces, the Canada Pacific must do for our relations with the Pacific province; and if I could present before you in a prophetic picture all that would follow from the establishment of such a connection, and the trade of the great sea and land beyond, which might flow through our country, you as citizens of a commercial city, as well as the capacity of votaries of science and æsthetic art, would at once say that at almost any sacrifice this great work should be executed.
