ALICE CAREY'S SWEETEST POEM. Of all the beautiful pictures That hang on memory's wall, Is one of a dim old forest. That seemeth best of all: Not for its gnarled oaks olden, Dark with the mistletoe; Not with the violets golden, That sprinkle the vale below ;

Not for the milk-white lilies That lean from the fragrant hedge. Coquetting all day in the sunbeams. And stealing their golden edge; Not for the vines on the upland. Where the bright red berries rest; Nor the pink, nor the pale sweet cowslip It seemeth to me the best.

With eyes that were dark and deep-

I once had a little brother

In the lap of that olden forest

He lieth in peace and asleep: Light as the down of the thistle, Free as the winds that blow. We roved there the beautiful summers, The summers of long ago; But his feet on the hills grew weary, And one of the autumn eves I made for my little brother A bed of the autumn leaves.

My neck in a sweet embrace, As the light of immortal beauty Silently covered his face; And when the arrows of sunset Lodged in the tree tops bright He fell, in his saint-hke beauty. Asleep by the gates of light. Therefore of all pictures That hang on memory's wall, The one of the dim old forest

Seemeth the best of all.
