

it was to be published in the Mark-Expositor, nor read it until after it was published; nor had it read to me, nor read in my hearing until it was published; I was not aware that any person was about to publish it; I never saw the original letter.

Mr. Lane—I got a letter from Messrs. Sydenham Roberts dated 1st August, letter produced—and put in; I read it on the 5th of this month (September); it was addressed to me at Inistoge, and my P. O. is Dundalk; Inistoge is about 3 miles distant from where I have lived in the neighborhood I was a boy.

JOHN AGNEW.

A Tempest in a Teapot.

To the Editor of the Guide.
Sir,—If your well conducted and interesting journal was only circulated in itself, it would not be necessary to refer to the letter in your issue of last week, relating to the Scandal given by Mrs. Symon and Mrs. McConnell, at the Orange Hall.

As it is, however, the said letter meets the eyes of strangers who might, perusal, consider that we were wanting in all the attributes of good humor. The sensitive young gentleman retired from the social in disgust,^{is} immediately organised to participate in a new Scandal, and it would perhaps be fit to name the kind of entertainment would afford him an opportunity of venting. There is one thing certain the intent of his nature did not prevent his entry into the creature comforts with all sorts of ordinary merriment, for instance, he observed him calling for tea quantities of cake and candy dispensed in a way that was truly appalling.

I observed him calling for tea in the Cup of Tea and the tenth bag of scones I felt constrained to remonstrate, as just on the point of indicating to the author that the notes were not prepared for terrible broad upon them; harder; at the payment of twenty cents for same, was never intended to give any individual an exclusive right to pack or monopolise, the grab,—but before anger could react us merely censured small boy near the door had made of the gentleman's well-developed physique, by flinging with unerring precision a piece of cake.

The juncture the gentleman withdrew, not disgraced. The night was dark and degree, and as he rounded the opposite Mr. Gray's an unfriendly leg caught the heel of his number four, and he found himself making a hasty retreat to the printing office, where he had been sent to the Paris Exposition by the Geological Survey of the Dominion.

The GEORGETOWN BURGLAR SENTENCED.—Andrew Thompson, the Georgetown burglar, who pleaded guilty of breaking into Armour's jewellery store a few days ago, was sentenced on Thursday by Judge Scott to seven years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

EGG Indian outlaws are reported from the Black Hills country. Deadwood is said to be completely invested, and four companies of cavalry have been ordered to proceed thither by forced marches. Other troops are to be despatched to Bismarck by lightning trains.
