

A Buried Town brought to Light.

An enterprising archaeological discovery has just been made in Italy—that of a buried town, a new Pompeii, unexpectedly found near Manfredonia, at the foot of Mount Gargano. A temple of Diana was first brought to light, and then a portico about 20 metres in length, with columns without capitals, and, finally, a necropolis, covering 15,000 square metres (about three and three-quarters acres). A large number of inscriptions have been collected, and some of them have been sent to the museum at Naples. The town discovered is the ancient Sipontum of which Strabo, Polybius, and Livy speak, and which was buried by an earthquake. The houses are 30 feet below the surface of the soil. The Italian Government has taken measures to continue the excavations on a large scale. Every day some fresh object of interest turns up. The latest is a monument erected in memory of Pompey after his victory over the pirates, and a large quantity of coins in gold and copper.

Grab Her! Grab Her!

A good story is current in Hamilton, which has the additional merit of being strictly true, at least so it is said. It seems that a Milesian gentleman of somewhat advanced age has a son, who recently went to his father and proceeded to inform him that he proposed to commit matrimony. On receiving the announcement the old gentleman said: "Well, my son to whom?" "Miss Jane So and So," replied the son naming her. "Do you love her?" was the next inquiry, to which the satisfactory answer was given. "Is she a nice girl?" "Yes, as there is in Hamilton." "Well my son how are you going to support her? Has she any money?" "Yes, she has $1,500 that I know of." "Then said the old man rising from his seat, catching hold of his son, and yelling out the words, "Grab her, my boy, grab her. Don't wait to get anybody's consent." Inasmuch as the wedding came of a couple of days ago, we assume that the son followed the father's advice and "grabbed" her.

A portion of Honolulu was destroyed by fire on the 8th of December, the loss reaching the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars.

Ten Mennonites were recently arrested at Pembina Mountain for stealing wood from a homestead, but a rescue having been made five of their number were taken from the police, the remainder being conveyed to Winnipeg, where they were released, on pleading guilty, on their own recognizances, pending the result of an appeal at the March Assizes.

A letter from Manitoulin Island says:—This is a good country for poor people; they can raise anything they plant, and get all the fish they want to eat. The bears have been rather troublesome this fall. They have taken some pigs away, and have tried to take some more; there have been several bears killed. Recently two boys while crossing Manitoulin Lake in a sail-boat spied a bear also crossing the lake or rather trying to do so. They overtook it and having no guns to shoot seized their oars, and after a hard battle killed him, and by the help of a woman got him into the boat and took the prize home. The bear was fat and after he was dressed weighed two hundred and fifty pounds. The woman with the boys tried all she could to persuade them to leave the bear alone, but they would not heed her, but pelled away at him till they ended his career. The Lake was six miles wide where the bear tried to swim across.

The Pope's bed chamber is an unpretending apartment, of no great size, scantily furnished, and without fire-place and without carpets. The bed is simple and unadorned with curtains. The room contains no sofas nor easy chairs, nor any of those articles of luxury to be found in the bed chambers of the wealthy. The window covering and coverlet of the bed are of red silk. The door of this bedroom opens on a small room or passage, used as the Pope's dining-room, and leading into his private library. In this intermediate room an altar was recently erected, and his Holiness, lying in his bed with the room door open, was enabled to assist at mass. For thirty days Pius IX remained in the bedroom, receiving his visitors sitting up in his bed. Twice a day the windows were opened for a few minutes at a time to admit fresh air. The room was warmed by a brazier, and the Cardinals had no room to sit down when visiting his Holiness.

COOLNESS IN DANGER.—The Indian prides himself upon taking good or ill in the quietest of ways, and from a story told in Mr. Marshall's "Canadian Dominion," his civilized half-brother would seem to be equally unemotional. Thanks mainly to a certain Metis or half-breed in the service of the Hudson Bay Company, a Sioux warrior was found guilty of stealing a horse, and condemned to pay the animal's value by instalment at one of the Company's forts. On paying the last instalment he received his quittance from the man who had brought him to justice, and left the office. A few moments later the Sioux returned, advanced on his noiseless mocassins within a pace of the writing-table and levelled his musket full at the half-breed's head. Just as the trigger was pulled the Metis seized the hand with which he was writing and touched lightly the muzzle of the gun; the shot passed over his head, but his hair was singed off in a broad mass. The smoke clearing away, the Indian was amazed to see that his enemy still lived. The other looked him full in the eyes for an instant, and quietly resumed his writing. The Indian silently departed unperceived, those who would have given chase being stopped by the half-breed with, "Go back to your dinner and leave the affair to me."

Another freshet has occurred in Virginia sweeping away the bridges which has just been repaired after being injured by the December freshet.

There is a great difference between a sick girl and a brick-bat, but it shrinks to the size of a single letter when we speak of the one as a miss ill and the other as a missile.

"My dear," said a husband, in starting tones, after waking his wife in the night, "I have swallowed a dose of strychnine!" "Well, then, do, for goodness sake lie still or it may come up," she replied.

There is a precocious six year old boy who is wonderful on spelling and definition. The other day his teacher asked him to spell, "matrimony." "M-a-t-r-i-m-o-n-y," said the youngster promptly. "Now, define it," said the teacher. "Well, replied the boy, 'I don't exactly know what it means but I know mother's got enough of it.'"

A recent advertisement contains the following: "If the gentleman who keeps the shoe shop with the red head will return the umbrella of a young lady with whale-bone ribs and an ivory handle to the slate roofed grocer's shop he will hear something to his advantage as the same is the gift of a deceased mother now no more with the name engraved upon it."

"John, how does it happen that you, who tried so hard to get your wife through a long and hopeless courtship of four years, now that you have won the prize, seem to care so little about her?"—"Why, I'll tell you. I've heard of a man who wanted to jump over a stone wall. He took a good start and ran a mile, and when he got up to the wall he was so tired that he had to lie down and go to sleep by the side of it. Now, I loved my wife so long before I could get her, that I found my love had all run out when I had her fast."

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and become convinced.—Thos. Robinson, Farmham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. East, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q. writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in case of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it equally as good for horse as man."—A. Mayber, Merchant, Wakefield, writes, "I have sold some hundred bottles of Electric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence.'—Joseph Ross, Toronto, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Electric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."

Beware of Imitations. Ask for Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. See that the signature of S. S. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price 25 cents. NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for Dominion.
