Stanley in London.

THE EXPLORER'S SPLENDID RECEPTION.

(London Despatch to the N. Y. Herald.)

On the evening of the 8th Henry M. Stanle dined with His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and after enjoying the hospitalities of St. James' Palace proceeded to the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society at St. James' Hall, where he delivered a lecture before an immense assemblage.

Over three thousand persons were present, including the leading nobility and nearly every distinguished personage in London associated with science, art, and literature. All the tickets were special and complimentary, and the invitation so extended was eagerly availed of, and the spacious hall was thronged.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by Prince Louis Napoleon, ex-Prince Imperial of France; the son of the Khedive of Egypt and Midhat Pasha, also attended the meeting, testifying by their presence the appreciation with which Mr. Stanley's great geographical success is regarded by the Royal Family of England.

Mr. Stanley, on appearing on the platform, was received with immense cheering, the whole assemblage rising to greet him. Standing before this vast audience, which represented the wealth and culture of England, his breast blazing with decorations received from kings and the chiefs of the republic of science, the gallant explorer silently bowed his acknowledgements of the honours tendered to him.

On rising to deliver his impromptu lecture Mr. Stanley spoke with a clear, firm voice, and, with a most happy blending of humor, pleasantry and pathos, gave a graphic description of his wonderful journey across Affrica. For two hours he held the attention of the assemblage without wearying his hearers in the least by scientific or prosaic language.

Although speaking without the preparation usual for such occasions Stanley sketched pictures of the scenes and events of his journey, dwelling sometimes on the most interesting details and evoking the heartiest applause. He told of the bloody and desperate battles for life with the hostile and cannibal natives; of the terrible cataracts that threatened destruction of his whole party, embarked as it was in frail canoes; of the horrors of famine that so frequently proved nearly as fatal as human enemies; of his rescue by the white men from Emboma, when his weary and famished followers were brought to the verge of utter despair, and his final and fortunate arrival on the Atlantic coast at the mouth of the great River Congo.

His description of the return of the survivors of the noble band of natives who had accompanied him across the African continent to their homes at Zanzibar was one calculated and did not fail to touch the sympathies of his hearers. When the wanderers arrived on their beloved island of palms and mangroves, and to their wondering families, they knelt down on the sea shore and kissed their native sands in transports of joy and thankfulness. When Mr. Stanley concluded his lecture he was greeted with prolonged applause.

After the cheering had subsided the Prince of Wales addressed the assemblage in a speech filled with compliments to Stanley. The praise of the Prince of Wales was regarded as unusually significant.

The distinguished African traveller and explorer, Sir Samuel Baker, followed the Prince of Wales in a brief address. After complimenting Stanley on his great achievements he said only African travellers could fully appreciate Stanley's great feat.

Five Years' Statement Cured by Four Bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy. Pain in Shoulders, Back and Lungs, and Droppings in Throat Disappear.

ST. ARMAND, P. Q., Sept. 12, 1877.

MR. T. J. B. HARDING.

DEAR SIR,—Being desirous that others may know something of the merits of your CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY, I wish to inform you what it has done for me. I am 35 years old, had been out of health for about five years. I had employed three or four different doctors, and tried various medicines, without receiving any permanent benefit, but continued rather to grow worse, until last fall, when I had become so bad as to be unable to do an hour's work at a time. I had severe soreness and pain under the shoulder blades and through the shoulders, with very same back, and a feeling in my right lung as though there was a weight bearing it down, with continual dropping in the throat and down upon the lungs. Such was my condition when I commenced to take your Catarrh Remedy, one bottle of which, and my pains and sore me an improved appetite, and after taking four bottles I was restored to health, so as to be able to endure hard and confined labor, such as chopping and clearing land, at which I have been engaged the past season. My recovery I attribute solely, with God's blessing, to the use of your Catarrh Remedy. Yours truly,

Price $1 per bottle. HENRY SMITH.
