Durham, February 21, 1878.

-Few things show more conclusively the growth and the power of public opinion in these days than the recent action of the Liberal Party of the English House of Commons in appointing a Committee from among their number to watch the developing of the Eastern question so as to prewest the Government from drifting into war. Less than two hundred years ago the Durham, we shall esteem it a favor. united influence of both sides of the House could not prevent the King doing what seemed to him best as to peace or war.

-It is to be noticed that on Saturday morning on the conclusion of the debate the address in the House of Commons a number of the Reports of the Heads of the Government Departments were placed on the table of the House, and that on Monday the remaining reports were brought down, forming a marked contrast with the state of affairs under the Cartier-Macdonald administration when the Reports came dropping in one by one down until the end Grey, will be held on Friday May 3rd. of the Session and some not even then.
