FIT TO BE A WIFE.
"Really, Kate, you have succeeded very well. Where my daughters are all so truly accomplished I dare not draw comparison, but I must say to you that I consider your education perfect."
And thus speaking, Mrs. Lanark, a lady of five-and-forty, and the mother of three grown up daughters lay back in her easy chair and gently waved her fan.
Kate, the youngest of the three daughters, had just risen from the piano-forte, where she had been showing her parents how much she had improved upon her last course. She was nineteen years of age, and her form was of the pure female type—not robust, nor yet fatty-like, but after the models which the old Greeks used to adopt when they wished to sculpture an Ariadne or an Euphrosyne. Touching her face—it was certainly a good-looking face. To call such a face pretty would sound tame and flat.

Mrs. Lanark thought Isabel and Bertha both prettier than Kate, but Mr. Lanark was of a different opinion. However upon one point there was no dispute. The Judge would often say:
"Well, my little Kate looks good, anyhow," and nobody ever disputed him.
Isabel and Bertha were the other two, twenty-one and twenty-three. They had graduated at a very fashionable school and were deemed very highly accomplished; and moreover they were called beautiful.
Judge Lanark was the father of these girls. He was a man of means, though not of large wealth. He had been a successful lawyer, and was now upon the Bench; his social position was of the highest—Government had been among his clients, and Senators looked to him for counsel and assistance.

"The Judge had reared two sons and had sent them forth to active, useful life; but his daughters he had left in his hands."
"Oftentimes," Mrs. Lanark continued, after Kate had taken a seat near her father, "it will come to you as well as sisters, but it will come to you by practice. I think I may say that your necessary list of accomplishments is full."
"Not quite," said Kate, with a nod and a smile. "There is one more accomplishment which I am determined to add to my list. I longed for it many times when I was at school, and I am led to long for it at many of the places I am forced to visit.
I must learn to cook."
"To what?" exclaimed Mrs. Lanark.
"To cook?" echoed Isabel and Bertha in concert.
"Ay," added Kate, "I shall not consider my womanly accomplishments complete until I can, with my own hands, make a loaf of wheaten bread fit to be set before father."
The Judge caught Kate by the hand and said: "Good!"
Isabel and Bertha smiled defiantly.
Their looks implied that they considered the thing ridiculous.
Mrs. Lanark looked up in surprise and deprecation. It seemed a reflection on her educational care for her daughters.

Kate saw the look and she speedily advised: "I do not mean a loaf of such soggy stuff as some of our friends make of cream and tartar and bicarbonate—nor yet a loaf of the putty stuff that comes to us from the baker's—but I mean a loaf of such bread as my mother used to make when I was a little child."
Mrs. Lanark was mollified but not converted. "Ah, Kate, times have not changed since I was young," muttered the Judge.
"For the worse," muttered the Judge.
But his wife did not notice him. She went on:
"You had better leave the making of bread to the help in the kitchen. If ever you have a home of your own I trust you will have enough else to occupy your time without doing the work of your servants." "If I ever have a home of my own," said Kate with mild decision, "I am determined that I will be able to superintend every part of it. My servant employed in my household shall be able to look down upon me. I shall not be the slave or the victim of my cook."
"Good," cried the Judge again. "Go at it, Kate, and I will furnish the material.
Waste a dozen barrels of flour if necessary —only bring me a grand good loaf of your own making and baking in the end." Mrs. Lanark still thought it foolish; and Isabel and Bertha characterized it as very childish and whimsical. They fancied that it smacked of the nursery and the play room.

But Kate was in earnest; and as her father backed her up she carried the day, and gained the freedom of the kitchen, where the servants soon came to love and respect her.
The following winter Isabel and Bertha spent in the city. Kate remained at home because her mother could not well spare them.
During their visit to the great metropolis the older sisters made many friends and formed very pleasant associations. Among others they met with Roland Archworth, a young banker, whose father had been Judge Lanark's classmate and chum in college. In their letters home they informed in the father of the fact, and the Judge, remembering the elder Archworth with respect and esteem, and knowing the son to be the occupant of an exalted position in society invited the young man to visit him at his country home.

And thus it happened that when the summer came, Ronald Archworth came up to the Lanark's pleasant home. He was a young man of five-and-twenty, and was, to the expression of one who knew him well, "every inch a man." He had inherited a fortune from his father, and he was now a partner in the house which his father had founded. There was no speculation in the business which he followed, with banking capital fully equal to the greatest possible emergency, and its wealth was constantly increasing.
Is it a wonder that Mr. Lanark's heart flattered when the prospect dawned upon him that possibly the young banker might seek one of her daughters for a wife? She cared not whether he chose Isabel or Bertha. They were both accomplished and either would make a good mate for him.

And we do not do the Judge injustice when we say that even he allowed himself to hope that the son of his old classmate might find in his heart to love one of the girls. He studied the youth's character well, and he believed it to be one of the purest and best.
And Isabel and Bertha, O'ercome there was rivalry between them. But they agreed that they would abide the issue.
If Isabel was selected to preside over the youthful millionaire, Bertha would not complain; and should Bertha prove the fortunate one, Isabel was prepared to yield.
One thing happened very unfortunately.
On the very day of Archworth's arrival, the cook was taken sick. What was to be done?
"Never mind," said Kate, with a smile;
"I will take the reins until the cook gets well."
"But for mercy's sake," implored Isabel, "don't let Mr. Archworth know it! He belongs to a sphere which would be shocked by such gross impropriety. He would look upon us as belonging to the canaille."
But there was no help for it, and Kate went into the kitchen and took command of the forces in that quarter.
"Will you have some of this cake, Mr.
Archworth?" asked Mrs. Lanark, lifting the silver basket of frosted pastries.
"No," replied the visitor, with a smile.
"If you will allow me to exercise my own will you will please me. This plain bread is a luxury such as I do not often meet. It takes me back to my boyhood's days. I have not eaten such since I left the bread my own mother made. If ever I keep home for myself I think I shall ask you to send me your cook."
For the life of them they could not help the betrayal of emotion.

Poor Kate, who sat exactly opposite the speaker, blushed until it seemed as though all the blood in her body was rushing into her face; while Isabel and Bertha trembled as they might have trembled upon the verge of a frightful precipice. The Judge laughed aloud.
"You got your foot into your horse, and you'll find you'd got a Tartar, my boy," he said. And then, to turn the subject, he asked:
"Remember your mother very well, Roland, and have eaten her bread."
And thus the conversation softened down into the poetry of other days.
As for Roland and Kate, their happiness was complete, and all the accomplishments which his wife possessed, the husband is chiefly proud of that which enables her to be in debt, as well as in name, the mistress of his home.

Normanby Council.
The council of the township of Normanby met for the adjournment of last session at township hall on Feb. 20th, 1879.
Present—John König, Reeve; George H.
Koenig, First Deputy-Reeve; Henry A.
McMahon, Second Deputy-Reeve, and John Blyth and Andrew O'Farrell, Councillors.
Minutes of last meeting read and assented to.
Moved by Mr. Schenk, seconded by Mr.
Blyth, That culvert let in Hamston's tract in 1878 be paid for amount of $2.—
Carried.
Mr. O'Farrell, on ground that it was a wrong imposition to pay for a job that council knew nothing of, asked for years and years. Years—Schenk, Blyth, McMahon, Koenig; Nays—O'Farrell.
A number of ratepayers from P.S. sections 1 and 14, Normanby, presented a petition signed by persons living in the township of Egrement, asking council to appoint an arbitrator of Egrement in forming a Union School section from portions of Egrement and Normanby.
Messrs. George A. Privat, Isaac Wilkinson, Robert Rogers and George Hopland addressed the council in favour of appointing an arbitrator to favour Union School, and Messrs. George Stewart and Andrew McClivley against appointment or union.
After considerable discussion by these parties and council, it was moved by Mr.
O'Farrell, seconded by Mr. McMahon, That when resolution in public meeting in sections 1 and 14 of this township is passed asking for certain lots to be detached therefrom to form said union, this council will grant prayer of petition by appointing said arbitrator.—Carried.
The auditors presented report on 1878, until after said day.—Lost.

The President took back agreements to have them written in the new and with additions mentioned by council.
On motion made and seconded, council adjourned until Tuesday next, the 26th day of January, A.D. 1879, to meet at Beckin's hotel, Ayton village,
W. H. RYAN, Tp. Clerk.

The council of the township of Normanby met according to adjournment of last session, at Beckin's hotel, Ayton village, on February 25th, A.D. 1879. Present, John Koenig, Reeve; George H. Schenk, First Deputy-Reeve; Henry A. McMahon, Second Deputy-Reeve; and John Blyth and Andrew O'Farrell, Councillors.
The President of the Stratford and Huron Railway Company attended and present council with amended agreements.
Mr. McMahon, of Guelph, Solicitor for township trustees, and was handed township by-laws, agreements presented on behalf of company, and copy of act said to have received its third reading.
As Mr. McMahon stated he would at least require until to-morrow to give opinion, it was moved by Blyth, seconded by McMahon, that council adjourn until to-morrow morning at ten o'clock to receive opinion of Solicitor on questions now presented to them in writing.—Carried.
Council met from adjournment of yesterday all the members present.
The company's Solicitor attended and gave explanations relative to agreements and act just passed Ontario Legislature.
Schenk moved, seconded by Blyth, that council go into committee to examine agreements and compare them with conditions in by-laws, and that Mr. O'Farrell act as chairman.—Carried.
Council went into committee, Mr. O'Farrell chairman; committee rose without reporting; council resumed; all the members present. Township Solicitor presented his written opinion on questions submitted.

The council asked for condition to be inserted in agreement under by-law granting the $50,000, limiting the time for the commencement of railway in Township of Normanby, and the completion of same in said township in same terms as are inserted in agreement under by-law granting the $30,000, namely: That road should be commenced within eighteen months after final passing of by-law No. 6, of 1874, and finish ed within two years of such commencement.
The President commented stating he wished to meet any reasonable arrangement asked by the council or that came fairly within intentions of by-laws. The condi-tion's solicitor in presence of township Solicitor, made necessary change by inserting a clause in the agreement to provide for such commencement and completion.
After changes were made in agreement the President acknowledged same as portion of said agreement.
Schenk moved, seconded by O'Farrell, that having read and examined the agreement, as amended of the Stratford and Huron Railway company to corporation of township of Normanby, presented by the President of said Company, and having compared it with the conditions in by-law No. 10, of 1874, and having obtained good professional advice relative thereto, the President of said company having signed said agreement and attached the corporate seal of the company thereto the Reeve of this township be authorized and required to sign said agreement on behalf of this corporation and attach the corporate seal thereto.—Carried.

Blyth moved, seconded by McMahon, that agreements under by-laws No. 10 of 1874 and No. 6 of 1878, being satisfactorily completed the debentures under said by-laws be signed by Reeve and Treasurer and seal attached thereto and that after attention of debentures of trustees of municipality south of Normanby to trustees under by-laws of said municipality, the Reeve of this township deliver debentures of this township to aforesaid trustees.—
Carried.
McMahon moved, seconded by Blyth, that township Solicitor be paid in full for his services the sum of $25.—Carried.
O'Farrell moved, seconded by Blyth, that our best thanks are due and hereby tendered to J. P. McMillan, Barrister, of Guelph, for his very efficient services rendered to council at this session, relative to course to be pursued under by-laws of this township granting eighty thousand dollars to Stratford and Huron Railway company.—
Carried.
Schenk moved, seconded by McMahon, that Reeve and clerk meet trustees at Eastwood, and deliver up the debentures under by-law No. 10 of 1874 and by-law No. 6 of 1878, amounting altogether to $80,000.—Carried.
O'Farrell moved, seconded by Blyth, that cost of telegrams on railway business amounting to $1.68, be paid.—Carried.
Schenk moved, seconded by McMahon, that clerk send copy of minutes to Mr.
Klein's paper at Neustadt, for publication in German language, and that $5 be allowed for such services to said clerk per year carried.
adjourned to meet at township hall, on May 26, 1879.
W. H. RYAN, Tp. Clerk.

Thousands of people are idle at Macleod field because of the strike in the Globe cotton spinning mills.
It is rumored that the promoters of the railway project in Manitoba have come to an agreement which will facilitate the obtaining of a charter from Parliament for a colonization road running north-westward from the same city, as to lay the Sarnia River and the other Meuntonie stretches.
An epidemic of a fatal sort is extensively raging at Silver Lake, La. As the only doctor died here, and his assistant was an inexperienced young man, Dr. Le Roy Campbell of Toronto set sail in an open sailed boat across Lake Superior from Duluth in a storm, and risking all the perils, arrived at Silver Lake in time to help, arriving at Silver Lake in time to help, arriving at Silver Lake in time to
