THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The first session of the fourth Parliament of Canada has been brought to a close, and will be long remembered as marking an epoch in the history of our country During the late election good times were promised to all and sundry if only the To ries were put into office. Very many beeved these rash promises but, although Sir John and his friends have been secure'y seated on the Treasury benches, the good than ever. The National Policy which was then, and has been since, cried up as the unfailing Panacea, has been put into practical operation, but instead of good the people have so far reaped evil from its working. Another piece of legislation which make this session notoricus in the annals of Canadian history is the re-inauguration of the old Pacific Railway scheme. The Government of Mr. Mackenzie during the last five years proceeded as rapidly with building of the railway as the resources of the country would warrant. But this cautious policy does not suit the extravagance of the present Government, and consequently they have asked for, and received powers to construct the Railway by whatever route they may choose, to lock up 100 million acres of lands in the North-Westall the good arable land in that territority according to the evidence of competent authorities-with which to construct this take place at the Town Hall, Durham. railway to sell the same at $2 per acre. and all without being required to submit the -Dr.Clarke the agricultural lecturer for matter any further to Parliament. > As an evidence of the working of the National Policy the Hamilton Times states that forty moulders "emigrated" from Hamilton last week to find work in shops in the United States. The employers there were unable to give them the wages they asked and could get elsewhere, and they packed their "kits" and left. It is said some of the iron manufacturers in town will be compelled to increase their wages or have their shops emptied. This they cannot do, by reason of the onerous grinding of the new tariff, unless they also increase the price of their goods. It is reported that the week before last one line of manuprices of their wares five per cent., but we understand the question of paying more wages to their men did not enter into the calculation, nor was it considered.
