

Standard warns... Cavagnari's Successor... The Government of India has picked out from among all its competent servants an Irish surgeon to accompany General Roberts as political agent to Cabul, and will, in all probability, make him the next envoy to the Afghan Court, with full control over our relations with the country. That is, says the Spectator, a curious fact, even in India, where surgeons have once or twice played great parts, and would deserve twice, if only as an event in the history of the Empire which a surgeon may be said to have founded. The political agent, moreover, with an expedition is always the most important person in it, and so much will depend on this one that it may be worth while to occupy a page in explaining who he is and what his political opinions are. Mr. Bellor—as he is styled by an inveterate Anglo-Indian habit, Dr. Bellor—is, even in India, where men are so individual, a very remarkable person. The son of a French Major Bellor, who lost his life in the disastrous retreat from Cabul in 1842, he displayed in boyhood an unusual devotion to scientific pursuits, more especially to botany and surgery. After a course of study at St. George's Hospital in 1854, and when scarcely twenty-one years of age, he received his surgeon's diploma and an appointment in the East Indian Company's medical service, then a close corporation. He was, however, so exceptionally young that he could not legally take up his commission, and went out to Surtani to the military hospital, there to pass the novel interval as a medical volunteer. At Surtani he made himself so useful, and received such testimonials from the surgeons in command, that on his arrival in India, in 1855, Lord Canning guided in his hands the medical charge of the Guides, then, as now, the crack corps of the Irregular services. While acting in this capacity, in 1857, Sir H. Lamond, who had raised the Guides, took him with him on his mission to Cashmere. There the young doctor, still hardly more than a lad, set up a dispensary and to him throughout Afghanistan and the frontier, of being the greatest among the English hakims, the one whom a great multitude could most advantageously consult. He cured Shahrin, a ruler of a powerful district, and the Amer, in return, actively assisted him with troops and access to ancient MSS. in the studies of Afghan history and dialects to which he devoted himself, and in which he acquired an extraordinary range of knowledge. He is probably the second best Pashto scholar alive, and when, in 1872, he was selected to accompany Sir E. Pulteney to Sistan to settle boundaries, he in six months acquired and reduced to a systematic grammar a previously unwritten language of the province, a feat declared by the Saturday Review, "I remember right to be peculiarly unexampled. This manner, a second mission to Yarkand with Sir Douglas Forsyth and his special reputation as a hakim who could understand any man's tongue, which, on his return to India, brought chiefs over the mountains to him as on a pilgrimage, gave him an unusual acquaintance with the leading men of both the frontier and Afghanistan, and during a few weeks since Lord Lytton's Afghan expedition, still a practicing surgeon, for the first diploma appointment in Afghanistan, no one in the north-east was either surprised or envious. Service statistics are apt to give way in India when work is to be done, and the Viceroy had selected the best informed man and most experienced envoy he could find among the men who held opinions favorable to the policy of advancing the Empire beyond the Salween.

Health is Happiness.—Necessitates.—A very great number of those in the middle and higher classes of society, who, without being over actually sick, yet have what real health is; who live constantly in a lower plane of living than is normal in men, who are weak all over, though not especially and constantly weak in any one organ, who may not experience burning and grinding pain, yet suffer at times, if not always, that protracted exhaustion which in many respects is worse than pain. These in that lamentable state have always been relieved, and many persons recently so by using the Victoria Syrup of Hypophosphites, it being practically adapted for those cases. For sale by all dealers.—100.

A HOUSEHOLD OF CATTLE.—The estate of Goff & Co., Cincinnati, were burned on Saturday night, with 950 cattle; loss, $10,000. The cattle destroyed present a sickening sight. It is now estimated 950 carcasses are piled together in the cellar of the burned wall. Ten head that escaped from the fire after being badly burned were put to death.

FALL OF A RAILWAY BRIDGE.—The west span of the St. Louis, Kansas City and Northern railroad bridge, crossing the Missouri river at St. Charles, fell on Saturday night, with a stock train of seventeen cars, which, with seven men, was precipitated into the river. One car, with the conductor, engineer, and fireman, was saved by the breaking of the connection between the cars. Three dead and three badly injured men were recovered from the river.

EXPLOSION IN A CIGARETTE FACTORY.—The daily and cigarette factory of Carl & Sons, Kansas City, was wrecked on Saturday by an explosion. One hundred and seven persons, mostly boys and girls from twelve to twenty years, were at work in the factory. All escaped except seven. The cause of the accident has not been determined, but is supposed to be a repetition of the mysterious Park-street explosion in New York last year, namely, a stack explosion. As soon as the walls fell the building took fire. The five men were on hand in five minutes, and by their efficient services the flames were kept from extending to the buildings adjoining.

It is announced that Colonel Gordon, one of the most remarkable men England has produced during the present century, is about to resign his position as governor of the Sudan country in Central Africa. He commenced his active service at the head of the Chinese army, at a time when China was so rent with rebellion as to threaten the existence of the present dynasty. His skill and bravery saved the falling fortunes of the Government, and routed the rebels in every direction. Upon leaving the service he received the thanks of the Chinese Government, and Prince Kung addressed a letter to the English Government recommending him to its highest consideration. His next mission was the destruction of the horrible slave trade in Central Africa, and the establishment of peace and civilization in that region. This great work he has accomplished, and the slave trade has been suppressed and destroyed, and the whole Sudan country has been elevated up to commerce and organized upon a general and civilized basis. His last great work was the prevention of war between Egypt and Abyssinia. As he announced that he would resign when his term was completed, his resignation may now come at any time.

The woman Lulu Ellis, tried at the Belleville Assizes for shooting and killing Daniel McIntyre, was on Wednesday acquitted by the jury. The shooting was not denied, the prisoner pleading justification.

Said the other day a thinking farmer—"That the wheat we have to sell is high, we owe to Providence. That everything we have to buy is high, we owe to the N. P." The farmer's epigram correctly summarizes the situation.

A census of Newmarket has recently been taken, and the total population has been given as 2,021. Proceedings are being instituted for the incorporation of the village into a town. The place has been for twenty-one years incorporated as a village.

Among other Indian curiosities a quantity of wampum has been discovered in Indian caves in the precipitous banks of the Grand River at Elora. This would indicate that the locality was once a place of council. Traces of an ancient prairie and river-crossing are pointed out on the banks of Irvine River just above where it empties into the Grand River.

The most perilous hour of a person's life is when he is tempted to respond. No one should respond—neither the young man who is enticed, both mentally and physically, by habits of early indolence, as Victoria Bach and Uva Urai will cure the most distressing case of kidney disease, etc. For sale by all dealers, at $1 per bottle.—100.

A lady named Mrs. Mary Avery in Pike County, Pa., while walking at night got fast in a mire, and remained in that position eight days before being discovered and rescued. Mrs. Avery was found in a semi-comatose condition. The doctors say that in all probability her mind will be seriously impaired, the mental strain while in the bog for eight days having been terrible.

A trade is springing up between France and the Argentine Confederation, in the employment for tanning purposes of the bark of a tree called Quercus coscinoda, of which 25,000 tons have been recently ordered by a French firm. It is said to be far superior to oak tan, inasmuch as it considerably shortens the length of time (nearly one-half) which the hides have to remain in the tan-pits.

The Paris Bourse has been thrown into a tremendous state of excitement by the sudden disappearance of Philippot, one of the most gigantic speculators in that city. He seems to have had a career both remarkable and brilliant. Bursting like a comet upon the financial horizon of Paris in 1874, he soon became prominently connected with many companies, created the Banque Franco-Hollandaise, and became President of the Credit Mobilier. But with the suddenness of a comet his success came to an end; he failed, with liabilities to the extent of twenty-eight million francs. Four years of seclusion had almost cast this into oblivion, when he again appears, creating the Banque Europeenne, raises a capital of one hundred million francs, and then throws himself into all kinds of speculation which ends by his flight, with debts amounting to nearly seven million francs against him.
