MISCELLANEOUS. THE ROOF OF IRENS TROUBLES.—How ever it may be with the crop of 'laters, the crop of ag-itators never seems to fail.—Punch. AN IDEAL CONVIVUM.—Our sub-editor was once talking to a man for three-quarters of an hour right off, when the man interrupted him saying, "I beg pardon, but can you inform me why I am, at the present moment, like a pine plank?" Our sub-editor gave it up! Said the man, "Because I am a deal bored?" To this day, our sub-editor does not know what that man meant—and we won't tell him. A certain old gentleman, very rich and still more stingy, is in the habit of wearing his clothes to the last thread. One of his friends, meeting him, exclaimed: "They told me that you had a new hat, and I'll be hanged if you haven't!" "Oh, yes," said the miser, looking as if he were a trifle ashamed of himself, "you see my wife kept telling me that the old one was a good deal worn out. Well, yesterday was my wife's birthday, and I got myself a new hat for her birthday present.

AMUSING INCIDENT.—Once upon a time— not more than a month ago—and not many miles from this village, there is a certain residence where a very amusing incident occurred. An old cow, with one horn, made the practice of leaving the fields and taking daily walks to the doors of this certain residence to see what good things she could help herself to. Her close proximity to the pleasure or peace of the good lady within, for, ever and anon, a kind of rapping could be heard. And as Waldemar and vicinity have their share of peddlars, one of these perigrinating gentlemen happened to call at this house where the one horned cow so often visits. When he rapped at the door, he expected, without a doubt, that he would be met by a smiling face, and warmly welcomed; but alas, unfortunately for the pedlar, the cow with the crumpled horn had been there before him, and had had the good lady worked up almost to a boiling point. So immediately on hearing the pedlar's rap, she seized a broom handle, which, by the way had not much of a sweeping part on it, marched to the door, opened it with lightning speed and belabored the poor pedlar a couple of blows on the head before she realized her mistake. Things were that sudden for the pedlar that he had no time in the world to explain, so the next best thing for him to do was to take the "right about face." He, however, still pursues his honest calling, and is strongly of the opinion that a mistake has been committed somewhere.—Orangeville Gazette.

HEROIC EFFORT OF THE "HUASCAR" TO AVOID DEFEAT AND CAPTURE.—PANAMA, Nov. 6.—The Chilean Admiral's report of the Huascar's capture credits her officers and crew with the utmost heroism. He reports that the Huascar was "lattered that she is probably useless. Particulars of the contest show that the Huascar made a terrible fight against hope. Admiral Grau was shot while in the observation turret and carried below. A three-hundred-pound shot subsequently crushed the Huascar's steering gear, passed through the vessel, leaving a great breach, and killed Grau, his aide, and several others. The Huascar then became unmanageable, and was left completely at the mercy of the Chileans. One gun was disabled. Out of 216 men only 86 were left alive, and a majority of these were wounded. Five commanders had succeeded each other in their perilous post; three were dead, one grievously wounded, and the fifth barely able to maintain his trumpet, and yet the first Chilean boarding party was successfully driven off. This was the expiring effort, and the next boarding party seized the vessel.
