-The London Free Press,a well-inform ed journal says that the English meat trade with Australia has within a short period undergone an extraordinaraily rapid growth. Owing to the use of refrigerators and the quick passages now made from Australia to England, fresh beef and mutton can be delivered in Liverpool from Australia with dispatch and in the most perfect state of preservation. Australia will thus ere long become a formidable competitor with American stock raisers in the British markets. What with the mild climate, and fertile plains of almounlimited extent, stock raising and wool growing would seem to be her notural industries; and as Australian bee can be laid down at eight cents per pound competitor she is likely to become in the meat trade. The engineering achievements of this century, beyond a question, are those for which it will be most famous and longest remembered. Theologians and philosoph ers may split hairs about metaphysical science, but they will all join in the celebration of what the engineers have done for modern progress.

The past fifty years have been the most quest which was held on Wednesday by frutful in the whole history of engineering Coroner Albery, it would appear that George and therefore the review of its accomplish Brown and two other young men named ments in that time, given in a recent ad-McIntosh and McEachren were at the sta- dress by William Henry Barlow, the Pres ble looking at the horses, and while there ident of the Institution of Civil Engineers McIntosh produced an old revolver which of England, has a general interest. The total mileage of railways in the United States was, at the beginning of 1880, 86,253 miles, or one mile of railroad for every 574 inhabitants, a ratio greatly in excess of that of Europe, which has one mile of railroad to every $.3.10 persons.
