

The Humorous Effect of Typographical Errors.

The misplacement of a comma or the omission of a word often introduces into a sentence confusion of thought or completely destroys its meaning, turning sense into nonsense, solemnity into levity, and sacredness into ludicrousness.

1. THE PULPIT. This is the most sacred of all places on the face of the earth; but it is nevertheless the frequent scene of blunders, analogous in cause and effect to those which are often committed in literature through the negligence of the writer.

Again, in an amusing little essay on "Quotation, Good and Bad," which he has contributed to a religious periodical, Dr. Joseph Parker relates a very anecdote of a Scotch divine who adjured his hearers to refrain from reading Shakespeare.

2. THE COMMON PRAYER BOOK. This is a fine assortment of prayers correct in thought and expression, suitable for all occasions and circumstances; but it is sometimes made the opposite of itself through the negligence of the press.

3. THE BIBLE. This is the Book of books in its source, matter, and style; but it has often through translation, been made to assume ludicrous forms, hence, Quaker titles have been given to some old editions of the Bible.

The "Brechee" Bible was printed in Geneva, in 1660; and is so called from Genesis ii. 7, being translated, "they sewed fig-leaves together, and made themselves breeches," instead of aprons, as in our version.

The "Trecle" Bible was printed in 1668; and in it Jeremiah viii. 22 reads, "Is there treacle in Gilead?" &c., instead of balm.

The "H" Bible was printed in 1611, and takes its name from an error in Ruth iii. 15, "the measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her, and she went into the city," when the word should have been "she went into the city."

The "Wicked" Bible was printed in 1633, and was so named from its omitting the word "not" from the seventh commandment, making it read, "Thou shalt commit adultery," and this extraordinary omission occurred again in a German edition of 1732; so that there was a Wicked Bible in each language.

The "Vinegar" Bible was printed in 1707, and is so called from the headline of Luke xx., which, in it, is made to read, "The parable of the vineyard," instead of "The parable of the vineyard." The printer of this edition was John Baskett, of Oxford, and from his many errors in spelling and punctuation it was sometimes called, "A basket full of errors."

The "Hel-pot" Bible was the edition translated by Elliott for the Indians. Describing, by the sign of crossing his fingers, what he thought would represent the "lattice-work" through which the mother of Siseria cried (Judges v. 28), he asked the Indians for the proper word for it, and they gave him one, which he inserted in his translation, supposing, of course, it was right. But when he became more fully acquainted with their language, he found he had made the passage read, "The mother of Siseria looked out at a window and cried through the hel-pot," instead of "through a lattice."

WHAT TO DO WITH TURKEY.—The sick man is now little more than a putrefying corpse. The Sultan's palace is surrounded by troops and earthworks, behind which the wretched creature cowers in dread of de-ath or assassination. To suppose that Turkey can be regenerated by means of the ruling Turks is to ignore palpable facts.

A VERY CURIOUS CASE, which may possibly get into the court, has arisen in Australia. A Catholic merchant died some time ago, leaving the sum of $7,000 to the church, to deliver his soul from purgatory.

A guest was eating more bitter than his cut, while the landlady looked on and fidgeted, and hinted until she fairly went into a nervous fit. Finally she said, "Do you know butter is up to sixty-five cents a pound? The hungry guest reached out and took what there was left. 'Well,' he drawled, approvingly and re-answering, 'good butter is worth it.'—Rochester Express.

A Milwaukee man, who deposited one hundred dollars in a bank, and was told that the interest would be five per cent, came promptly at end of the twelve months with five dollars in small currency to pay that interest.

A locomotive engine drinks forty-four gallons of water with every mile it runs.

England's Curse and its Remedy.

The British flag is hoisted, In many a pleasant breeze, Proclaiming England's greatness, O'er distant lands and seas;

But Britain's power is waning— And must it, shall it sink, Slain by that fiery serpent, Her deadly foe, strong drink?

Can John Bull boast of freedom When to the drink a slave? For sixty thousand years! Go to a drunkard's grave.

How oft the hard earned wages Of the misguided poor Are spent within the gin-shops, Which fatally allure!

How many homes, once happy, Are hardly worth the name, Where alcohol is working Both misery and shame!

Think of the money squandered, Think of the waste of life, Think of the half-starved children, And the neglected wife.

Men rich in wealth and learning, With ladies not a few, Like poorer men and women, Head aching victims too.

The suicide and pauper, The murderer as well, With many a raving madman, The fatal truth might tell.

When legions are asked for To fight the poisonous stuff, Permission still is granted; Oh! Are there not enough?

And must our country's coffers Be filled to overflow, From traffic that is plunging Body and soul in woe?

No. VOTE FOR LEGAL OPTION. This duty's call obey: Your fellow-men are falling, No longer then delay.

Let every true abstinence Man gloriously lead his end, Crying, 'With brave Sir Wilfrid 'Down with the liquor trade!'

Undauntedly press onward The righteous cause to win, Sure is the end to conquer, For Britons never give in.

Then when the foe is vanquished And drunkenness shall cease, Sobriety will bless us With plenty, joy, and peace.

C. H. BERRY.

PUBLICITY, it appears, fatal to drinking except in cases of persons lost to shame.

In Vermont, where liquor is sold only to those names, the sale has been entirely stopped in St. Johnsbury by the regular publication of the list of purchasers.

In Massachusetts, where a recent law has been passed, enabling cities to prohibit the use of all shades and screens in liquor shops, a very partial application of the law in Boston has greatly offended the liquor dealers.

At a meeting of the business men of that section the subject was broached, but Mr. Lill said that he should never build nor own another brewery.

It was a business that demoralized both master and man on his premises. It was a manufactory of drunkards in constant operation; and the curse began in the brewery itself, where every man was a beer barrel in the morning and a barrel of beer at night.

At this point an old acquaintance in the audience called out: "Lill, what are we to do for that excellent ale of yours?" Mr. Lill answered: "Do without it, and be the better for it."—Julia Colma.

The Dominion Government has determined to make a pretty thorough exploration of the coal beds of the Souris Valley.

Professor Selwyn has been sent to that locality with the necessary assistance and boring apparatus to test the value of the coal field. Coal may be said to be a necessity for the rapid settlement of the North-west, and much of its future prosperity will depend upon the abundance of the fuel supply.

But the exploration should not be confined to this valley. Wherever there are good indications of coal the locality should be well tested.—Bruce Herald.

A man recently said: "Lend me a dollar My wife has left me and I want to advertise that I am not responsible for her debts."

A saloon-keeper, having started business in a place where trunks had been made, asked a friend what he had better do with the old sign, "Trunk Factory." Oh, said the friend, "just change the 'T' to 'D,' and it will suit you exactly."

"It is said that the male wasp does not sting," said a male and female wasp wear the same kind of poison, and look as much alike as twins, the only way to distinguish their sex is to catch one. If it stings you it is a female; if not, it is a gentleman wasp.

A Catholic merchant died some time ago, leaving the sum of $7,000 to the church, to deliver his soul from purgatory.

Now the executor of the will refuses to pay the legacy until proof is furnished that the soul of the dead had actually been delivered.

A guest was eating more bitter than his cut, while the landlady looked on and fidgeted, and hinted until she fairly went into a nervous fit.

Finally she said, "Do you know butter is up to sixty-five cents a pound? The hungry guest reached out and took what there was left. 'Well,' he drawled, approvingly and re-answering, 'good butter is worth it.'—Rochester Express.

A Milwaukee man, who deposited one hundred dollars in a bank, and was told that the interest would be five per cent, came promptly at end of the twelve months with five dollars in small currency to pay that interest.

When told that the five dollars went the other way, he looked up in astonishment and went away wondering why a man should pay him for being allowed to take care of his money for a whole year.

A MONSTER CLIP.

Few Canadians have any idea of the magnitude of the operations carried on by the leading Australian sheep farmers, and the labor and expense attendant on the working of a large station. Some statistics of the shearing at Burrumbidgee, one of Messrs. Edohs & Co.'s stations in New South Wales, may be of interest.

The past season's shearing lasted two weeks, and was finished the first week in December, by which time 206,123 sheep had been deprived of their fleeces. To do the work 100 shearers, in addition to the station hands, were employed, and in a single day as many as 8,316 sheep were shorn. The aggregate yield was 2,515 bales of dressed wool, each bale averaging 3 cwt. 3 qrs. of weight, so that the gross weight of the station fleeces was no less than 466 tons. The fleeces of the rams averaged 6 lbs., of the wethers 6 lbs., and of the breeding ewes and lambs 8 lbs., 15 oz.; the average weight of each of the 206,123 fleeces, of which 84,000 were taken off lambs, being only an ounce under 6 lbs. The wool was well grown, sound, and free from burr, and though Messrs. Edohs & Co. have in previous years shorn 8,000 more sheep, the number of lambs this year is 150 in excess of the yield of any former season.

The clip is the largest yet recorded in New South Wales, and much of the great success of this station is due to the attention paid by the manager, Mr. Dennis, to the proper classing of the sheep. The labor and care required for the proper carrying out of the work at a station of this size can only be thoroughly appreciated by those who have visited our Australian colonies, but the figures will suffice to give some idea of the advantage to accrue to the colony by the extension of its railway system so as to tap the Riverina district.

It seems that a discovery of silver within a short distance of Ottawa city has been made by a young man named Ardenham, who showed the specimens to Dr. Grant. The exact locality of the "find" is kept a secret, but it is known to be on the lower Ottawa near the river. The assay of ore made showed that the ore is rich.
