The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Hannah Knox for murder.

Watson v. FERNER.—This was a case in which a Mrs. Watson, of Artemesia, sought to recover damages from Mr. W. K.
Fletcher for alleged flooding of her land by a dam which the defendant had erected.

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 23.—Ferguson v.
Vetch, a seduction case, was tried at the last Assizes, when a verdict for $1,500 was brought in for the plaintiff. The defendant's attorneys applied for a new trial on the ground that evidence had been improperly admitted. The new trial being granted, the same came up again yesterday, when the jury, thinking the defendant had not before got what he deserved, returned a verdict for $1,500. It seems the defendant had no purpose in his purpose under the promise of marriage, for breach of which promise the girl also brought an action and recovered damages to the amount of five hundred dollars.

The Queen v. McLaughlin.—This was a case in which a man named Hugh Mc-Laughlin was tried on a charge of having murdered one Alex Fraser in the village of Markdale in June last whilst engaged in a drunken brawl. The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, and Mr. Justice Cameron rendered sentence. Mr. John Cresser, of Hamilton, prosecuted, and Mr. Charles McFayden defended the prisoner.

Owen Sound, Sept. 21.—At the Assize Court here to day the following cases were disposed of:—

Queen v. Hannah Knox.—This was a case in which the prisoner was charged with the charge of having murdered her husband, Thomas Knox, an old man of sixty-eight years of age, in the town of Owen Sound in April last. The jury returned a verdict of “not guilty.” Mr. John Cresser prosecuted and Mr. Chas. McFayden defended the prisoner.

Queen v. Mooney.—The defendant, Patrick Mooney, was tried on a charge of perjury for the signature of a forged deed.
The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and he was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Mr. D. A. Cresser defended the prisoner.

Hugh McLaughlin, who was tried and found guilty of manslaughter in the Markdale murder case, was to day sentenced to six months in the Central Prison.

McCormack, That the Treasurer pay to the Board of Mount Forest with respect to the amount of debt Mount Forest has to assume on the property taken by the corporation of Mount Forest from the Township of Egremont.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dawson, seconded by Mr.
Lawrence, That the Treasurer pay to the Board of Mount Forest for 2 days at Council Board $4, and for extra services $3; total $7. To Mr.
McCormack, for 2 days at Council Board $4, and for extra services $3; total $7.
To Mr. Dawson, for 2 days at Council Board $4. To Mr. Allen, for 2 days at Council Board $4, and for extra services $3; total $7.—Carried and orders given.

Moved by Mr. Dawson, seconded by Mr.
Lawrence, That this Council adjourn and meet again at Holstein on the 8th of October for the purpose of striking the rate and appointing the Collectors.—Carried.

R. E. LEGATE, Clerk.

No truth is clearer than that Scriptural declarations—“The blood is the life.” and the leaves shall be for the healing of the Nations.” Burdock Blood Balsam is purely vegetable, and makes pure, cool, revives, invigorates, and restores this system when impoverished by disease. One bottle, at the nominal cost of one dollar, will convince the most sceptical of the truth of these assertions.—Balsam.

Tragedy at Kinkora.
A FATHER DIES BY THE HANDS OF HIS SON.

On Monday night a terrible tragedy occurred at Kinkora, in the township of Ellendale, about 12 miles north-west of Stratford.
On the Monday morning the father and son went to Stratford. When they started for home the father was the worse of liquor.
At Kastner's hotel, on the Huron road, he was refused liquor by Mrs. Kastner at his son's request, and, falling backwards, struck his head heavily against a bench. The son, Mrs. Kastner says, picked the old man up most tenderly, lifted him into the wagon and turned his horse home, heading up the side line. What occurred between Seebach's hill and the Elendale home is known only to John Keelan. What occurred in the barnyard is least partially known.
Old man Keelan was a widower and there lived with him his son John, aged 20, Thomas, jr., aged 18, and their sister, who is housekeeper. While the father and the elder son were whitehunting in the barnyard, near a peacock-stack, the boy heard loud talking, and came to the conclusion that a quarrel was in progress. This was about nine o'clock in the evening. The younger brother went down to interfere, whereupon John, who had pulled off his coat and shirt chased him out of the yard.
Being terrified by the actions and threats of his brother, Thomas, jr., hid himself until brothers had quieted down, when emerging from his hiding place, he saw his father lying on the ground on his back. He had to ned the old man, when the latter gave a convulsive groan and expired. The youngster immediately hastened off to the house of his brother in law, Mr. Nicholas O'Hara, to whom he imparted the deadly intelligence. The nearer neighbours were aroused by the sister, and soon the ordinarily quiet settlement was the scene of the greatest excitement. Messengers were at once despatched for county constables, who arrived about daylight on Tuesday morning. John Keelan was a deep sleep at the time of his arrest. He had little feeling of emotion, and seemed either dazed or careless. Pauline, the house carrying, the officers haled John Keelan from the body of his father, as they were it did fall between the pea stack and the wagon. His only remark was, “I suppose that is what you want me for.” O’ the way the prisoner had very little to say about the cause of his arrest or the deadly enmity which circumstances justified.
His chief anxiety seemed that as the old man was dead he should not be convicted of having a hand in his death.
When the body was examined it was found there was no wound on it and there was a weapon about. John Keelan's shirt lay between the head and the peasant, where he had thrwn it, and a musket-bar from the wagon was the only possible weapon visible, but it bore no signs of having been used. There was a wound on the back of the head of the peasant and the nose, which had been sliced and was broken as if by a blow, the bridge representing an indentation, as though struck by a blunt weapon. The absence of blood was remarkable, but the discoloured condition of the forehead and the upper part of the face suggested that death had ensued not merely from the force of the blow or fall, but from a congested condition which would not have arisen had the blood flowed freely.

An inquest was held on Tuesday, but it was adjourned. Since then a verdict of manslaughter has been returned against John Keelan, who has been committed for trial.

sentenced to six months in the Central Prison.
