

Capture of A Young Thief.

Duncan Cameron, of Fergus, a youth between 16 and 17 years of age, has achieved a reputation for thieving that is very rarely equalled by a boy of his age. Although but little more than a mere lad in age or appearance, he is credited with having committed numerous burglaries in different parts of the country, while his path everywhere is said to be thickly strewn with thefts of every conceivable description. For more than 6 months past he has been wanted by the authorities here, but the only tidings received were news from time to time that he had committed some depredation elsewhere and escaped. It was suspected, however, that he was in or around Fergus since Christmas; but if so he managed to keep out of the sight of those who desired his capture till last Thursday night, when Mr. John Black did what the constables and detectives have so long endeavored to accomplish but failed. Since the railway stations at Fergus and Elora were broken into detectives from the cities have paid this place several visits. They were here last Thursday, and made a search of the premises of young Cameron's father as well as those of some of the neighbors, without, however, finding any trace of his game. It appears that the youth was hidden in Mr. Black's hay-mow at the time, from whence after those who were after him start for home he came out and went over to John McLean's, where he remained till dark. He then started back for the hay mow, and seeing a cutter coming along the road, in order to get out of sight he went into Mr. Black's field and hid himself beside a pile of stones. Mr. Black and Robert Robinson, jr., coming out of the cattle stable close by at the time saw something move beside the stone pile. Robinson got over the fence to see what or who it was, and as soon as he went into the field young Cameron jumped on the fence to get away, but was caught and securely held by Mr. Black. The prisoner was lodged in the lock-up over night, a man remaining with him to prevent possibility of escape. At 10 o'clock Friday forenoon he appeared before Messrs. Taylor, Cattenach and Beattie, J. P.'s, the court room being crowded to the door with spectators. The following charges were laid against the prisoner: (1) By John Elliott, farmer, of West Garrafrax, for stealing a pocket book containing $160 from a bureau drawer in his house about the 1st of June last; (2) By John Gale of Garrafrax, near Fergus, with stealing a gold watch, a suit of clothes and $11 in money from his dwelling about the end of August last; (3) with having broken into the Credit Valley Railway station in Fergus on the 4th of Jan. inst. and taken therefrom about $40 worth of clothing belonging to Mr. Brown the station master and $7 in money belonging to the R. R. Co.'s; (4) with having broken into the G. W. R. station at Fergus on two separate occasions, on the 4th and 10th of Jan. He is further suspected of having broken into the G. W. station at Elora; with stealing a coat, watch, &c., at Palmerston; with breaking into and stealing from the Grainger storehouse in Garrafrax dry goods and a box of tobacco valued at $60; with breaking open and stealing from a till at Lunan a few weeks ago; and with breaking open and stealing from the till of Mrs. Fleming's hotel in Douglas. In fact he was discovered while engaged in the thieves' work at Douglas, and lost his hat in the chase that ensued, while at Lunan he was arrested but made his escape. And at Palmerston the constables could not find him. Young Cameron admitted breaking into the C. V. station on the 4th inst. and stealing the clothing and money, but pled not guilty to the other accusations. He was wearing when caught a pair of over-shoes and some other articles identified as belonging to Mr. Brown. Detective Smith managed to worm himself into the prisoner's confidence to a certain extent, and ascertained where the remainder of Mr. Brown's clothes were hidden beneath a pile of opods on the road side less than a mile from his father's dwelling. The detective elicited no information, however, relative to any associates that the prisoner might have in his thieving expeditions. He was committed to stand his trial and taken to Guelph goal. -Fergus News-Record.

How long may a Man Live.

It was Prof. Hufeland's opinion that the limit of possible human life may be set at 200 years. This is on the general principle that the life of a creature is eight times the years of its period of growth. That which is quickly formed quickly perishes, and the earlier complete development is reached the sooner bodily decay ensues. More women attain remarkable longevity than men. Some animals grow to be very old. Horned animals live shorter lives than those without horns, fierce longer than timid, and amphibious longer than those which inhabit the air. The voracious pike exists, it is said, to the age of 140 years; the turtle is good for 100 years or more; and among birds the golden eagle is known to have lived 200 years; while the slow and sombre crow reaches the venerable age of a century. Passing up the particulars, we find many recorded instances of longevity among the classic Greeks and Romans. Pliny notes that in the reign of the Emperor Vespasian, in the year 66, there were 124 men living in the limited area between the Apennines and the Po of 100 years and upward, three of whom were 140 and four over 135. Cicero's wife lived to the age of 103, and the Roman actress Luceja played in public as late as her 112th year. Coming down to more recent times the most notable authentic instance of great age is that of Henry Jenkins, of Yorkshire, England, who died in 1670, 163 years old. He was a fisherman and at the age of one hundred easily swam across rapid rivers. Another historic case is that of Thomas Parr, of Shropshire, a day laborer, who lived to the age of 152 years. When more than 120 he married his second wife, and till 130 he could swing the scythe and wield the flail with the best of his fellow laborers. In his 152nd year Parr went up to London to exhibit himself to the King. It proved an unlucky visit, for violating the absterious habit of a century and a half the old man feasted so freely on the royal viands that he soon died merely of plethora. On examination his internal organs proved to be in excellent condition, and there was no reason why he should not have lived much longer save for his unfortunate last of royal hospitality. Prof. Hufeland's list of centenarians includes many more remarkable cases, among them that of Mettilstadt, a Prussian soldier, who served sixty seven years under both Fredericks, fighting many battles and enduring much hardship, and who after all this married successfully three wives, the last when he was 110, and only two years before his death. A Cleveland man began two libel suits against a newspaper and personally assaulted one of its reporters. His vindictive this vigorously begun ended the other day in his withdrawing all suits, and paying the reporter the net sum of $5,000. The rights of newspaper men can't be tampered with by rowdies with impunity. In reference to the last purchase of Barlock Blood Bitters, I have sold medicine for over twenty-five years, and in that time never sold a medicine that gave so good satisfaction. Take on for the disease recommended. It has always helped the patient to such a degree, that, warranting the medicine, every person who has used it has been cured. I can get you any quantity of testimonials if I had time to see parties, but we are very much done in our business. Yours with respect, H. LASHLEY, Elgin.
