Terrible Death.

A Leamington (Elgin Co.) correspondent sends particulars of a tragic event which occurred in that village last week. On Monday a 14-year-old son of Mr. McR. Selkirk, was found dead in his father's barn. At first it was supposed he had committed suicide by hanging, but further inspection showed that such could hardly have been the case, inasmuch as, although the nose of a rope suspended from a beam was around the boy's neck, one of the ankles was broken, and his back and neck were bruised. The boy was chained with gymnastic exercises, and in view of the injuries mentioned, it is thought that he had been pressing and fell from the beam to the barn floor, and was too badly hurt to move the rope from his neck. The nose was large enough to have dropped down over his body had he stood erect, and his knees were nearly to the floor. The rope had been some weeks ago attached to the beam for the purpose of raising a sick cow. Mrs. Selkirk, who was unwell at the time of the discovery of the melancholy end of her son, has since become so dangerously ill that her life is despaired of.

Naturalists Taken for Lunatics.

The Harvard Register has an amusing account of a scientific excursion in New England, made thirty years ago by Prof. Feltou, Prof. Guyot, Louis Agassiz his son Alexander—then a boy—and others. Young Agassiz, who did not know a word of English, was armed with a muslin bag on the end of a pole, to catch butterflies, with which, boy as he was, he was quite well acquainted. While waiting at South Acton for an express train, the account says: Agassiz saw a butterfly, and, having no net himself, called, "Alex! vite! bean papillon!" and the game was soon bagged. S. M. Feltou kicked over a large chip, and saw a huge beetle under it. Thinking it might be valuable, he called to the boy, "Alex! bean papillon!" When the lad came up, his merry laugh at finding a beetle called a butterfly was infectious, and none laughed more heartily than the one who had audaciously ventured on the misnomer. From that moment "bean papillon" was the watchword of the party; and every living thing which he thought Agassiz could possibly like to take to his "load factory on the Charles," as his incipient museum was called, was named, in as good French as he could master, a fine butterfly. We came to Bethlehem, N. H., and in going up a long hill, approaching from Littleton, we all got out and walked, except C. C. Feltou, who remained with the driver on the box. As we walked up the hill, running here and there, sweeping with the muslin net, turning over logs and stones, peering on frogs, etc., the driver said to Prof. Feltou, "who are those men you have with you?" "Oh," replied he, "they are a set of naturalists from an institution near Boston." In the stage was a man not of our party. He walked solemnly up the hill in front of us; he had preserved from his entrance into the stage a dozen miles back, a profound silence and very austere countenance, mingled with meanness. Suddenly he was observed to take off his hat, make various frantic swoops therewith, and finally, as the butterfly rose over a clump of tall alders, he sprang high in the air after it, making a last desperate swoop with his hat, and screaming for the first time, the watchword, "Bean Papillon!" at the top of his lungs and top of his compass. At that moment the down stage met ours, and as they passed, they both stopped an instant. The other driver gazed down the hill in astonishment, and said "What sort of lively freight have you there?" Our driver, leaning over, answered in a loud confidential whisper, "They are a set of naturalists from the asylum near Boston, their keeper just told me so."—Methodist.

FLOODS ON THE OHIO.—Since 1810 there has not occurred such a flood in the Ohio River in the month of June as the present one. The flood carried destruction on every hand from Pittsburg to Wheeling, a distance of 90 miles. Great anxiety is felt for the safety of property and lives, and the excitement has been great. Riverside Park and the business houses and residences on Muler-street in Stabenville, are flooded. The Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad was submerged. The water was up to the passenger depot, while the freight depot was completely submerged. Great suffering was caused in the sixth ward, which is almost entirely under water, and 500 people were compelled to leave their homes. The loss to property and the destruction of crops in the valley will reach one million dollars. The village of Warren 15 miles below, is completely submerged, and the people driven from home. On Friday a raft with five men on it, shooting piteously for help, was swept by the floods past Allegheny. The crews on shore could render no assistance. Two men were drowned at Allegheny and one at Pittsburg.

SIR Wm. THOMPSON ON THE DISCOVERY OF M. FAURE.—A special despatch says: Sir William Thompson, of the Glasgow University, writes a letter to the Times stating that by measurement no appreciable loss was incurred in transmitting a box of stored electricity from Paris to Glasgow. He says: "That a million foot pounds kept in the box during the seventy two hours' journey from Paris to Glasgow was no exaggeration. One of the four cells, after being charged again by the Laboratory battery, was then left to itself, absolutely unattended, for ten days. After that it yielded me 240,000 foot pounds, or a little more than a quarter of a million. This not only confirms M. Reynier's measurement, but it seems further to show that the waste of stored energy is not great, and for days and weeks, at all events, it may not be of practical moment. I have already ascertained enough regarding its qualities to make it quite certain that it solves the problem of storing electric energy in a manner and on a scale useful for many important practical applications."
