

" and in the pens
1 Pen Company the all that is desired.
to the Victoria Rifles only killed by a rifle ranges on Saturday.

steamer "Alpena," which formed one of the last autumn, has native in England a money has been Goodall, of Aca-

and his wife left

of Toronto, sold land and several houses situated at
H. Carpenter, of

Winnipeg, a dear. A lot have set on Main Street,
and some buildings
been sold for $110.

A. S. Took, was on Monday, to Central Prison for Institute students
ers, questions and going to Thomas

the Credit Valley
ville, was complete-Wednesday morn-
The building was at the fire is not taken from the Me-

mias, shows that it
ars from any yet analyst pronoun-
of the very first with the famous Virginia.

in possession of a
of Mr. F. Bourage of 103 on gaged in the Brit-
war of 1811-15 with a farm till over the days have re-

Grey & Bruce is heavy cutting at aching completion,
along the line.
The ties for the new nearly all laid,
may now be look-

as arisen between Association and carrying the Herd ation had been sider, will form at a joint meet-committee of the Association of breed-

Caledonia, was last Wednesday, a lamp in the ory was a large and the contents $22,000 in what The loss was in residence of Owen Sound,

and a sum of $165 was stolen.
Notter's son from his panis alarmingly any number of similar lately, and for the miscre-

th, teacher in is fined by a pupil, or decision was not a pupil, he had on the day
get his lessons While doing so which he was in Coburg
agement was

neficial Railway Portage there and awaiting month and track is liter-
with continuos
being estimat-
—Half a nic Railway
about 40-alala Pacific 0 car loads graph poles, a large
ch is to be Company's

towel has a nomination
any other rebyterian
st, numbers
e Canada
the congregaeopla Meth-
ists, 112;
Methodists,
3; Christ-
7; Camp-2; Dis-number of boy, aged
child of J.
was es-
by full races past
to have striking

Grand Volunteer Review at Windsor, England.

The great Volunteer Review at Windsor Park, on Saturday, came off successfully. There were more men under arms, 58,000 all told, than ever mustered at one time on British soil since King Edward marched to the invasion of Scotland. In June, 1860, when the Queen and Prince Consort reviewed the Volunteers in Hyde Park, there were only 23,000 on the ground; at the review in 1864 22,000; and at the last Windsor review in 1865, 28,000. The volunteers on Saturday were drawn from 119 regiments. England was represented by 29 counties, Wales by two—Glamorgan and Pembroke. There were no volunteers from north of the Tweed, but Scotland was represented by Lord Elcho's old corps of the London Scottish, under Colonel Lumsden, and Ireland by the London Irish, under Colonel Ward. The War Office maintained its prestige for blundering, the space set apart for field exercises being altogether too small for handling so large a body of men. The transport service, too, broke down as usual, and 10,000 men who had neither bit nor spur during the day awoke like the French in Flanders.

The Queen, escorted by a squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, blue, drove on to the ground at 5 p.m. Her Majesty was accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, and attended by a large staff including Sir Garnet Wolseley and Sir Frederick Roberts. In the next carriage came the Princess Louis, attended by Lady Sophia MacNamara and Captain Collins. Then came the other members of the Royal family. As the outriders to the Queen's carriage, which was drawn by four greys, were seen trotting up from the Castle to the great park, the Royal Standard was run up on the flag-staff at the saluting point, the bands, forty-five in number, played the National Anthem, and the volunteers drawn up in long lines presented arms, while the artillery batteries fired a salute, heard distinctly at Primrose Hill.

The Duke of Cambridge, who had general charge of the day's work, occupied a position next to the Queen at the saluting point, and with Her Majesty was Prince Christian in the antique garb of the Ranger of Windsor Park, and an array of army officers in all the pomp and circumstance of the Horse Guards. Behind them and along the main pavilion clustered the largest and most brilliant gathering of lords and ladies ever assembled in England since the old jousting days.

The Canadian riflemen now practising at Wimbledon were on the ground not far from the royal flagstaff, their shako decorated with maple leaves. Col. G. Gibson, their commander who won the Prince of Wales' prize at Wimbledon two years ago, was cordially received.

The sun shone brilliantly as the infantry regiments, headed by the Prince of Wales' corps, began to file past, the officers saluting Her Majesty as they passed, and the bands playing "God Save the Queen." When the last man had passed the saluting points the regiments formed into two vast semi-circular lines, and the Queen and Royal Family drove through them, the troops presenting arms, the bands playing, and the artillery firing a salute. At the close the Queen drove off the grounds, and the Duke of Cambridge on her behalf thanked the commanders. The general appearance of the men was satisfactory, especially the regiments from the northern counties. One man was reported to have died from fatigue.

BEAR HUNT AT ELMISHORE.—On Dominion Day the people of Elmshore were informed of the presence of a large bear in the neighborhood, and they immediately organized a party to go in pursuit of him. His residence was located in a swamp near by, and thus the hunters completely surrounded him. In a short time they discovered his bearings, whom they succeeded in dispatching. They then took the carcass into the village, and after having improvised a stretcher carried it in triumph upon their shoulders up down the highway followed by a large procession to the lively strains of a fife and drum band. The hide it is said, weighed upwards of 40 pounds, and was a splendid specimen.—Echo.

HURON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.—This Association assembled at Owen Sound on Tuesday. The proceedings consisted of a discussion of Sabbath School matters, and a public meeting on the same subject was held in the evening addressed by Rev. Dr. Davidson and others. On Wednesday after sermon by the Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Durham, general business was proceeded with, and in the evening a missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. P. McEwan, pastor of the church, Owen Sound, occupied the chair, and interesting addresses on behalf of the Home Mission were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ross, of Port Elgin, D. M. Sinclair, M. P. F., Rev. Mr. Dyke, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Davidson.

There is much speculation at present with regard to the effect of bullet wounds, in connection with the shooting of President Garfield. Here is one case of point:—The late Judge Sullivan, of Montreal, was shot at by a man with whom a dispute arose, the bullet lodged in close proximity to the spine. He lived for 30 years after, and though he was occasionally the subject of pain, arising from the presence of the foreign substance, died at last at a ripe old age. A post mortem disclosed the fact that the process of nature had so isolated the bullet from the immediate contact with the tissues, and the continued muscular action had had the effect of flattening out the bullet to about the size of a shilling.

Lefroy, who is supposed to have murdered the London merchant Gold in the railway trap at Brighton, has been arrested.

The road from Bhanso, in Burmah, to China, which has been closed for twenty years, is once more open for trade.

A cablegram from London says:—John Cunningham, D. D., F. R. S. E., a noted divine of the Scotch Church, is dead. He was born in Aberdeenshire, of a Highland family, Nov. 10th, 1810, and at the time of his death was in his 71st year. Dr. Cunningham came to London in 1853. On the platform he was distinguished for his decided and untiring opposition to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. Dr. Cunningham preached before Her Majesty, at Balmoral, a sermon afterwards published under the title of "Salvation." Among his best known works are, "Apocalyptic Sketches," "Daily Life," and "Voices of the Night." Dr. Cunningham published "The Great Tribulation," a volume of upwards of 500 pages, treating of the prophetic descriptions of the coming of Christ and the end of the dispensation, which has had a large sale; a companion volume, in 1852, called "Redemption Drawn Nigh" and the "Destiny of Nations: or, the Future of Europe as Delimited by the Bible." In these works great events were predicted for 1868 and in his work, "The seventh Vial," published in November, 1870 he quotes evidence from the most reliable sources of the fulfilment of all events predicted in the pages of prophecy. In his preface he states that he does not revise or recast a single explanation of prophecy in his former work, but abides by, and, in this last volume, justified all.

The Queen, escorted by a squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, blue, drove on to the ground at 5 p.m. Her Majesty was accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, and attended by a large staff including Sir Garnet Wolseley and Sir Frederick Roberts. In the next carriage came the Princess Louis, attended by Lady Sophia MacNamara and Captain Collins. Then came the other members of the Royal family. As the outriders to the Queen's carriage, which was drawn by four greys, were seen trotting up from the Castle to the great park, the Royal Standard was run up on the flag-staff at the saluting point, the bands, forty-five in number, played the National Anthem, and the volunteers drawn up in long lines presented arms, while the artillery batteries fired a salute, heard distinctly at Primrose Hill.

The Duke of Cambridge, who had general charge of the day's work, occupied a position next to the Queen at the saluting point, and with Her Majesty was Prince Christian in the antique garb of the Ranger of Windsor Park, and an array of army officers in all the pomp and circumstance of the Horse Guards. Behind them and along the main pavilion clustered the largest and most brilliant gathering of lords and ladies ever assembled in England since the old jousting days.

The sun shone brilliantly as the infantry regiments, headed by the Prince of Wales' corps, began to file past, the officers saluting Her Majesty as they passed, and the bands playing "God Save the Queen." When the last man had passed the saluting points the regiments formed into two vast semi-circular lines, and the Queen and Royal Family drove through them, the troops presenting arms, the bands playing, and the artillery firing a salute. At the close the Queen drove off the grounds, and the Duke of Cambridge on her behalf thanked the commanders. The general appearance of the men was satisfactory, especially the regiments from the northern counties. One man was reported to have died from fatigue.

BEAR HUNT AT ELMISHORE.—On Dominion Day the people of Elmshore were informed of the presence of a large bear in the neighborhood, and they immediately organized a party to go in pursuit of him. His residence was located in a swamp near by, and thus the hunters completely surrounded him. In a short time they discovered his bearings, whom they succeeded in dispatching. They then took the carcass into the village, and after having improvised a stretcher carried it in triumph upon their shoulders up down the highway followed by a large procession to the lively strains of a fife and drum band. The hide it is said, weighed upwards of 40 pounds, and was a splendid specimen.—Echo.

HURON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.—This Association assembled at Owen Sound on Tuesday. The proceedings consisted of a discussion of Sabbath School matters, and a public meeting on the same subject was held in the evening addressed by Rev. Dr. Davidson and others. On Wednesday after sermon by the Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Durham, general business was proceeded with, and in the evening a missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. P. McEwan, pastor of the church, Owen Sound, occupied the chair, and interesting addresses on behalf of the Home Mission were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ross, of Port Elgin, D. M. Sinclair, M. P. F., Rev. Mr. Dyke, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Davidson.

There is much speculation at present with regard to the effect of bullet wounds, in connection with the shooting of President Garfield. Here is one case of point:—The late Judge Sullivan, of Montreal, was shot at by a man with whom a dispute arose, the bullet lodged in close proximity to the spine. He lived for 30 years after, and though he was occasionally the subject of pain, arising from the presence of the foreign substance, died at last at a ripe old age. A post mortem disclosed the fact that the process of nature had so isolated the bullet from the immediate contact with the tissues, and the continued muscular action had had the effect of flattening out the bullet to about the size of a shilling.

Lefroy, who is supposed to have murdered the London merchant Gold in the railway trap at Brighton, has been arrested.

The road from Bhanso, in Burmah, to China, which has been closed for twenty years, is once more open for trade.

A cablegram from London says:—John Cunningham, D. D., F. R. S. E., a noted divine of the Scotch Church, is dead. He was born in Aberdeenshire, of a Highland family, Nov. 10th, 1810, and at the time of his death was in his 71st year. Dr. Cunningham came to London in 1853. On the platform he was distinguished for his decided and untiring opposition to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. Dr. Cunningham preached before Her Majesty, at Balmoral, a sermon afterwards published under the title of "Salvation." Among his best known works are, "Apocalyptic Sketches," "Daily Life," and "Voices of the Night." Dr. Cunningham published "The Great Tribulation," a volume of upwards of 500 pages, treating of the prophetic descriptions of the coming of Christ and the end of the dispensation, which has had a large sale; a companion volume, in 1852, called "Redemption Drawn Nigh" and the "Destiny of Nations: or, the Future of Europe as Delimited by the Bible." In these works great events were predicted for 1868 and in his work, "The seventh Vial," published in November, 1870 he quotes evidence from the most reliable sources of the fulfilment of all events predicted in the pages of prophecy. In his preface he states that he does not revise or recast a single explanation of prophecy in his former work, but abides by, and, in this last volume, justified all.

The Queen, escorted by a squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, blue, drove on to the ground at 5 p.m. Her Majesty was accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, and attended by a large staff including Sir Garnet Wolseley and Sir Frederick Roberts. In the next carriage came the Princess Louis, attended by Lady Sophia MacNamara and Captain Collins. Then came the other members of the Royal family. As the outriders to the Queen's carriage, which was drawn by four greys, were seen trotting up from the Castle to the great park, the Royal Standard was run up on the flag-staff at the saluting point, the bands, forty-five in number, played the National Anthem, and the volunteers drawn up in long lines presented arms, while the artillery batteries fired a salute, heard distinctly at Primrose Hill.

The Duke of Cambridge, who had general charge of the day's work, occupied a position next to the Queen at the saluting point, and with Her Majesty was Prince Christian in the antique garb of the Ranger of Windsor Park, and an array of army officers in all the pomp and circumstance of the Horse Guards. Behind them and along the main pavilion clustered the largest and most brilliant gathering of lords and ladies ever assembled in England since the old jousting days.

The sun shone brilliantly as the infantry regiments, headed by the Prince of Wales' corps, began to file past, the officers saluting Her Majesty as they passed, and the bands playing "God Save the Queen." When the last man had passed the saluting points the regiments formed into two vast semi-circular lines, and the Queen and Royal Family drove through them, the troops presenting arms, the bands playing, and the artillery firing a salute. At the close the Queen drove off the grounds, and the Duke of Cambridge on her behalf thanked the commanders. The general appearance of the men was satisfactory, especially the regiments from the northern counties. One man was reported to have died from fatigue.

BEAR HUNT AT ELMISHORE.—On Dominion Day the people of Elmshore were informed of the presence of a large bear in the neighborhood, and they immediately organized a party to go in pursuit of him. His residence was located in a swamp near by, and thus the hunters completely surrounded him. In a short time they discovered his bearings, whom they succeeded in dispatching. They then took the carcass into the village, and after having improvised a stretcher carried it in triumph upon their shoulders up down the highway followed by a large procession to the lively strains of a fife and drum band. The hide it is said, weighed upwards of 40 pounds, and was a splendid specimen.—Echo.

HURON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.—This Association assembled at Owen Sound on Tuesday. The proceedings consisted of a discussion of Sabbath School matters, and a public meeting on the same subject was held in the evening addressed by Rev. Dr. Davidson and others. On Wednesday after sermon by the Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Durham, general business was proceeded with, and in the evening a missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. P. McEwan, pastor of the church, Owen Sound, occupied the chair, and interesting addresses on behalf of the Home Mission were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ross, of Port Elgin, D. M. Sinclair, M. P. F., Rev. Mr. Dyke, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Davidson.

There is much speculation at present with regard to the effect of bullet wounds, in connection with the shooting of President Garfield. Here is one case of point:—The late Judge Sullivan, of Montreal, was shot at by a man with whom a dispute arose, the bullet lodged in close proximity to the spine. He lived for 30 years after, and though he was occasionally the subject of pain, arising from the presence of the foreign substance, died at last at a ripe old age. A post mortem disclosed the fact that the process of nature had so isolated the bullet from the immediate contact with the tissues, and the continued muscular action had had the effect of flattening out the bullet to about the size of a shilling.

Lefroy, who is supposed to have murdered the London merchant Gold in the railway trap at Brighton, has been arrested.

The road from Bhanso, in Burmah, to China, which has been closed for twenty years, is once more open for trade.

A cablegram from London says:—John Cunningham, D. D., F. R. S. E., a noted divine of the Scotch Church, is dead. He was born in Aberdeenshire, of a Highland family, Nov. 10th, 1810, and at the time of his death was in his 71st year. Dr. Cunningham came to London in 1853. On the platform he was distinguished for his decided and untiring opposition to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. Dr. Cunningham preached before Her Majesty, at Balmoral, a sermon afterwards published under the title of "Salvation." Among his best known works are, "Apocalyptic Sketches," "Daily Life," and "Voices of the Night." Dr. Cunningham published "The Great Tribulation," a volume of upwards of 500 pages, treating of the prophetic descriptions of the coming of Christ and the end of the dispensation, which has had a large sale; a companion volume, in 1852, called "Redemption Drawn Nigh" and the "Destiny of Nations: or, the Future of Europe as Delimited by the Bible." In these works great events were predicted for 1868 and in his work, "The seventh Vial," published in November, 1870 he quotes evidence from the most reliable sources of the fulfilment of all events predicted in the pages of prophecy. In his preface he states that he does not revise or recast a single explanation of prophecy in his former work, but abides by, and, in this last volume, justified all.

The Queen, escorted by a squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, blue, drove on to the ground at 5 p.m. Her Majesty was accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, and attended by a large staff including Sir Garnet Wolseley and Sir Frederick Roberts. In the next carriage came the Princess Louis, attended by Lady Sophia MacNamara and Captain Collins. Then came the other members of the Royal family. As the outriders to the Queen's carriage, which was drawn by four greys, were seen trotting up from the Castle to the great park, the Royal Standard was run up on the flag-staff at the saluting point, the bands, forty-five in number, played the National Anthem, and the volunteers drawn up in long lines presented arms, while the artillery batteries fired a salute, heard distinctly at Primrose Hill.

The Duke of Cambridge, who had general charge of the day's work, occupied a position next to the Queen at the saluting point, and with Her Majesty was Prince Christian in the antique garb of the Ranger of Windsor Park, and an array of army officers in all the pomp and circumstance of the Horse Guards. Behind them and along the main pavilion clustered the largest and most brilliant gathering of lords and ladies ever assembled in England since the old jousting days.

The sun shone brilliantly as the infantry regiments, headed by the Prince of Wales' corps, began to file past, the officers saluting Her Majesty as they passed, and the bands playing "God Save the Queen." When the last man had passed the saluting points the regiments formed into two vast semi-circular lines, and the Queen and Royal Family drove through them, the troops presenting arms, the bands playing, and the artillery firing a salute. At the close the Queen drove off the grounds, and the Duke of Cambridge on her behalf thanked the commanders. The general appearance of the men was satisfactory, especially the regiments from the northern counties. One man was reported to have died from fatigue.

BEAR HUNT AT ELMISHORE.—On Dominion Day the people of Elmshore were informed of the presence of a large bear in the neighborhood, and they immediately organized a party to go in pursuit of him. His residence was located in a swamp near by, and thus the hunters completely surrounded him. In a short time they discovered his bearings, whom they succeeded in dispatching. They then took the carcass into the village, and after having improvised a stretcher carried it in triumph upon their shoulders up down the highway followed by a large procession to the lively strains of a fife and drum band. The hide it is said, weighed upwards of 40 pounds, and was a splendid specimen.—Echo.

HURON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.—This Association assembled at Owen Sound on Tuesday. The proceedings consisted of a discussion of Sabbath School matters, and a public meeting on the same subject was held in the evening addressed by Rev. Dr. Davidson and others. On Wednesday after sermon by the Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Durham, general business was proceeded with, and in the evening a missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. P. McEwan, pastor of the church, Owen Sound, occupied the chair, and interesting addresses on behalf of the Home Mission were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ross, of Port Elgin, D. M. Sinclair, M. P. F., Rev. Mr. Dyke, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Davidson.

There is much speculation at present with regard to the effect of bullet wounds, in connection with the shooting of President Garfield. Here is one case of point:—The late Judge Sullivan, of Montreal, was shot at by a man with whom a dispute arose, the bullet lodged in close proximity to the spine. He lived for 30 years after, and though he was occasionally the subject of pain, arising from the presence of the foreign substance, died at last at a ripe old age. A post mortem disclosed the fact that the process of nature had so isolated the bullet from the immediate contact with the tissues, and the continued muscular action had had the effect of flattening out the bullet to about the size of a shilling.

Lefroy, who is supposed to have murdered the London merchant Gold in the railway trap at Brighton, has been arrested.

The road from Bhanso, in Burmah, to China, which has been closed for twenty years, is once more open for trade.

A cablegram from London says:—John Cunningham, D. D., F. R. S. E., a noted divine of the Scotch Church, is dead. He was born in Aberdeenshire, of a Highland family, Nov. 10th, 1810, and at the time of his death was in his 71st year. Dr. Cunningham came to London in 1853. On the platform he was distinguished for his decided and untiring opposition to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. Dr. Cunningham preached before Her Majesty, at Balmoral, a sermon afterwards published under the title of "Salvation." Among his best known works are, "Apocalyptic Sketches," "Daily Life," and "Voices of the Night." Dr. Cunningham published "The Great Tribulation," a volume of upwards of 500 pages, treating of the prophetic descriptions of the coming of Christ and the end of the dispensation, which has had a large sale; a companion volume, in 1852, called "Redemption Drawn Nigh" and the "Destiny of Nations: or, the Future of Europe as Delimited by the Bible." In these works great events were predicted for 1868 and in his work, "The seventh Vial," published in November, 1870 he quotes evidence from the most reliable sources of the fulfilment of all events predicted in the pages of prophecy. In his preface he states that he does not revise or recast a single explanation of prophecy in his former work, but abides by, and, in this last volume, justified all.

The Queen, escorted by a squadron of the Royal Horse Guards, blue, drove on to the ground at 5 p.m. Her Majesty was accompanied by Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice, and attended by a large staff including Sir Garnet Wolseley and Sir Frederick Roberts. In the next carriage came the Princess Louis, attended by Lady Sophia MacNamara and Captain Collins. Then came the other members of the Royal family. As the outriders to the Queen's carriage, which was drawn by four greys, were seen trotting up from the Castle to the great park, the Royal Standard was run up on the flag-staff at the saluting point, the bands, forty-five in number, played the National Anthem, and the volunteers drawn up in long lines presented arms, while the artillery batteries fired a salute, heard distinctly at Primrose Hill.

The Duke of Cambridge, who had general charge of the day's work, occupied a position next to the Queen at the saluting point, and with Her Majesty was Prince Christian in the antique garb of the Ranger of Windsor Park, and an array of army officers in all the pomp and circumstance of the Horse Guards. Behind them and along the main pavilion clustered the largest and most brilliant gathering of lords and ladies ever assembled in England since the old jousting days.

The sun shone brilliantly as the infantry regiments, headed by the Prince of Wales' corps, began to file past, the officers saluting Her Majesty as they passed, and the bands playing "God Save the Queen." When the last man had passed the saluting points the regiments formed into two vast semi-circular lines, and the Queen and Royal Family drove through them, the troops presenting arms, the bands playing, and the artillery firing a salute. At the close the Queen drove off the grounds, and the Duke of Cambridge on her behalf thanked the commanders. The general appearance of the men was satisfactory, especially the regiments from the northern counties. One man was reported to have died from fatigue.

BEAR HUNT AT ELMISHORE.—On Dominion Day the people of Elmshore were informed of the presence of a large bear in the neighborhood, and they immediately organized a party to go in pursuit of him. His residence was located in a swamp near by, and thus the hunters completely surrounded him. In a short time they discovered his bearings, whom they succeeded in dispatching. They then took the carcass into the village, and after having improvised a stretcher carried it in triumph upon their shoulders up down the highway followed by a large procession to the lively strains of a fife and drum band. The hide it is said, weighed upwards of 40 pounds, and was a splendid specimen.—Echo.

HURON BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.—This Association assembled at Owen Sound on Tuesday. The proceedings consisted of a discussion of Sabbath School matters, and a public meeting on the same subject was held in the evening addressed by Rev. Dr. Davidson and others. On Wednesday after sermon by the Rev. Mr. Dunlop, of Durham, general business was proceeded with, and in the evening a missionary meeting was held. Rev. J. P. McEwan, pastor of the church, Owen Sound, occupied the chair, and interesting addresses on behalf of the Home Mission were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ross, of Port Elgin, D. M. Sinclair, M. P. F., Rev. Mr. Dyke, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Davidson.

There is much speculation at present with regard to the effect of bullet wounds, in connection with the shooting of President Garfield. Here is one case of point:—The late Judge Sullivan, of Montreal, was shot at by a man with whom a dispute arose, the bullet lodged in close proximity to the spine. He lived for 30 years after, and though he was occasionally the subject of pain, arising from the presence of the foreign substance, died at last at a ripe old age. A post mortem disclosed the fact that the process of nature had so isolated the bullet from the immediate contact with the tissues, and the continued muscular action had had the effect of flattening out the bullet to about the size of a shilling.

Lefroy, who is supposed to have murdered the London merchant Gold in the railway trap at Brighton, has been arrested.

The road from Bhanso, in Burmah, to China, which has been closed for twenty years, is once more open for trade.

A cablegram from London says:—John Cunningham, D. D., F. R. S. E., a noted divine of the Scotch Church, is dead. He was born in Aberdeenshire, of a Highland family, Nov. 10th, 1810, and at the time of his death was in his 71st year. Dr. Cunningham came to London in 1853. On the platform he was distinguished for his decided and untiring opposition to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. Dr. Cunningham preached before Her Majesty, at Balmoral, a sermon afterwards published under the title of "Salvation." Among his best known works are, "Apocalyptic Sketches," "Daily Life," and "Voices of the Night." Dr. Cunningham published "The Great Tribulation," a volume of upwards of 500 pages, treating of the prophetic descriptions of the coming of Christ and the end of the dispensation, which has had a large sale; a companion volume, in 1852, called "Redemption Drawn Nigh" and the "Destiny of Nations: or, the Future of Europe as Delimited by the Bible." In these works great