A Wholesome House.

A practising surgeon, whose work requires him to live in town, has communicated, in a letter to the Times, a graphic account of how he converted "an old London house into a perfectly wholesome and comfortable habitation." He appears happily to have solved a question which sorely perplexes many heads of families, which some have given up in dispair, and which, perhaps, a yet larger number are blindly an I ignorantly disregarding, leaving themselves the helpless victims of vain traditions and evil machinations. A few notes of his experiences may be of some practical service. He first grappled with more than the usual difficulties about the drains and the water supply; but this we may pass over, as most people, it may be presumed, have a tolerably clear idea now of the importance of these points. Our surgeon, however, looked for the foes of health and happiness elsewhere as well. He had furnished his house in the usual way, and on surveying the result from a sanitary point of view, he felt there was reason for alarm and need of reformation. "There were window-curtains in the dining room, window-curtains in the consulting-room, window-curtains in the drawing-rooms, window-curtains in the bedrooms. There were carpets on all the floors, there were unprotected papers on all the walls; there were wardrobes and other pieces of furniture, which had their apparent height increased by cornices, within which were hollow spaces, seemingly made on purpose to form harbors for dirt. There were ponderous book-shelves, containing a formidable amount of printed lumber, and a still more formidable amount of dust. The walls were very old, with uneven surfaces, and to these uneven surfaces dirt clung with almost touching tenacity. There were all sorts of fluffy things about, which were supposed to be ornamental, fancy mats and the like, which blackened the fingers of any one bold enough to touch them. Last, but by no means least, there were the ever-increasing accumulations of rubbish, such as old cloths, old toys, old books and pamphlets, old newspapers, old music, and miscellaneous trumpery of every description." The details thus numerated will be only too familiar to every householder. The doctor perceived on reflection that this kind of arrangement rendered cleanliness an impossibility. The dust and dirt poured in from a London street and found lodgment everywhere, and the slightest attempt at romping on the part of the children set clouds of poisonous particles in motion, which were inhaled with every respiration, and which sufficiently accounted for pale faces, drooping forms and a generally languid physical condition. The doctor set vigorously to work to apply a remedy. Starting with the principle that the house should be rendered washable, he began by sending away several cart-loads of what he irreverently denominated "rubbish." This included all carpets, window-curtains, blinds, and other "fluffy things," and piles of old books, papers, &c. The floors were then covered with parquéterie, and a few Oriental rugs, such as could be effectually shaken with one hand were laid down. All the wardrobes and other heavy furniture were placed on castors, so as to be easily movable for purpose of cleaning and dusting. The vacant spaces at the tops of wardrobes and cupboards were levelled by a thin cover of wood or stretched canvas and brown paper. Painted woodwork and papers were varnished. Stained glass blinds were substituted for muslin blinds, curtains were altogether dispensed with, and the woodwork of the widows was painted and decorated in warm colors. The rooms were also provided with an adaptation of Tobin's ventilating system. The arrangements thus made make it possible constantly and thoroughly to cleanse every part of the house; and besides this, regid rules are laid down for preventing the re-accumulation of waste, on the principle that "Wherever there is rubbish there will be dirt, and where there is dirt there will be disease." Summing up the result of his experiment, the doctor tells us there has not been a case even of trivial indisposition in his family since his alterations were completed, and his children look as rosy and well as he has been accustomed to see them look on their return from the country.—London Christian World.

Another fight with the Indians has taken place in New Mexico. Four Americans were wounded and four Indians killed.

CAMPAIGN DUTIES.—A well-known gentleman went home in rather a howcome-youso condition the other night, and in reply to his wife's remonstrances, explained that he had been attending a meeting of the ward campaign club. "But how came all that mud on the shoulder of your coat?" she enquired sternly. "Oh," he answered meekly, "I've been putting my shoulder to the wheel," and this concluded the hostilities for the night.

CAREFUL MAN.—A few months ago an old gentleman was seen nailing a notice on the south side of Galveston-avenue. A friend passing, said: "Why don't you have the notice put in the paper where people can read it?" "Waal," said the old gentleman, "If I tuck it to the newspaper office them fellers would get it spelled wrong and then somebody might think I didn't know how to spell." The notice read: "Howze fur rent inchoir on premeysis."—Galveston News.

"Mann Peter," said a scotch quack doctor to his apprentice, "ye maun aye be awfu, cautious in pharmacy. Even I once made a terrible mistake. I was attending Mrs. Kittlebody wha' was sair fashed wi' tickdolaroo, an' I was called upon by John Mc Fikett, that he was ashamed o't, especially as he was courtin' a strapin' young widow that had a fine public-house: an' I mixed up baith portions at the same time, an' losh sake, maun! I happened to gie them ilk ither's medicines; so puir John, rubbing Mrs Kittlebody's preparation for her tickdolaroo on the tap of his head, declares he's had a bee in his bonnet ever since; and Mrs Kittlebody, rubbin' her jaw with the ointment intended for John's bald pow, in less than a fortnight had a pair o' whiskers the envyo' a' the young men o' the village."

What is Pride?

There is pride, and there is pride. Pride is all wrong and pride is all right. It depends on what you mean by pride. That pride which Webster defines as "an unreasonable conceit in their own superiority" is all wrong. But that "pride" which Webster defines as "lofty self-respect," "elevation of character," and an "abhorence of what is beneath or unworthy of one," is all right. Pride in the sense of a glad recognition of that which is good and noble is commendable, and is approved in the whole spirit of the Bibles teachings. The word "pride," as it stands in the English version of the Bible, is, it is true, commonly used in its bad sense, but it is the very idea of the "Illustrative Applications" to use plain English words colloque. In the best sense, a manly pride in his noble father and noble mother is a good trait in any lad. A boy who has parents to be proud of and isn't proud of them ought to be ashamed of it. His parents have little reason to be proud of him. "The glory of children is their fathers." (Prov. 17: 6)—and the fathers here includes the mothers, as the better half of every family. That is what the bible has to say on that point. Paul was not ashamed to be proud—in the best sense of that word. Speaking to the Corinthian Christians of his boasting of Titus about them as his children in the faith, he says, "If I have boasted anything to him of you, I am not ashamed." No man has reason to be ashamed of sensible boasting—especially of one's loved ones who are worth boasting about. And Paul had an honest pride in earning his own living, in taking care of himself, in paying his own board bills. There is no danger of too much pride of this kind now-a-days. He says about this to the Corinthians: "I have kept myself from being burdensome unto you, and so I will keep myself." He was so proud of this thing that he was ready to boast of it, whether other people liked his boasting or not. "As the truth of Christ is in me," he said, "no man shall stop me of this boasting." He adds, "Let no man think me a fool: [but] if otherwise [if you do think me a fool,] yet as a fool receive me, that I may boast myself a little." Oh yes! a proper pride is eminently proper. A good mother has a right to a motherly pride in a good son's well-doing; and a good son has a right to a filial pride in a good mother's nobleness and lovely character. Be sure that your family is really a good family, and that your pride in it is a proper pride, and you need have no fear that you are transgressing the spirit or the letter of your Bible teachings when you have an honest pride in preserving unstained the good name and the sacred memory of those who have gone before you, and whom you are left to represent and honor. There is no Bible condemnation of that son who, in a grateful, God-fearing spirit, says reverently:

"My boast is not that I deduce my birth
From lions enthroned, and rulers of the earth;
But higher far my proud pretensions rise—
The son of parents passed into the skies"

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SIMPLE DISINFECTANT.—A cheap and simple disinfectant which promises to be useful is a solution of chloride of lead, which was first brought into notice by the late Dr. Goolden, of St Thomas's Hospital, London. It is inodorous, effective, and its cost infinitesimal. It may be prepared as follows. Take half a drachm of nitrate of lead and dissolve in a pint or more of boiling water. Now dissolve two drachms of common salt in a pail or bucket of water, pour the two solutions together, and allow the sediment to subside. The clear supernatant fluid will be a saturated solution of chloride of lead. A cloth dipped in solution of chloride of lead and hung in a room will sweeten a fetid atmosphere instantaneously, or the solution thrown down a sink, water closet or over a heap of refuse, will produce a like result.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores grey hair to its orignal color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling-out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occassional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Renewer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS.

A bald-headed eagle hovering over St. John's Island suddenly swooped down and attempted to carry off a two-year-old child of Mr. John Clancy's playing in a field alone. The light clothing gave way with every tug of the voracious bird, and was torn into ribbons. Some men working near by came up in time to save the child from injury, but the eagle refused to go any distance away until shot at.

Wicked for Clergymen.

Rev.—, Washington, D. C., writes: I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuff called medicines, but when a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."—New York Baptist Weekly.

A recent visitor at Niagara Falls pays the inhabitants of the place the following compliment:—"A set of people who can take a tremendous thing like Niagara Falls and so fence it in that it cannot be seen without pay are entitled to some respect for their shrewdness, even though they deserve to be kicked for their meaness."
