Some Familiar Sayings.
Shakespeare gives us more pithy sayings than any other author. From him we call: "Count their chickens ere they are hatched." "Make assurance doubly sure." "Look before you leap." "Christmas comes but once a year." Washington Irving gives us the "Almighty Dollar." Thomas Nelson, quoted long ago, "What will Mr. Grundy say?" while Goldsmith answers "Ask me no questions and I'll tell you no lies." Thomas Tusser, a writer of the sixteenth century, gives us "It's an ill wind that turns no good." "Better late than never." "Look ere thou leap." "The stone that is rolling will gather no moss." "All cry and no wool," is found in Butler's "Hudibras." Dryden says: "None are but the brave deserve the fair." "Men are but children of the large growth." "Through thick and thin." "Of two evils I choose the least." "The end must justify the means." are from Matthew Prior. We are indebted to Colley Cibber for the agreeable saying: "Richard is himself a gain." Cowper tells that "Variety is the spice of life." To Milton we owe "The Paradise of Fools." and Thomas Southerne reminds us that "Pity's son these things remain." Dean Swift thought that "Bread is the staff of life." "Coming events cast their shadows before." "The distance lends enchantment to the view." "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," is from Keats. Franklin says "God helps those who help themselves." and Lawrence Sterne comforts us with the thought that "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

They proceeded to wreck a train, causing the death of the engineer. Their purpose was to rob the train and help themselves onward with the proceeds, but they have indignantly landed in jail. So much for the pursuit of pernicious literature by boys.

They cost but a trifle.
