

Farmers' Boys.
When boys leave the farm with the impression that they can live better and easier lives at some other business than farming, no one can blame them for selling their labor to the best advantage. The few business men who make a fortune and live in splendor are enough to turn their young heads away from hard work and slow returns on the old farm home. Every successful business man is talked about from Vanderbilt down to the tin-peddler, when he has plenty of sin. But very little is said of the ninety in every hundred business men who go rushing down through bankruptcy like white beans through a hole in a rosette bag. When boys and young men go into debt and into a business they do not understand, the chances are against them. A good moral character is a far higher attainment than great riches gained by double expedients, that sooner or later will have to be left behind, as they form no part of the life that exists forever. Some good writers, who do not seem to be conversant with what they are writing about, tell us the boys leave the farm because they are overworked and harshly used by their parents.

It is unkind and unjust to blame farmers for causing the boys to leave the farm, when almost every one of them provides better food and raiment, and a more comfortable home than they themselves ever got. If our city friends have any tears to shed, do not waste them on the farmer's boys, but rather lament for the boys who never plowed the green fields when the busy breeze of the morning came sweet through the orchard bloom. One of the reasons the public speakers do not tell them to buckle down bravely to honest work, and have a clear conscience and a clear record, and never beg for office or cringe for favor or be a panper on any private individual or public institution. They like better to enslave the boys and tell them this is a free country, and that all the great men are needed at the top, and there is a fine chance for every boy in America to be chosen President, and the young Presidents begin to think they are too smart to hoe potatoes and corn on the old farm.

Now farming is wonderfully adapted for great as well as small men. A man with only one, or even half a talent, can live a virtuous, happy life on a farm. If he has uncommon abilities he can farm uncommonly well and do an uncommon amount of good. And there is no man too good or too great to be a farmer; and as no one is suffering for the want of a President, it is well to keep on plowing; and oh! that some plowman was so good that the months of inspiration might fall on his shoulders.

Tax Queen.—The Queen has reigned for over 45 years, a period which has been exceeded by three English sovereigns only.—Henry III., reigned for 56 years; Edward III., for 50 years; and George III., whose reign extended to 60 years; and by but one living sovereign, the emperor of Brazil, who ascended the throne on April 7, 1831, more than six years before her majesty's accession. This year Her Majesty attained her 64th birthday, an age exceeded by eleven only of the sovereigns of England, dating from the Norman Conquest—namely Henry I., who attained 67 years; Henry III., 65 years; Queen Elizabeth, 63 years; James II., 63 years; George I., 67 years; George II., 77 years; George III., 82 years; George IV., 69 years; and William IV., 72 years.

The Great Smoked Lake in the Cascade Mountains, about 75 miles N. E. of Jacksonville, Or., is thought to average 9,000 feet down to water all around. The depth of the water is unknown, and its surface is smooth and unruffled, as it is so far below the surface of the mountains that air currents do not effect it. Its length is estimated at twelve or fifteen miles, and its width ten or twelve. There is a mountain in the centre having trees upon it. It lies still, silent, and mysterious in the bosom of the everlasting hills, like a huge wall reared up by the hands of the giant geni of the mountains in the unknown ages gone by, and around it the primal forests watch and ward are keeping. The visiting party fired a rifle into the water several times at an angle of forty-five degrees and were able to note several seconds of time from the report of the gun until the ball struck the water.

A strange story comes from Ottawa to the effect that a prominent lawyer of that city was entrapped into a marriage engagement by an advertisement. The matrimonial ceremonies were in progress and the words about to be pronounced that should make them man and wife when a friend of the lawyer interposed. The bride expectant failed, and the greatest consternation prevailed. The woman has since suffered from hemorrhage.

Humbugged Again.
I saw so much about the merits of Hop Bitters, and my wife, who was always doctored, and never wanted me so urgently to get her some that I concluded to be humbugged again; and I am glad I did, for in less than two months use of the Bitters my wife was cured, and has remained so for eighteen months since. I like such humbugging.—H. T. St. Paul.—Pioneer Press.

"Shall I help you to some of the tomatoes?" inquired a young exquisite of a venerable physician as he sat opposite him at the hotel. "No, sir, I thank you," replied the learned savant, "I'll trouble you, though, for some potatoes, if you please."

My Universal Remedy.
ARTHUR'S GASTRO-REGULATOR is the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves the best and most effective purgative Pills that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use. In instances where the curative powers, no other Pills can be compared with them, and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effective, they are especially adapted to the use of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest pills to employ for children and weakened constitutions. Where a mild but effective purgative is required.

1881. FALL. 1881.
No house should be without a bottle of Hopper's Yellow Oil, in case of accident. There is no preparation so well adapted to suffering humanity than this made so many permanent cures, or relieved so much pain and misery. It is called by some the Good Samaritan, by others the Cure-all, and by the afflicted the Angel of Mercy.—1881.

The total damage by the Mississippi floods is estimated at $2,000,000. The wheat crop is estimated at 1,000,000 bushels. And every one who has tasted the merits speaks warmly in praise of Hopper's Yellow Oil. It is called by some the Good Samaritan, by others the Cure-all, and by the afflicted the Angel of Mercy.—1881.
