

"THE GREY REVIEW" Every Thursday. At the O. G. Grey, 241, Upper Town Durham, Ont.

The Grey Review

Vol. VI. No. 21.

DURHAM, Co. Grey, MAY 24, 1883.

Whole No. 271.

TERMS—$1.00 per year in Advance. $1.50 if not paid within three months.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Professional and business cards one inch square and under, per year $4.00. Notices of births, marriages, deaths, etc., per line per week.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

LEGAL.

E. D. MACMILLAN, ATTORNEY AT LAW, 241, Upper Town, Durham.

JACKES & PRINGLE, ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Solicitors, etc., 241, Upper Town, Durham.

Frost & Frost, BARRISTERS and Attorneys-at-Law, 241, Upper Town, Durham.

MEDICAL.

J. S. JEROME, Licentiate in Surgery, will visit Durham on Tuesday (Fair Day) to the end of the month.

W. Tanner, L. M. O. C. V. S., First Class Honor Graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto.

F. Z. NIXON, GRADUATE of Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN MOODIE, LICENSED AUCTIONEER for the County of Durham.

HUGH MACKAY, LICENSED AUCTIONEER for the County of Durham.

H. STEVENSON, GENERAL AGENT, London and Ontario.

W. M. CLARK, Architect and Builder, MARKDALE.

REVERE HOTEL, MARKDALE.

T. SPOUOLE, Proprietor, THIS Popular Hotel has had a large addition added to it.

SHOEMAKERS, Should Call and Examine COLGAN'S IMMENSE STOCK of FOREIGN and DOMESTIC PATENT SHOES.

W. CALDWELL, SHOEMAKER, SOUTH END, Durham, formerly Military Bootmaker.

Look out for cold weather. How are you for socks?

A VERY important question for every one to consider is there is nothing more injurious to health than cold feet.

Knitting Stockings & Socks in all sizes on the most improved machine.

WM. JOHNSTON, Jr., Lower Town, Durham.

They All Say so! Who have been there, BY PAID on twenty times to buy a Watch, Clock, Ring or Have their Repairing done.

DOLL & BROWN, MARKDALE, Ont.

DAVID JACKSON, Jr., LAND & LOAN AGENT CONVEYANCER, Land Valuator, etc.

MONEY to Loan on Farm Property, and Mortgages Purchased. Money lent for parties in Mortgages and other Securities.

A General Financial Business Transacted. A large amount of Money lent at Lowest possible rates.

FARM FOR SALE. OFFICE—One door South of C. Grant's Store, Grandrae St., Durham, Ont.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE, DURHAM. Capital $6,000,000; Reserve $1,400,000.

THIS BANK issues Letters of Credit on Great Britain and other Foreign Countries. Deposits of $4 and upwards received, upon which the current rate of interest will be allowed.

COLLECTIONS MADE. On reasonable terms, and a General Banking Business TRANSACTED.

Money to Loan. THE undersigned has a large amount of both private and Company funds at his disposal.

Changed Hands. THE HARNESSES BUSINESS previously conducted by Messrs. Ross & Nelson, has been purchased by Messrs. Nelson Readburn & Co.

REPAIRING promptly attended to. Remember the place, 2nd door north of Poole's, NELSON READBURN & CO.

NEW FIRM. ROSE & WHITMORE. THE undersigned wish to intimate to the residents of the Township of Glengarry and the County of Frontenac, that they have recently completed the sale of the Standard Hotel, at the corner of the intersection of the Highway and the County Road.

BLACKSMITHING. In Horse-shoeing, Repairing and all other work, we are prepared to do the best work at the lowest prices.

WOODWORKING in CONNECTION. JAS. ROSE & WM. WHITMORE, Jr., Durham, April 16th, '83.

New Furniture Warehouses, Opposite Parker's Drug Store.

NOTICE. NOTICE is hereby given to all parties indebted to the undersigned either by note or book account, to call and settle by the same at once, as he is going out of business.

NORTHERN Business COLLEGE, OWEN SOUND. STUDENTS may enter any School day in the year with equal advantage.

Special Features for 1883-3. PHONOGRAPHY is included in the Commercial course without extra charge.

Actual Business Department. Having Bank (Capital $100,000). Wholesale Store and everything that can be had to make it as practical as possible.

C. A. FLEMING, Principal, Box 72, Owen Sound.

Durham Planing Mill, SASH, DOOR, and Blind Factory.

ROBT. BULL, BUILDER, Durham, keeps on hand a large stock of Sash, Doors and all kinds of Building Materials.

They All Say so! Who have been there, BY PAID on twenty times to buy a Watch, Clock, Ring or Have their Repairing done.

DOLL & BROWN, MARKDALE, Ont.

WALL PAPER. MRS. E. DAVIDSON has just received a good and fine stock of Wall Paper, including, etc., of first class quality and New Designs.

A Large Stock of FANCY GOODS and CONFECTIONERY, consisting of Fancy Brushes, Vases, China-ware, Ladies' Handkerchiefs, Purse, Necklaces, Bends, etc.

TOYS OF EVERY KIND. Remember the Place—Opposite the office of D. Jackson, Upper Town.

HARNESSES! THE Subscriber would respectfully intimate to the public that he has a large stock of HARNESSES that cannot be surpassed in the country, and which cannot fail to give satisfaction.

COLLARS A SPECIALTY. Lambton-Street, Lower Town, Durham, one door east of the Post Office.

Private Instruction. IN French, Latin, Mathematics, English and Writing. C. J. McCABE, B. A., 241, Upper Town, Durham, Feb. 4, 1883.

Dress & Mantle Making. THE undersigned wishes to inform the Ladies of Durham and vicinity, that she has commenced the Dress and Mantle Making business in the building.

Blacksmith & Waggon SHOP. Re-opened. THE Subscriber wish to intimate to the residents of the Township of Glengarry and the County of Frontenac, that they have recently completed the sale of the Standard Hotel.

General Blacksmithing and Waggon Making Business. As they are experienced workmen in their respective departments, they are prepared to do the best work at the lowest prices.

F. DOWNES, House, Sign, and Ornamental Painter, DURHAM.

Glazing, Graining, and Paper Hanging promptly attended to. Fresco and Banner Painting a Specialty.

FIELD & GARDEN SEEDS. By Seaman Earling, From the Best Houses in Britain and consisting of the leading Field and Garden Seeds.

Timothy, and other Grass Seeds.

SEED POTATOES, New Varieties.

H. PARKER, Druggist and Seedsman, DURHAM.

POETRY. CANAN. I'm but a wandering pilgrim here, I'm bound for the Land of Canaan.

"An' why, I wad like to ken, should I gie her?" retorted Glime, "An' I first to gie value, and mair than value in liquor, for they tickets, and then gie them back for naughtin?"

"Hullo!" cried Walter, rising to his feet, his eyes flashing with uncontrolled indignation.

"I'm bound for the Land of Canaan; O' Canaan is a happy place, Will you go to the Land of Canaan."

"I have not wealth for honours here, But I'm heir to the Land of Canaan; A crown of life he'll give me there, I shall reap a king in Canaan."

George Harrington. BY DAVID MACRAE. CHAPTER XXXI. IN WHICH WALTER GIVES MR. GLIME A BIT OF HIS MIND, AND SEARCHES FOR AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE IN A STRANGE PLACE.

The girl disappeared into the bar-room, and presently returned with a big, bloated man, who after a look at Walter, said in as suave a manner as he could command.

"Sit down, sir," said Mr. Glime, endeavouring to clear his husky voice, as he shut the door; "you're a friend of Mr. Harrington's, are you?"

Walter replied that he was; whereupon Mr. Glime nodded, and said, "I'm a friend of his too," as if this announcement should put them both on the most friendly footing with one another.

"You can give me his address, I suppose?" said Walter.

"Well, I don't," returned Glime, bringing a fat pocket-book out of a drawer behind him, and proceeding to turn over the papers in it.

"Let me see—let me see," returned Glime, who was still abstractedly turning over the papers.

"You are sure to find him here on Saturday night, as he is coming to see me here on Saturday night."

"But if he has no friend that'll lend him a helping hand?"

"I'm afraid it'll be a dead loss to me. This is the principal part of it—noverra much to my folk, but it's a bad loss on me that loses a deal in the same way."

"Glime as he spoke, handed the slip of paper to Walter.

"It was an IO U for fifteen shillings, and was signed 'George Harrington.' Ah! to-wal' Walter knew that hand."

"Here," added Glime, who had marked off hopefully the sorrowful look with which Walter was contemplating the IO U.

"Walter examined the tickets and found that two were for a horse, another for a watch, and a third for a brooch."

"He wondered, with a sad heart, if it could be the brooch which Harrington's likeness and hair in it, that Mrs. Harrington had shown him with so much pride."

"Worse and worse! It was one for a gold mounted hair-guard—too evidently the last fond gift of little Titie. Alas! had Harrington sold that too—and for drink!"

"They could easy lie here," said Glime, whose cunning eye had been watching Walter's face.

"In fact," continued Glime, following up the last suggestion, which he saw had told powerfully on Walter.

"One year back a ticket for an saddle bag, began back a ticket for an saddle coat and a shawl that the pawnbroker had lent unchanceously on. She begged if I wad gie bath the tickets for class; but when she couldna get that, as it's no very likely she wad, she said she wadna gie the tickets for her ain things."

"And you wouldn't give it her?" exclaimed Walter, with sudden indignation.

"Glime stared at him in amazement. 'You wouldn't give it her?' repeated Walter, with increasing vehemence.

"I have frequently to do jobs of this kind, and 'reclaiming the clothes of some of the poor creatures amongst whom I labor. I have just been up re-claiming some tickets for a poor man in my district, who has been brought to beggary by a drunken wife."

"These accursed places!" exclaimed the missionary with bitterness in his tone, as he stood beside Walter in the street; and looked up at the huge dingy tenement.

"You have no idea, Mr. Harrington, what depths of misery and destitution they open the way to, by the facilities they give for turning everything a man has or can lay his hands on, into money."

"What could her husband do here? He might keep his earnings from her; but so long as he left a blanket on his bed or a rag on his children's backs, she could bring it here while he was away at work, and get money for it to drink."

"Ay, there they stand, in natural proximity," he continued, pointing with his finger—the pawnshop and the public house—playing fast into each other's hands—two parts of one gigantic system that is doing more than all other evils put together, to drag the masses down into beggary and then up again.

"Bring in whom you like," said Walter, clenching his powerful fists, and drawing himself up to his full height.

"I should say you were a fool, I suppose if these articles cannot be got back for drinking, they'll be sold for anything else."

"Glime, in whose passion and greed of gain had been striving for the mastery, no sooner saw his hopes of money, a profit out of the pawn-tickets endangered, than he pocketed his affronts with no very good grace, and named the sun."

"Wretch!" said Walter, with a look of unutterable loathing, as he threw down the money on the table.

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"I have frequently to do jobs of this kind, and 'reclaiming the clothes of some of the poor creatures amongst whom I labor. I have just been up re-claiming some tickets for a poor man in my district, who has been brought to beggary by a drunken wife."

"These accursed places!" exclaimed the missionary with bitterness in his tone, as he stood beside Walter in the street; and looked up at the huge dingy tenement.

"You have no idea, Mr. Harrington, what depths of misery and destitution they open the way to, by the facilities they give for turning everything a man has or can lay his hands on, into money."

"What could her husband do here? He might keep his earnings from her; but so long as he left a blanket on his bed or a rag on his children's backs, she could bring it here while he was away at work, and get money for it to drink."

"Ay, there they stand, in natural proximity," he continued, pointing with his finger—the pawnshop and the public house—playing fast into each other's hands—two parts of one gigantic system that is doing more than all other evils put together, to drag the masses down into beggary and then up again.

"Bring in whom you like," said Walter, clenching his powerful fists, and drawing himself up to his full height.

"I should say you were a fool, I suppose if these articles cannot be got back for drinking, they'll be sold for anything else."

"Glime, in whose passion and greed of gain had been striving for the mastery, no sooner saw his hopes of money, a profit out of the pawn-tickets endangered, than he pocketed his affronts with no very good grace, and named the sun."

"Wretch!" said Walter, with a look of unutterable loathing, as he threw down the money on the table.

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

The Author of Home, Sweet Home. (Prepared specially for the Review.) John Howard Payne is the author of this song, expressing the yearnings of the heart after home, which is to all the sweetest spot on earth.

"I have frequently to do jobs of this kind, and 'reclaiming the clothes of some of the poor creatures amongst whom I labor. I have just been up re-claiming some tickets for a poor man in my district, who has been brought to beggary by a drunken wife."

"These accursed places!" exclaimed the missionary with bitterness in his tone, as he stood beside Walter in the street; and looked up at the huge dingy tenement.

"You have no idea, Mr. Harrington, what depths of misery and destitution they open the way to, by the facilities they give for turning everything a man has or can lay his hands on, into money."

"What could her husband do here? He might keep his earnings from her; but so long as he left a blanket on his bed or a rag on his children's backs, she could bring it here while he was away at work, and get money for it to drink."

"Ay, there they stand, in natural proximity," he continued, pointing with his finger—the pawnshop and the public house—playing fast into each other's hands—two parts of one gigantic system that is doing more than all other evils put together, to drag the masses down into beggary and then up again.

"Bring in whom you like," said Walter, clenching his powerful fists, and drawing himself up to his full height.

"I should say you were a fool, I suppose if these articles cannot be got back for drinking, they'll be sold for anything else."

"Glime, in whose passion and greed of gain had been striving for the mastery, no sooner saw his hopes of money, a profit out of the pawn-tickets endangered, than he pocketed his affronts with no very good grace, and named the sun."

"Wretch!" said Walter, with a look of unutterable loathing, as he threw down the money on the table.

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"

"What tales of unknown suffering and distress, which these bundles could tell!"