A Wonderful Resurrection.

In the London Lancet of September 6 is recorded a case of resuscitation after apparent death by hanging, so remarkable as to be worthy of notice and discussion outside of purely professional circles.

The case is reported by Dr. Ernest W. White, senior assistant medical officer to the Kent Lunatic Asylum at Chartham, near Canterbury. The patient was a woman fifty-three years old, afflicted with that form of insanity known as melancholia. She had tried to kill herself before admission into the asylum, and made several attempts to take her life after being received into the institution. Finally she succeeded in escaping the watchfulness of the attendants who had frustrated her previous efforts at self-destruction, and hid herself in a bath room, where she was found hanging to a ladder by a cord formed of her dress, eight minutes after she had been seen alive by another patient.

When cut down she was apparently quite dead. Animation was so completely suspended that there was no symptom which enabled the medical men present to distinguish her condition from that of real death. This is the remarkable feature of the case. So far as the doctors could see, the woman was dead. The skin was ashy pale, the surface temperature very low, the lips were livid, and the eyes dilated and insensible to the action of light; there was no pulse at the wrist or temples; no definite heart beat could be detected even by the stethoscope; respiration had absolutely ceased, and unconsciousness was complete. Even the application of galvanism failed to contract the muscles. If the woman had been a criminal who had suffered the extreme penalty of the law, the physicians would doubtless have been justified by the symptoms in pronouncing her dead; yet she is alive to-day, and not only well physically, but fast recovering from all mental derangement!

Dr. White and his assistants wisely refused to act upon appearances. They gave their patient the benefit of the doubt in their minds, although that doubt was very slight. Resort was had to artificial respiration according to what is known in medicine as the Silvester method. The movements were performed slowly—only ten times a minute—but about ten minutes after they were begun an exceedingly feeble attempt at natural respiration was noted, and very weak pulsations of the heart were perceived by the aid of the stethoscope. Ten minutes is a long time to wait for the first signs of returning life, and it is to be feared that in many cases of apparent death, especially by drowning, the measures necessary for resuscitation are not continued long enough to rekindle the smouldering spark of life that remains in the body. There can hardly be too much patience or perseverance. In this case artificial respiration was steadily maintained for two hours before the natural breathing was sufficiently established to dispense with assistance in this way. If it had been abandoned earlier, the woman probably have died, notwithstanding partial restoration of sen-

[illegible] not follow the treatment in the patient became imperfect- about eleven hours after the [illegible]ngulation, and in the course of forty-eight was in good bodily health. She lost her melancholy illusions and became cheerful, looking back at her attempt at suicide with horror. For two days from the time of hanging, however, her memory was a complete blank.

This extraordinary case is interesting in several aspects. The complete simulation of death suggests a possibility that physicians may sometimes themselves be deceived as to the fact of death especially careless practitioners or those of comparatively limited information. We have referred to the lesson which it teaches of the need of steadfast and hopeful perserverance in efforts to restore those who have apparently lost their lives by strangulation or drowning. It would appear that artificial respiration is more useful and effective when the movements are performed slowly than when they exceed ten a minute. This is an important point for those to remember who are called upon to render first aid to the injured. Finally this remarkable occurrence may well lead to speculation as to the many stories which have been published of the restoration to life of men who have apparently suffered death by hanging on the gallows.

The Penalty of "Smartness."

Mr. MEREDITH has for once done the State some service. Thanks to his desperate folly in bringing his "charges" against the MOWAT Government, each member of the Government has had a chance of stating upon oath the history of his connection with the efforts to bring WILKINSON, BUNTING, MEEK, and KIRKLAND to justice. The country now knows that none of the Ministers have anything to conceal. Mr. Meredith's strategy has turned out to be even worse than that of the Licensed Victuallers in Halton. If the latter had left the repeal vote alone they could have used all over the country the alleged state of dissatisfaction in Halton with the Scott Act. As it was, they went ahead and proved conclusively that the Act is more popular now in Halton than ever it was. Similarly, if Mr. MEREDITH had not made his "charges" he would have left open a glorious field for insinuations. But his excessive cleverness has led him into taking a course which, had he been less "smart," he must have seen would have ended only in more firmly establishing the guilt of his friends.—Globe.

HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have to fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Newspaper Laws.

We call the special attention of Postmasters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3 Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not is responsible for the pay.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.
