-It is startling to learn that the monthly consumption of whiskey in the United States is over 8,000,000 gallons. When to this is added the vast quantity of other liquors consumed one is forced to see a connection between the prevailing hard times and the liquor

-The opinion seems to be general that business prospects are brighter than they have been. The final settlement of the dispute over the United States Tariff will restore confidence and stimulate certain lines of trade. Although the crops are in many places light, and straw especially short, it is satisfactory to know, as the crop reports state, that the wheat crop as well as other crops are generally good, and that a fair average yield is expected.

So much indeed, that in reply to a large gathering of workingmen who waited upon him the other day at Hawarden he replied with his old time vigor and eloquence. The question therefore now uppermost in British politics is, whether Mr. Gladstone will enter the House of Commons. Should be do so, the Liberal Party will receive him with open arms, as their great hope and stay.

-The system of preferential duties favored by Mr. Foster and others at the recent Intercolonial Conference in Ottawa does not meet with favor on the other side of the Atlantic. Lord Rosebery's organ, the "London Chronicle" says that the most instructive and the most significant feature of the doings at Ottawa, as disclosed by the official report, is the practical collapse of the ingenious proposal under the guise of which certain well-meaning persons sought to impose a new form of protection upon the United Kingdom. Let us hope that we have now heard the last of the imperateurs.
