PRACTICAL FARMING. -

Constructing a Plank Sidewalk. In many viilages and farming communities the sidewalks are constructed entirely of planks. When this is the case it is one of the greatest importance that they be properly laid, or decay or a tilting walk will soon follow construction. The sidewalk must be laid up from the ground and t must have a broader, firmer foundation than is usually given it, if it is to remain ration shows a sidewalk, and its un ion, that is now in actual use and it's dng very firm and true. Lengthw of 3x4 inch stuff are laid upon flat rocks well bedded in the ground, the broader these rocks and the more firmly established the better. Crosswise over the lengthwise strips are laid strips of 3x4 inch stuff just the width of the walk, upon which the planks are laid lengthwise. A sidewalk should never be laid with crosswise planks. Such a walk is a continued source of annoyance. The planks rot around the nail holes and soon each individual plank will fly up if one steps upon an end. Besides t is difficult to secure a smooth walk with crosswise planking. As to the planks, it is a mistake to use inferior material, or planks be run through a planer to make of M. Leon Palustre, the learned author this way will prove satisfactory in use are

WOMEN SUICIDES. HOW IT HAPPENS THAT MORE MEN THAN WOMEN TAKE THEIR LIVES.

Yomer Die Oftener for Love-The Influence of Poverty and Martial Unhappiness-Letters Left by Women Suicides, William Ferrero, who hasmade a study of suicide in all its phases, contributes a very interesting article on the subject. He was surprised to find that suicide was more common among men than women, the proportion being one female to seven male suicides. TWO CAUSES OF SUICIDE.

The causes of suicide seem to be usually two-destitution and love. Destitution does not lead so frequently to suicide among women as among men. The reason for this is said to be that the financial ruin of a man means the ruin of his wife and daughters, perhaps of a mother and sisters, as they have not the responsibility of it upon their shoulders. Prof. Lombroso and Mr-Ferrero agree that all physical and moral pains are felt less keenly by women than by men-which is a wise arrangement of Providence, considering how many more

Man has greater pride of place than woman. If he falls from a high position he] prefers to die rather than to live in a lower sphere. "Man:" says Mr. Ferrero, "is much prouder of high social position than woman, because the principal aim of his work and of his struggles is to obtain such high social standing; and as financial ruin means defeat, it causes him the sharpest anguish, just as the loss of a great battle does to a general." A woman has more courage and more rebound in her. A man who is ruined, in other words, will bring greater misery upon under the blow that has felled him.
