NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Notice to Creditors—J. P. Telford.

—Mr. McGreevy on a recent has secured West Quebec. It is to be hoped his health will not suffer in Parliament as it did in the last Public Institution he occupied.

—Some other form of ballot would need to be invented before the next election as the new one tried in Halton had not been a success. There were thirty rejected and twenty five spoiled.

—Mr. McLean, who redeemed Antigonish, the seat of the late, Sir John Thompson, took his place in Parliament last Friday. He is a decided acquisition to the Liberal ranks, and was warmly received by his own side of the house.

The immense tobacco factory of W. McDonald, Moncton, was destroyed by fire a week ago. At the time of the accident several hundred operatives, mostly women and girls, were in the upper stories and while the scene and the shrieks were heard throughout the world, twenty or thirty were severely injured and two are dead.

—Major McLeaven M. P. has introduced a bill into the Dominion House, prohibiting the indelible stamping of all butter and cheese boxes with place, date of production, etc. It was pointed out that cheese was the only product that had maintained its price during the depression and the speakers were at pains to point out the importance of sending home goods honestly marked as genuine English market. It is refreshing to find that no party bias was introduced into the discussion.

—In the House on Monday Dr. Landerkin addressed the speaker for the first time this session, and showed up the negligence of the government in his own trenchant way. We append a synopsis of his speech:

He reminded the House that on April 10, 1894, a return had been ordered showing the nature and number of the returns ordered by the House during the three preceding sessions, and then went straight down, together with the reasons why they had not been brought down. Though that return had been ordered by the House it had not yet been brought down. On May 28 last another return had been ordered by the House of a list of the articles imported from the United States during the preceding fiscal year for the use of the Government in the public service. But that return had not yet been brought down. It was then moved, from economy and size of the Government's importations from the United States that the doctor could not undertake to say. The Government in disobeying its orders was trifling with the dignity of the House.

Mr. McMullen said that it was clear in his mind that the Government's action had been preparing for an election and not a session of Parliament.

—The little Republic of Nicaragua in Central America has jumped into the list of the most notorious. Some agents of the British agent were unfairly treated by the President of Nicaragua and thrown into prison. He was released in a few hours and expelled the country. The British Government at once demanded satisfaction, and placed the sum required to atone for the offence at $75,000. The British Minister demurred and attempted to explain, but no explanation would be received until the sum demanded had been paid. Finally, Lord Kimberley advised Nicaragua that unless the sum demanded was paid by noon on the mid-night on Friday last, the Blue Jackets would seize the Capital. At the hour appointed this was done. The landing party marched without opposition to the custom house, hoisted the British flag and proclaimed martial law at the same time, and proceeded to proclaim that their rights would be respected and that they might pursue their avocations without fear.

—Last week we noticed that Mr. McGreevy was defeated in Quebec. So it was supposed at the time, and so it may be yet found to be, should the election be postponed. But meanwhile, on account of defects in some ballots the returning officer has declared Mr. McGreevy to have been elected by a majority of seven. This we regret, for the morale of public life and dignity of Parliament. It is anomalous by the mail, that Sir Hector Langevin has undertaken to introduce Mr. McGreevy to the House. The task is certainly an onerous one, and no doubt Sir Hector gave it his serious consideration before undertaking the task. But unquestionably there is no more fitting person in the House to undertake it than Sir Hector Langevin, the faithful colleague and confidante of Mr. Thos. McGreevy in the great Connally Scandal that have disgraced the political life of Canada.

HOW TRADE MAY BE INCREASED.

Canada shipped $157,000 worth of agricultural implements to Australia last year and only $5,575 worth to the United States.

How is it that our manufacturers sold so largely in a distant market, in competition with American rivals, and still sent such a small amount of their wares to the American market just across the border? Is it because in Australia United States and Canadian goods meet on even terms while our men are shut out of the United States by an almost prohibitory tariff? Remove this Customs barrier and five times the quantity of agricultural mowers from Toronto and other Canadian cities will be sent to Australia. And that barrier may be removed if our Government will accept the statutory and unconstitutional offer of free trade in agricultural machinery contained in the compromise tariff adopted at Washington less than a year ago. That offer should be accepted before Parliament rises.—News.

THE DRIFT OF THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

The Manitoba School Question has now made its appearance in the Church Courts. At a meeting of the Synod of Hamilton and London sitting at Woodstock last week, a communication was read from the convenor of the Committee on Education in the Diocese of Niagara on the matter of religious instruction in the Public Schools. The special point, however, in the Anglican communication was the ultimate purpose of the Anglican Church to establish church parochial schools, and seeking the co-operation of the Presbyterians in this enterprise. Quite naturally enough, if the Roman Catholic Church should succeed in securing church parochial schools in Manitoba and the other Provinces as she has already secured in Quebec, why not secure the same privilege to the Anglicans, and all other religious denominations. This is the logical outcome of the position assumed by the Roman Catholic church on this question. But a moment's reflection will reveal that any such scheme must be. If the Roman Catholic or Anglican or any other denomination wishes to establish parochial schools at its own expense, good and well. But this cannot be done at the public expense. The reason is the religious beliefs of the people. It is concerned simply with the secular interests of the people, and when it has done all that can be demanded of it. This was the view of the Synod, and the report recommends that the licensing power should be withdrawn from municipal and provincial authorities and placed in the hands of the Federal Government.

In the minority report Dr. McLeod says that there is no room for difference of opinion as to the injurious effects of intemperance—it being a prolific cause of pauperism, disease, insanity, idleness, crime and an excessive death rate, a conservative estimate of the amount spent in liquor annually in Canada is $40,000,000, which, together with the loss of time by consumers, loss by damage engendered by intemperance, crime, pauperism, etc., would bring the total loss to the country by the use of intoxicants up to one hundred and thirty five million dollars annually. A pretty round sum to be expended. Licenses high and low are said to have been equally unsatisfactory, that they are persistently and flagrantly disregarded by licensees, and that as a check to the evils of liquor traffic license laws have been a stupendous failure. This certainly has not been the experience of Ontario.

On the question of prohibition, Dr. McLeod believes that a prohibitory liquor law, thoroughly enforced would be the most effective solution of the evils of the liquor traffic, and statistics from the experience of the production and the non-prohibition States of the Union are given in support of his contention. But other things being equal, Dr. McLeod is of the opinion that better results would be obtained from a prohibitory liquor law under the Canadian political system. Dr. McLeod's conclusion are:

(1) That the House of Commons did wisely in declaring that prohibition is the right and only effective remedy for the evils of intemperance. (2) That from all the evidence taken it has been shown that the liquor traffic has been seriously detrimental to the moral, social and material interests of the nation. (3) That it has been made clear that the liquor traffic is a major revenue in favor of the total prohibition of the liquor traffic and, (4) that it would be wise and right for the Dominion Parliament to give effect to such a law without delay.

The admission of Newfoundland to the Confederation was brought up by Mr. G. L. Jackson, who gave much information and advised as to the terms of union. Mr. Foster replied that the best thing the Government can do is to carry on the negotiations for a free trade agreement for the few months that remains to them, without risking the failure of any new and important undertakings.

—The Rev. Prof. Greig has resigned his position as Lecturer on Church History in Knox College, Toronto. Dr. Greig was born in North of Ireland in 1817, and completed his studies at the University of Cambridge. He is a graduate of the Free Church of Scotland, in Edinburgh. Coming to Canada he was first settled at Cook's Hill and in 1857 was chosen pastor of Cook's Church, Toronto. Outside of his ministerial labors he has written a history of the eighteenth century. His book on "The Life and Times of Mr. George III" is well received by critics. Mr. Forsyth, one of the inspectors of the Underwriters, has been in the country for the past month. He has been over the town during the day, has inspected the sites, the tanks, and our resources generally, and was firmly of the opinion that our town would be a great builder up and a good field for future growth.
