LONG AND SHORT OF MARRIAGE.
Tallest and Smallest Couple Ever Entered in England.
On May 25, 1884, the wedding of the shortest man and woman ever married in England was celebrated in St. James' Hall at Manchester. The bridegroom was Francis Joseph Flynn, called "General Mite," a native of Ireland, in the State of New York, who was born on Oct. 2, 1869, and was exhibited in Piccadilly, at London, from Nov. 22, 1883. His height was 30 inches and he weighed 60 lbs. The bride was Miss Mary Edwards, who had been exhibited in London in July, 1884. She was 60 inches tall and weighed 170 lbs. Both of these wedded people were of the county of Down, Ireland.
An extraordinary couple of the county of Down, Ireland, were exhibited together in May, 1871, at the Crystal Palace. The bride was Miss Mary Edwards, who had been exhibited in London in July, 1884. She was 60 inches tall and weighed 170 lbs. Both of these wedded people were of the county of Down, Ireland.

CHAPTER IV.
"A SOUND OF REVERBY."
Brilliant sunshine was flooding the lawns and gardens of the Marston Abbey, and pouring its rays upon motley groups of people met there to celebrate birthday festivities of the young heiress. In the park were three large marble fountains, on which were emblazoned Hilda's monogram and the coat-of-arms of the proud race from which she sprang. Within were tables decked with profusions of fruit and flowers, and loaded with dainties. The squire's intimate friends had been told off to duty as stewards, and now, decorated with bouquets of blue and silver, they were busy marshalling the guests into the busy salotted for them. The farmers, their wives and families, in one tent, the poorer tenants in another, and the villagers in a third. A military band from Winkler was discoursing sweet music to the high-born guests assembled on the lawn, immediately in front of the Abbey, while the low Temperance band was busy performing "The Roastbeef of Old England" in the neighborhood of the tents.

Roger Montague, who headed the villagers' table, and was doing his best to attend to the wants of the guests, who were performing wonders in the demolition of gigantic sirloins and rounds of beef, might have seen, had he turned his eyes to the garden and the drive, a group of five men, dressed in the attire of the day, and engaged in a conversation which was not uninteresting. One of the group was a young man, dressed in the attire of the day, and engaged in a conversation which was not uninteresting. ABOUT THE HOUSE.
Let the sunlight in.
Keep the house and rooms open and free for the sunlight and fresh air. The writer was an unexpected guest at a farm house one beautiful, sunny day, and he, dear, seemed like going into a tunnel from a bright, warm street. The shades in the parlour were closed, and the room was dark and stuffy, and there was a damp smell of green leaves and water. The shabby feeling was the worst that could be imagined in that little room where of all places, it should have been freshly air-purged. In the very midst of a beautiful country spot, with no high buildings to shut out the light, no black, sticky soot to begrime the streets, and no dust and dirt to blow in, there was a little parlor that might have been a cavern, made into a veritable no-man's-land. Besides this, each piece of furniture stood as if in its place as though it never had been moved, and never was to be. Now, I ask all readers how can any child regard such a place as home, and love to be in it?

Of all places in the world that ought to be bright, cheery, sunny, and happy, a farmer's home is that place. Let the sunlight in! It will give the children glad and happy. It will give them no opportunity to grow morose. It will make them remember their home as full of sunshine and light, where they were always glad to be. If they are to be happy, let the sunlight in. It will give them a sense of the value of the sunshine, and so of the value of the sunlight. It will give them a sense of the value of the sunlight, and so of the value of the sunlight.

Almost a Hopeless Case.
A Terrible Cough. No Rest Night nor Day. Given up by Doctors.

A LIFE SAVED
BY TAKING
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL
Several years ago I caught a severe cold, attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest, either day or night. The doctor, after working over me the best of his ability, pronounced my case hopeless, and said they could do no more for me. A friend, hearing of my trouble, sent me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which I began to take, and very soon I was greatly relieved. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured. I have never had much of a cold since, and my friends are fully convinced that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life.—W. H. WARD, a Quilby Ave., Lowell, Mass.
