

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Bleaching and Cleaning.

A correspondent writes—Men's straw hats, white leggers, white shirt collars, colored trousers—may be bleached in the following manner: Dissolve oxalic acid (powder) in hot water and scrub the straw with the solution, then rinse the hat in warm water. Use a small brush for the mesh of the straw collar. Push the cloth can be. Besides, the acid is getting, one does not wish to run any risk of poisoning any of it into a possible break in the skin of one's fingers, as might be the case if a cloth were used. Five cents per quart of hot water enough to thoroughly dissolve the powder. For one or two hats a fourth of five cents worth of powder will be enough. This is the method of bleaching used by milliners.

Colored leaves of artificial flowers may be effectively re-stained by an application of maulage. Lay leaves on a flat surface and brush over the under side with the maulage, and lay dry thoroughly.

Don't Make Your Own Soap.

There is an article of commerce today that sells at a lower price for the value than soap. If bought by the box, it is two to three dollars worth of soap for an unskilled family for a year. We recently bought a box of 150 bars of an inferior soap for $1.75. Think of the amount of soap for $1.75. And think of any busy, over-taxed housekeeper trying to compete with such prices. I will not say every busy farmer's wife will do it, but in the vegetable and fruit garden, the delicate soap-making with the industries of our fathers.

How to Keep Eggs.

Shake a piece of lime the size of an egg in a gallon of water, and when cold pour over the egg. This will keep them for a large number of days. The egg should all be turned point downward. Cover them and keep them in the cellar or in any cool place. Be very careful to choose perfectly fresh eggs as one bad will necessitate removing all the others, washing the jar and pouring over freshly prepared lime water. Eggs can be kept in this way from one spring-time until the next. They can be used in any manner except for eating the white. If laid down when eggs are very cheap and marketable, they can be sold at a good profit to the salesman.—Housewife.

Children Should Rise Early.

One of the evils of the day seems to me to be the tendency to let children stay up late at night and then be tired in the morning. Children need eight or nine hours' sound sleep. We think any child over 12 do this they should be in bed at 9 o'clock. Through the summer we contend it would do them more good to retire at 8 and rise at 4 than retire at 11 and rise at 7. How few young people are in bed at 9 o'clock the early start, its freshness, its stillness, its sweetness. To the early riser the world is his friend, as the birds are singing their morning praises and the sun is coming in sight to smile on dew wet leaves and blossoms. It is the same that it is hours afterward amid the heat, dust and noise of the active day. If the young person learned to begin the day with these lovely sights and sounds they would make their morning invocation ever after.

Frozen Peaches.—One can, or two, put large peaches, two coffee cups sugar, one cup water and the beaten whites of three eggs; break the peaches and stir all ingredients together. Freeze like ice cream. Delicious.

Must Wear High Hats.

The New Rule for London Omnibus Drivers brings out some queer old titles. The headgear may be white, shiny or dull, but the driver's cap may be white, but the hat must be of the variety known on the other side as "chummy pot." The styles of hats which this regulation has brought to light and placed upon the heads of the jehus are most varied. Some date back ten or twenty years, and some are of the most modern and fashionable. As we forced our way to the front, the man pushing aside as though they did not exist, I noticed a man in a top hat, evidently being used as a desk by the exhibitor of the congregation in ordinary times, but which now served as a support for the head of the man. The eyes were not closed, the head and face were almost destitute of hair, and in the sunken mouth and cheeks were signs of great age. The body except for the head was covered with a very handsome velvet coat, with a black ground and wide silver tassel. Between the hat and the wall there stood a middle-aged man, dressed in black, whom I conceived to be a clergyman, but he said never a word, and if the people were paying they were doing it silently. There was not the least expression of any sort on any of the faces about me; they stood stock as if they were in a trance. I had little time to watch them, for immediately after our arrival several of the men surrounded the table and raised the fire hat and bore it to the place.

Shoe Superstitions.

When you buy a pair of new shoes never put them on a shelf higher than your head, unless you want to bring bad luck; and if you buy them before you have had both shoes on, you may meet with an accident or even sudden death. This is an old Irish superstition. The Scotch girls believe that if they drop their shoes before they are worn, they will have a white French lady long hair in their hair, and disappointment in love, and a German mother in the same predicament, that she will soon lose her children.

Mysterious Miss Decker.

Miss Belle Decker, daughter of Wickham Decker, of Brunswick, N. Y., died a few days ago. She was a mystery to physicians, and many prominent experts from New York City examined her, but were unable to diagnose the case.

Long-Lived Norwegians.

Norway is a small country, and the sayings of its people do not get into our newspaper very often, but the Norwegians nevertheless have a claim upon celebrity due to the fact that the average length of life is greater there than in any other country in Europe. Recent statistics show that for males the average forty-eight years and three months, for females it is fifty-one years and three months. It is a valuable commentary on this that the mortality in Norway is 17 per cent. less than in the centre or west of Europe, this being due to the fact that a far smaller number of infants die there than in any other country.

In His Line.

"Who was the first man to make a mountain out of a mole hill?" "Oh, some real-estate dealer, I suppose."

Never shall I forget the time when I first drew this sword.

"When was that?" "Horn—At a raid."

FIGHTING SMOKE.

A New Contrivance for the Protection of Firemen.

An invention has just been approved by the New York Fire Department which will enable the firemen to work in the dense smoke without being smothered. After trying many kinds of asbestos suits, rubber suits with cells containing water, and other inventions, it has been decided that the only practicable protection for firemen would be something in the form of a respirator. The respirator which has just been approved consists of a reservoir strapped on the fireman's back, which is to filter and purify the air conveyed to his mouth by a hose. The filtration is accomplished in three parallel tubes which constitute the reservoir. These tubes are about 3 inches long and 3 inches in diameter. The two outer tubes are charged with layers of bone coal and cotton, the smoky air going through them being cleansed of its smoke and passing into the middle tube by glycerine. This cooling is effected by glycerine, which also further purifies the air and absorbs all chemical poisons. From the glycerine tube the smoky air passes up the hose into the valve box and thence to the mouth through a rubber mouthpiece. When the air is inhaled it passes from the hose into the mouth. All air exhaled simply goes out through a opening in the reservoir. This the fireman need never remove is mouth from the mouthpiece.

BURIED IN DEEP SILENCE.

THE FUNERAL OF THE CHIEF MENTONITE IN AMERICA.

No Word Spoken in Church or at the Grave—Caucasian in Chains after the Burial—Moris Ramakia and His People. Moris Ramakia, the most prominent Mennonite in America, is dead. Ramakia's prominence was not of an order to bring him conspicuously before the world, but his death will be a blow to his people, for he had been established in America. The tidings of his death were brought to St. Paul by a gentleman who witnessed the funeral. He had been spending a few weeks in western Manitoba for recreation, when he became a spectator at the strange ceremony.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

Restores natural color to the hair, and also prevents itching and dandruff. A Little more than two years ago my hair began to fall out, and I was very much distressed. I tried many remedies, but they did not help. I then tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks my hair began to grow again, and it is now as thick and healthy as ever. I can truly say that Ayer's Hair Vigor is the best I ever used. Mrs. A. W. Allen, Polkville, Mo., N. Y.

They did not show much depression. In their drinking, they were entirely unimpaired, and while some drank heavily they did not show any signs of it. "I drove down to the 'small village' near the boundary, the 'small village' they call it, from the presence there of a great mill, and stayed over night. There was no inn or place of public entertainment in the village, and the only place where one could get a drink was at the house of a farmer. There was no other of the most respectable-looking houses and the man of the house had a good deal of liquor on hand.
