A Steamboat Attacked by a Shark. A despatch from Vancouver says :- The Blonde, a small steamer, was caught in a violent storm in Queen Charlotte Sound on her last trip north. While the waves were sweeping over the boat and the Captain feared that they might never reach port alive, a shark, over thirty feet long, made its appearance directly in front of them, and appeared to be preparing to charge the steamer. Capt. Beck could not resist a shot from his rifle at the huge fish. His aim was true and a rifle ball was imbeded in the head of the man eater. The shark, furiously lashing the water, retreated several yards and, turning on its back, charged directly at the little steamer. The shock was so severe when the boat and fish experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. According to this paper Crispi's person is watched over by two commissaries of police at $1.60 a day, twenty-two "agents" or detectives, at a little over 90 cents a day for each, and two vice-brigadiers at 60 cents each (one would suppose from their titles that vice-brigadiers would cost more). A carriage at $2.50 also figures in the bill. The total, reduced to American money, is $26.10 per day, or $9,526.50 per year. This, however, is only during the time when the Prime Minister is in Rome. When he travels the expenses are three or four times as great, which bring the annual amount up to about $12,000.
