This country will stand first in the production of turnips, and a large quantity of turnips is grown for fodder. In the yearly average of the period 1882-93 the yield was 12,560 acres, and in 1894 there were 14,675 acres of turnips in the Province. These figures show that the crop is not only an increase of the foalage of the country: while the growth of turnips is increasing very rapidly.
