

A WHIFF 'O' THE CELLAR AIR.

My first thought was that I had been... I had been... I had been...

BY FELLOW TRAVELLER

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

"What is that?" I asked, softly... "You looked so, as if you had been..."

I looked up, as if to answer... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

MARY MORNING

There was one thing in this world... I had been... I had been...

MORNING'S MARRIAGE

And what is that? I said, pointing... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

But, a blackness, as heavy as... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

step would bring it close beside me... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...

I had been... I had been... I had been...
