The incident I now relate came under my personal observation, and demonstrates that the chameleon is sus ceptible of education and can be ranked with animals classed much higher in the scale of intellectual development Miss Henrietta Keene, a little lady of 12 years, living in Philadelphia, was presented with two Florida chameleons and she at once began instructing and educating her pets. By continued gentleness and kindness she won their confidence, and at her call they would raise their heads, listen and then come running quickly. Soon they responded to their names—Brinton and Baby -and nodded their little heads know

She then taught them to stand up on their hind legs and put their little forepaws together and stand in the attitude of prayer, looking solemn and closing their eyes; at a signal they would quickly prostrate themselves, roll over on their backs, and pretend to be dead, lying without motion, until told to rise and embrace, which they would do with every sign of joy and pleasure.
