RIPENING OF CREAM.

As the flavor of butter comes largely from the action of certain germs or ferments, it seems to me, says Prof. Mc-Kay, that the right degree of acidity, other conditions being favorable, determines the flavor of the butter. As to chronicle in the way of luggage, and many of the lactic acid germs require among them a trunk that does not need oxygen, stir the cream frequently. The to be unpacked, but answers the purgranular appearance of cream is not al- pose of a wardrobe and a chest of drawways a correct indication that it is ers. It can be set, on arrival at the ready to churn. It is frequently in journey's end against the wall. The lid this condition when the acidity is very will remain open when thus placed, and freezing, but to the excessive heat in thawing it out. Cream ripened at a women have taken to in the country low temperature, and for a long time, with but little stirring, has a bitter taste and lacks flavor. We were enabled to secure a difference of from one MCFARLANE to two points from the same cream divided and ripened at different degrees of acidity and different temperatures, regardless of the starter used. I believe that the right degree of acidity not only governs the flavor of butter, but also that of cheese, under favorable conditions. To get uniform resuits with alkali tests, cream should be separated so as to contain about the same per cent of fat daily.

THE GARDEN.

The margin between the possibilities and actualities of the average farm garden is a thing of goodly dimensions. it is, naturally enough, a difficult thing for the farmer to realize to what extent of practical usefulness he may put a single acre of ground provided Horse Shoeing Shop, put a single acre of ground provided he is willing and careful to bestow upon it the right kind of attention. This, In the old stand. All hand- is so because of the fact that in his farm work he looks more to general results. But when he comes down to work on his friend, Mr. Doolan, whose daughta smaller scale he finds things quite different. It is only recently that a committee took upon itself to investigate somewhat as to what was actually being done on some of the small truck farms, near one of our large cities, and they reported that one farm of forty acres yielded annually $16,000 worth of fruits and vegetables; another of six acres yielded $6,000; another of ninety acres returned $20,000, and another of twenty acres returned $8,000. These figures represent good receipts, but even after making reductions for fertilizers and other necessary expenditures, the net returns although not stated, were no doubt, handsome. Apart, however from the profits from exclusive truck farming, the garden acre on the farm can be made an important item in the domestic economy of the home, if we take into consideration all the expense attaching to the purchase of garden produce necessary to the family.

MRS. HURD CONCEALED HER VALU-ABLES IN ITS SPRINGS.

Then Sent It Away to Be Repaired-The Gens Finally Recovered at An Uphols-

Nobody outside of the members of Hiram Hurd's family would have suspected that the big arm chair in Mrs. Hurd's bedroom contained anything but solid comfort.

But for come months past Buffalo has been the scene of many burglaries. Homes, whether occupied or not, have no injurious effect. It has been stated been entered and the premises ransacked for valuables. So it was that Mrs. Hurd, fearful of being robbed and and on the score of succulence was searching for a safe place to conceal her jewels, found an empty space beneath the springs in the armchair and placed therein her jewel case, the contents of which she values at $5,000. For several days she congratulated herself that no safer place for the concealment of her gems could have been found, and having no occasion to wear them, she left them in their hiding

It was on Friday that Mr. Hurd noticed that the big armchair looked To hasten fermentation occasionally trifle worn and that it needed re-covering. In the meantime Mrs. Hurd was blissfully unmindful of the whereabouts of the family jewels. She had seen the chair taken from the house, but never occurred to her that within she had hidden brooches, sunbursts, rings, and watches containing diamonds, rubies, pearls and emeralds. As Mr .Loton thrust his hand under the hanging that concealed the springs, the silence of the anxious little group was almost painful. The upholsterer's hand brought out a small, square, plush-covered case. Yes, there was the case! Were the jewels still in it. An examination of each article in the asse showed that none of its contents was missing. Then Mrs. Hurd thought of her handsome little gold watch, studded with diamonds, which she had put in a fold young sow eating ragweed at a ravenous rate.
