Mr. Galbraith is the teacher, and, an abounding energy and lots of town friends made an entertainment of which 'Archy' was no doubt proud. The room was tastefully decorated and filled with an audience almost exclusively young people. The platform was screened to perfection and the entertainment good of its kind though in a few points not just what is expected at a school entertainment. Mr. Irwin, of the 'Chronicle,' filled the chair with tact and ability, giving in his opening remarks a sketch of our School system and its possibilities. A song by the children made one wish there had been more of them on the programme. Mr. Leighton's 'Turn Over' showed a deep fund of appreciative humor and re-ceived an encore. Mr. Jas. Collinson told of a brakesman's devotion to duty in an effective style. Mr. Galbraith is a willing helper in town circles so in re turn the "boys" turned out over a dozen strong to assist him.
